Urges Early Start on Federal Tax Returns

"Minnesota federal income taxpayers can do themselves a favor by starting right away to get together all their financial records which may be useful in the preparation of their 1957 returns," District Director A. R. Knox of the internal revenue service, said today. "These records of income and expense will be particularly helpful to taxpayers who wish to itemize permissible deductions," he said.

"We hope all or at least a majority of our taxpayers followed our advice last year and retained records that might have a bearing on their income tax returns," Mr. Knox declared. "Right now, in fact, is a good time to urge taxpayers to start a systematic collection of records for use in preparing their 1958 returns next year.

"We urge and expect taxpayers to take advantage of every possible legitimate deduction, such as sales taxes, interest payments, contributions, and particularly medical expenses. Where there is a question involving possible differences between the itemized deductions and the flat 10 per cent allowable, we suggest taxpayers compute both ways.

"Actually many taxpayers will find it profitable to prepare a table based on their income and expense records even before receiving their W-2 withholding certificates for taxpayer's earned income. When the W-2 arrives, completion of the return can be just a matter of moments.

"A very large percentage of taxpayers will find that they owe little or nothing and may easily dispose of their obligation to Uncle Sam quite early in the filing period and get the whole matter behind them. This will help them and it will certainly help us to do a better and more efficient job. We are making every attempt to extend full taxpayer cooperation and ask all taxpayers who can, to do as much for us," Mr. Knox said.

High School Speech Contest to Mark Centennial Year

Ten District Winners to Be Named to Compete in State Final Contest

A statewide high school speech contest was announced Wednesday in connection with creation of a statue of Maria L. Sanford, Minnesota educator, whose likeness will be placed in Statuary Hall in the nation's Capitol.

Miss Evelyn Raymond of Minneapolis is working on a statue of Miss Sanford, one-time University of Minnesota professor who became known as Minnesota's "Apostle of Culture." The statue is to be completed by August 15.

The Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs, with cooperation of the Centennial Maria L. Sanford Committee, the state department of education and the state contest committee of the Minnesota Association of Secondary Schools, is conducting the speech contest.

Purpose is to find a 10, 11 or 12th grade student to recite the Maria Sanford "Apostrophe to the Flag" when the statue is unveiled in Washington. Miss Sanford delivered her "Apostrophe to the Flag" at the opening of the Daughters of the American Revolution congress in Washington the night before she died in 1920.

Mrs. Kermit V. Haugan, (7421 Lyndale Avenue South) Richfield, MFWC president, said each school will hold its own contest and 10 district winners will be named to compete in finals in the Twin Cities a date before the close of the current school year. The winner will be chosen on a basis of projection to the audience, speech mechanics, appreciation of thought and emotional content and directness and simplicity, Mrs. Haugan said.

Individual school winners' names must be sent to Mrs. D. J. Halpern, MFWC Education Chairman, Brewster, Minnesota, before February 15.

Mrs. Clifford Vad of Goodridge Back from Washington

Mrs. Clifford Vad of Goodridge returned Saturday, Jan. 18 from Washington, D. C. where she discussed farm legislation with congressmen from this area and visited other government offices. She made the trip in company with about 90 other members of the Farmers Union in Minnesota, Montana and North Dakota. They traveled in three chartered buses, arranged by the state headquarters of their organization, and were the first of a series of such delegations who will go to the national capital this winter. Mrs. Vad reports that her week's stay at the national capital was unusually interesting because it was highlighted by the delivery of two Presidential messages—budget and farm—to the Congress. Several farm bills also were introduced in the House and the Senate while the members of the three-state delegation sat in the visitors' gallery.

Northern State Aids 4-H Program

Bank Gives Support to National Foundation

Northern State bank of this city has joined with other Minnesota banks in contributing to the work of the National 4-H Club Foundation, according to George W. Werstlein, vice president.

Minnesota bankers, under the leadership of George S. Henry, vice president of the First National bank of Minneapolis, are taking part in a nation-wide fund raising program in behalf of the work of the 4-H Foundation.

Werstlein said that the Northern State bank has long been interested in 4-H club work locally and is glad to extend its support to the 4-H program nationally through the National 4-H Club Foundation.

In a letter to Werstlein, Jesse W. Tapp, chairman of the board of the Bank of America, and chairman for banks on the Foundation's 4-H builders' council, said, "As bankers, we are aware of the significant accomplishments of the 4-H movement. As chairman for banks in this program, I can assure you the support you have extended to the Foundation will be used to further extend and improve this youth program. The work is most worthwhile."

38,236 Youths Join in Gun Safety Program

A statistical report covering the first complete year of the Minnesota gun safety program was released today by Lee Kuluvar and revealed some interesting totals.

From July 1, 1956 to January 1, 1958, 38,236 youths were given firearms safety training by 2,802 volunteer instructors. It is estimated by Kuluvar that more than 100,000 instructor hours were devoted to the training of these youngsters in over 400,000 student hours.

The report reveals that thirty counties trained more than two percent of their total county populations. Based on the percentage of county population, Lake county led with 4.1% and Pipestone county was runnerup with 3.4%. Gun safety training classes were conducted in all of Minnesota's 87 counties. In 1958 the program's goal is to train an additional 25,000 youths.

Kuluvar urged all eligible youths, who desire the training, to enroll at once and not wait until the hunting seasons start. "Classes are now in full swing and there is plenty of room now for all who wish to qualify," Kuluvar said.

The Schmunks' answered correctly a number of questions in the geography category to earn the cash prize.

The Schmunks explained to Groucho they are the parents of 10 children. Their family includes two sets of twins and a set of triplets. Mrs. Schmunk went on to say the multiple births came as a surprise to them, since their were none, on either side of their families. The triplets were born on Mrs. Schmunks' 34th birthday last Aug. 16. The infants were named Cindy Lou, James Gordon and Douglas Alton. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schmunk make their home at Trail.

WORRY

It is worse than many a disease.
It can make you old before your time.
It can even kill you.
And before it does, it can destroy all your happiness.
We know all that . . . why then, do we worry?
We worry because we have too many fears for our shallow supply of faith.
A man or woman needs faith enough to brush aside his fears.
God is ready to give you all the faith you need.
But you'll never get it worrying all week . . .
In Church next Sunday, you can renew and strengthen your faith. In so doing, you will be able to face life unafraid.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Freeman Talks to Local Group at Breakfast

With 2 Other State Officials, Governor Visits City Friday

At a breakfast meeting held at the Rex Cafe Friday morning, Governor Orville Freeman explained the purpose of the series or reports he is making to the people of the state as a means of informing them on the progress and the problems of state government. "Public information and public understanding are essential to good government" he said.

Introduced by Mayor Orion Beich, Governor Freeman opened the program by reporting on what he termed that state's human resources. He was "hopeful" that a system of regional junior colleges would be established. He was encouraged by a decrease in the patient population in state institutions which he attributed to improved treatment techniques and drugs.

Referring to the disturbing figures on traffic accidents, he stated that while the number of deaths has decreased by one-half in the cities during the past ten years, this decrease has been more than offset by the increases in the rural areas and particularly on local roads.

He attributed this to inadequate marking and blind intersections, along with excessive speeds on roads that often are not built or maintained for fast driving. He urged increased interest in this problem by local citizens and officials.

In his closing remarks, following short talks by Dr. George Selke, Commissioner of conservation, and Arthur Hansen, securities commissioner, Governor Freeman referred to improved administrative procedures and tax problems. He was critical of the legislature for failing to act favorably on the recommendation of the tax study committee, which, he said, would have resulted in needed changes in our tax structure.

Dr. Selke expressed his concern about the special problems of this area due to excessive moisture. He referred to the beaver problem as one which had been getting out of control. Beaver and agriculture do not mix, he said. Following his talk he met with a group of farmers and officials from eastern Marshall county to discuss their drainage problems.

Mr. Hanson referred to conditions in this area as he had found them in the survey he conducted for the governor. Several state agencies are providing some assistance for needy farmers by special work assignments, he stated, and expressed the hope that more liberal policies by some federal agencies would be authorized by congress.

Marshall Co. ASC Meetings Planned

Series of 8 Meetings Now Being Arranged

The Marshall county ASC committee and agricultural extension office have made tentative plans to hold several educational meetings throughout the county during the month of February. These meetings will be concerned with the changes in the Soil Bank rules and also the newly adopted agriculture conservation payment practices (ACP) for this year.

The county community committee men will meet on February 10 at Warren to adopt the new ACP practices. The following day it is hoped that the first public education meeting can be held.

It was decided by the ASC committee and the extension staff that time was too short to hold meetings in every town in the county. However, after careful consideration the group decided on eight different communities fairly equally distributed across the county to make the least travel possible for anyone wishing to attend.

A list of the towns, meeting places and time of the meeting will be arranged for next week's publication.

Rev. T. J. Weltzin of Viking spent Thursday afternoon visiting with August Anderson at the Ofstedahl Rest Home.

Front Line Men in Dairy Day Promotion

The importance of the contribution that is made by the extension service personnel in the success of the annual Dairy Day promotion was stressed at the annual meeting of the Northwest Dairy Improvement association annual meeting held here Thursday afternoon.

They are the front line organizers and the final result depends largely how well they have taken care of the preliminaries, Lew Conlon, American Dairy Association representative told the group.

March on Polio Slated in City on Wednesday

200 Local Women to Canvass Residence Districts at 6:30

The participation of 200 local women, representing all organizations in the community, is being solicited to assist in the annual Mothers' March on Polio to be conducted in the Thief River Falls residential areas Wednesday evening, January 29, starting at 6:30, Mrs. Harold C. Rasmussen, chairman, stated today.

The women are asked to meet at the municipal Auditorium not later than 6:30, and will return there after completing their canvass. Mrs. Rasmussen added that members of the Chamber of Commerce will supply cars to transport the solicitors.

It was revealed that the Mothers' March staged thruout the nation last year raised 31.57 per cent of all money raised to combat polio.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis announced that all 3,100 of the organization's local chapters will engage in the program of arranging and financing the additional care of thousands of polio victims who need it to make life worth living.

March of Dimes funds will also be used in 1958 to continue and expand important studies in the field of virus research which may lead to preventives of many other virus diseases.

"The end of the era of epidemic polio," said Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation, "marks the beginning of an even more important, broader, more challenging era of achievement for the March of Dimes. The rehabilitation of polio patients is the first step toward our greater goal."

'58 Northwest Dairy Day Is Set Thursday for Tuesday, June 10

Preparations for northwestern Minnesota's ninth annual Dairy Day were authorized Thursday afternoon when, following a meeting of representatives of sponsoring organizations, the officers and directors agreed upon a tentative program. The eleven-county junior dairy show and princess contest will be held as usual on the Second Tuesday of June, which this year will be June 10.

Minnesota's centennial will be taken into consideration in the planning, and the progress of the dairy industry in the state, and especially in northwestern Minnesota, will be dramatized. Members of the state American Dairy Association committee will be invited to meet here at that time and William Moscrip, long-time leader of the industry in Minnesota, will be invited to attend as the honor guest and to participate in the judging.

At Thursday's meeting movies of the 1957 Dairy Day were presented. Re-elected as directors were Les Ihle and J. M. Roche of Thief River Falls; Irving Meade and Clifford Skime of Roseau; and Chester Traaseth of Bagley. New directors are Earl Glidden of Hallock and James Salveson of Goodridge.

At the directors meeting all of the present officers were reelected, including Stuart McLeod, president; Gil Thompson of Ada, vice president; J. M. Roche, secretary; and Elmer Bratsch of Thief River Falls, treasurer.

The treasurer's report revealed that 1957 receipts totalled $5,297.50, and expenses were $4,124.73, leaving a balance for the year's operation of $1,172.77. All of the receipts were contributions from sponsoring organization in the following amounts: Thief River Falls businesses, $2,625.00; area creameries, $1,560.00; area banks, $702.50; Red River Dairymen's Association, $150.00, and Region 1 of the American Dairy Association, $200.00.

Lew Conlon, manager of the Minnesota Dairy Industry Committee, of St. Paul, and an associate director of the Northwest Dairy Improvement Association, guiding spirit and regular master of ceremonies of Dairy Day, suggestions for the 1958 program, reported on general problems of the dairy industry.

Robt. Netteland, St. Olaf Student, Winner in Debate

A local student at St. Olaf college was on a two-man debate team that won first place trophy honors in a Midwest freshman tournament Jan. 18 at River Falls, Wisc. The winners, who were undefeated in five rounds of debate were Harlan Hahn from Osage, Iowa, and Robert Netteland of Thief River Falls. It still took a judge's decision to hand them the trophy since there were five undefeated teams at the end of the day's tournament. But they won over the others on an accumulated point system.

All good things come to an end, they say. More fortunately, bad things eventually blow over. We noted this era-ending sign in the front window of a Bay Area business establishment: All Presley records—two hits." So be it.—Coos Bay (Oreg.) World.

With almost two full years remaining, Natalie Wood may establish a new Hollywood record for starring pictures for an actress under 20 years of age.

Her latest is "Bombers B-52," in CinemaScope and WarnerColor which is now showing at the Falls Theatre. The Warner Bros. star has more motion picture and television credits at present than many actresses twice her age. If she continues her current pace of three or four pictures and five or six TV appearances a year, she will have chalked up the phenomenal total of 50 starring pictures by the time she reaches voting age.

Asks Early Filing U. S. Tax Returns

District Director Asks Cooperation of Public

While the Internal Revenue Service expects the majority of federal income taxpayers who are due refunds to file early in the current tax collecting season, it would also appreciate the cooperation by similar early filing of those taxpayers who owe little or nothing in additional tax over what they may have already paid through withholding deductions.

This plea for taxpayer help to his office was made today by District Director A. R. Knox, who reminded taxpayers that all returns should be sent to the District Director of Internal Revenue, St. Paul 1, Minnesota.

"As is suggested by our instruction booklet," Mr. Knox said, "we would like to again urge taxpayers who have incurred expenses of a deductible character during 1957 to compute their tax status both ways, that is, by estimating on the standard deduction basis and by itemizing authorized deductions to find which method will be most beneficial to them.

"Early filing that follows this method enables the taxpayer to be more certain of his seasonal or annual budget. It helps by enabling us to receive and process our thousands of returns more systematically, and more efficiently. It is a form of taxpayer cooperation which our Government thoroughly appreciates."

Heart Fund Drive in State to Open Saturday, Feb. 1

Campaign to Raise Total of $505,000 to Continue During Entire Month

The Minnesota Heart Association will send 39,000 Heart Fund volunteers into action throughout Minnesota's 87 counties Saturday as the 8th annual Heart Fund appeal is launched. Lloyd N. Bennes is local chairman of the campaign.

State goal during the Feb. 1-28 drive will be $505,000. Public contributions will be invested in Heart Association programs of research, education, and community service.

F. Patrick Hennessy, state campaign chairman, called the outlook "outstanding" for a successful campaign. He said Minnesota was gaining national stature for its ability to raise funds for Heart Association work.

In a campaign eve statement, Hennessy called on volunteers for another "total effort" to combat our society's leading cause of death and disability.

"Heart disease caused 38 percent of all deaths in Minnesota during 1956," he said. "Far too many of the victims were under 65 years of age and many more were in the prime of life. We can reduce this toll through concentrated effort. Funds for the Heart Association are an essential part of the attack".

Bulk of Heart Fund contributions are spent on heart research into the causes and cures of coronary attacks, high blood pressure, rheumatic fever, and hardening of the arteries.

For the first time, the Heart Fund drive is being conducted independently throughout the state. The Minnesota Association of Life Underwriters has again provided key leadership in organizing the drive.

Sen. Thye Asks Aid for Small Firms in Disaster Area

Seeks Law Pertaining Making Disaster Loans to Smaller Companies

Senator Edward J. Thye appeared before the Senate banking and currency committee to urge "the earliest possible enactment" of legislation to authorize the making of disaster loans to small business concerns in an area officially proclaimed a disaster area due to excessive rainfall.

Ranking minority member of the Senate small business committee, Thye said that a large number of small firms in farming areas are in "serious difficulty" as a result of floods and rainfall. He cited particularly dealers in farm implements, fertilizers, seed, feed, tractor and combine fuel and other supplies and services essential to agriculture.

Thye asserted that farmers to whom these concerns have extended credit are now unable to meet their obligations because their crops have been ruined. This had led to a virtual standstill in sales and the dealers being caught with mounting inventories and no means of financing.

"Our farmers in these areas must have immediate help to put them on a cash basis during the planting and harvesting season," the Minnesota senator declared," and the small business men cannot be expected to extend themselves further as a credit agency for the farmers' open accounts."

Pointing out that the small business administration presently makes disaster loans to small firms which suffer economic loss resulting from drought, Senator Thye said in conclusion that he could see no reason to grant financial relief in the case of inadequate rainfall and deny it in the case of excessive rainfall.

Legume Institute at Roseau Friday

Speakers Will Include 9 'U' of M. Farm Scientists

The seventh annual Legume Institute will open at 9:30 a.m. Friday, January 31, in the Roseau municipal auditorium with at least nine University of Minnesota agricultural scientists, who have been engaged in actual research or problems of legumes, pollination ,insect and weed control and soils in the Northwestern Minnesota area, participating.

The morning session will be devoted primarily to pollination, plant breeding, cultural practices and soils. The afternoon session, beginning at 1:30, will be devoted to diseases of legumes and production of certified seed, and a discussion by M. F. Kernkamp on the Minnesota experiment station.

A. R. Lee, a member of the Northern Minnesota legume and grass seed research committee, will summarize research done and its effects on the local agricultural economy. His summary will conclude the meeting. A question and answer period, with University scientists on hand to provide answers, will also be held.

The institute will be of vital importance not only to farmers engaged in producing legumes, but to beemen as well. Past research has shown that yields of legumes have been many times the present average when pollination has been adequate and proper control of insects and adequate fertilization have been provided.

Scientists have found that bees are the most effective means of pollination and the latest research data on the use of bees will be presented at the Institute.

State Bankers Form Development Corp.

The newly formed Minnesota Development corporation held its first board of directors meeting Friday, January 21, in Minneapolis at the Federal Reserve Bank.

The corporation is the result of a law passed at the 1957 state legislative session permitting private business and industry to establish means of assisting new or existing businesses in acquiring risk capital for the establishment or expansion of business.

The corporation was formed through the efforts of the Minnesota Bankers Association in cooperation with business and industrial leaders of the state and the department of business development.

The board of directors elected the following corporation officers: Walter M. Ringer, Sr., chairman of the board of Foley Manufacturing company, Minneapolis, is president and Carl T. Bremicker, vice president of Northern States Power company, Minneapolis, is the executive vice president.

William M. Howley, director of the Austin Business and Development corporation, Austin, and Otto F. Oswald, President, New Ulm Laundry, New Ulm were elected vice presidents.

The treasurer is Harry C. Benson, Jr., vice president, Midland National Bank, Minneapolis, and the secretary is Jule M. Hannaford, Minneapolis attorney.

According to Ringer, the corporation is set up to help meet the needs of small and growing businesses for medium and long-term funds by channeling a portion of the resources of existing financial institutions into marginal loans and investments.

Ringer stated that it is becoming recognized more and more that Minnesota depends for its industrial prosperity largely upon growth from within by new and expanding businesses and that there is a deserving need for assistance for medium and long-term credit and equity capital among growing small concerns. Although the unfilled need exists in only a minority of businesses, these cases are frequent enough to make the problem important.

Minnesota bankers and business leaders, realizing that a gap exists in our present financial system, have chosen to take the initiative and establish a program within the framework of our existing private financial system rather than looking to the government for help.

The Minnesota Development Corporation aims to channel some of the resources of existing financial institutions into the risk area and specialize in taking risks with new and growing small businesses which financial institutions are not able to do.

The law permits the corporation to sell stock at $50 per share up to a maximum of $1,000,000 to provide equity capital and funds with which to start operations. 5,000 shares must be sold before the corporation can start business. It is anticipated that business firms and individuals will purchase the stock because of the indirect benefits the corporation will provide for themselves and the general economy of the area by increasing employment and attracting new business.

It is expected to be a couple of months before the Minnesota corporation will be in a position to consider any loans. However, stock sale will begin as soon as approval is received from the Security and Exchange Commission in Washington, D. C., and the Securities Department of the State of Minnesota.

Winona bankers, S. J. Kryzsko has headed the committee which planned the corporation. The committee worked closely with James W. Clark, commissioner of the department of business development for the state of Minnesota.

In the initial stages the corporation will office at 315 WCCO Building, Minneapolis, which is the office of the Minnesota Bankers Association. As soon as possible, a permanent staff and headquarters will be selected.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

Can you remember way back to World War I? There's a surprisingly large proportion of our population that can't remember that far back for the simple reason they hadn't been born then.

As one of our World War II has-beens I've been mighty surprised to discover an awful lot of grown-up folks can't even remember that fracas. They were babies then, or small tots at most, and have grown up, got an education and in many cases have married and had families.

There's no moral to this that we know of—unless it's to the effect that the older one gets, the faster one gets older, or something like that.

World War I ended in late 1918, World War II ended in late 1945. By using simple arithmetic one can find that it has been 13 years since the end of the last major fracas. At the end of a similiar period of years after World War I we were in one of the worst depressions in the world's history, in 1931.

Not too many people can remember all this. The depression is filed back in the dim recesses of memory even of those of us who lived through those times.

With talk of a recession going around nowadays we wonder if history is going to repeat itself in the next year or so. We're afraid a lot of youngsters born since the last depression would find things pretty tough if history does repeat itself.

The point here is that, despite the Korean squabble, today's young people have had it pretty soft since World War II. Things haven't been so very good in these parts for the past few years, of course, but over the nation as a whole our youngsters don't know the meaning of hard times. Could we take aonther depression or do we lack the intestinal fortitude to endure as we did in the Thirties?

Of course conditions then were different from those now in many ways. People were more conditioned to hard times in those days but even so, the depression hurt bad. Would one now completely upset our applecart?

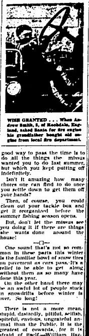
What's your current pastime to while away the long winter evenings? Some well-adjusted people don't have any trouble, others fret until summer. One good way to pass the time is to do all the things the missus wanted you to do last summer, but which you kept putting off indefinitely.



WISH GRANTED . . . When Andrew Smith, 5, of Rochdale, England, asked Santa for fire engine his grandfather bought old engine from local fire department.

Isn't it amazing how many chores one can find to do once you settle down to get them off your hands?

Then, of course, you could clean out your tackle box and get it reorganized before the summer fishing season opens.

But, don't let the missus see you doing it if there are things she wants done around the house!

One sound that's not so common in these parts this winter is the familiar howl of snow tires on pavement as cars pass. It's a relief to be able to get along without them as so many have done this year.

On the other hand there may be an awful lot of people stuck in snowdrifts before winter is over. So long!

There is not a more mean, stupid, dastardly, pitiful, selfish, spiteful, envious, ungrateful animal than the Public. It is the greatest of cowards, for it is afraid of itself.—William Hazlitt.

There never was a good war or a bad peace.—Benjamin Franklin.

BEYOND THE LAW

By Allen Wishert

CALICO GLEN, nestling among hills of various colored rock formations, was a village too small to support a police department, so, they had compromised on two law enforcement officers, day and night constables, not that either was really needed as there hadn't been an act of infringement for more than twenty years.

The two constable., Larkin Smith and Lazuras Humphrey was appointed by Judge Tuggleberry, the first official act he had performed in years. He read the oath. With raised right hands they swore to abide by it, although, neither had grasped it's meaning.

Smith, the day constable spent most of his hours sitting on the whittled bench in front of the general store. Humphrey, the night watchman, whiled away the long, silent hours with the ticket agent, who was also the telegraph operator and baggageman, over at the depot.

One Summer's evening while making his rounds, he was brought to a tense halt beneath a large Live Oak that shaded him from the moon's rays. He could see and hear a full-fledged robbery being committed.

Failing to understand the oath he had taken, he wasn't sure this sort of pilfering came within his jurisdiction. The boy concerned being a nephew, he had scruples in exerting his authority, although he was convinced the lad was striving to steal something, evidently, belonging to another.

Many times Lazuras had remarked:

"I like the night shift. After sundown I run into some of the dog-gonest things that never happen durin' daylight."

The night passed without further incident. Going off duty, making out his report the next morning, he failed purposely to mention the event he had witnessed. He had committed the same offense in his youth, and had gotten away with it. He hoped his nephew would be as successful.

A couple of evenings later, Lazuras encountered his nephew, Jerry Sheldon, just as he, Jerry, was about to enter through a gate into Mary Wilson's front yard. Mary possessed the article Jerry was trying to purloin. She had informed him that her heart belonged to another.

"How's it goin', Jerry?" asked Lazuras. "Have any hopes of beatin' the other fellows time?"

"How did you know I had a rival, Uncle Laz?"

"What's his name?"

"I've never met him, he doesn't live here, but Mary said he was a fellow by the name of John Doe. Ever meet him?"

"Know him well, run into him almost everyday," replied Lazuras. It was an exertion to keep a straight face. "He has a pal named Joe Doaks. You won't have any trouble gettin' rid of him, he and Joe are often brought into court."

Lazuras should have explained to Jerry, but he was enjoying the play just as it was. Instead of explaining, he patted Jerry on the shoulder and urged him on in his undertaking, the stealing of Mary's heart from John Doe.

Going to the depot, Lazuras resumed his "settin'" to wait further developments.

The expected development wasn't long in arriving. The next morning after signing off duty, Lazuras was curious to learn how Jerry had fared. Jerry was on the front porch, and from the bewildered expression, Lazuras knew he hadn't attained his cherished goal.

"All right, young fellow, remember, I'm the law. Spill it."

"Uncle Laz, what is a nonentity?"

"Funny thing, I looked up that word once. Mr. Webster says it is something that 'ain't.'"

"Mary said that was what John Doe is."

"In that case, my boy, there 'ain't' no law to hinder you from takin' what you want."

Employment Averaged 912,979 During Year

The average monthly non-farm employment in Minnesota in 1957 was 912,575 workers, says a year-end summary issued this week by Frank T. Starkey, Commissioner of the Department of Employment Security.

The foregoing figure is 12,900 more workers, or 1½% higher than the 1956 average. Last year's employment ranged from a high of 951,818 in September to a low of 873,289.

The state's non-farm employment in 1957 started off with about 23,000 more workers in January of 1957 than had been reported for January of 1956. Except for June, 1957, when the monthly employment figure dipped below the corresponding month of 1956, when unseasonably wet and cold weather delayed the normal beginning of the canning season, the gain each month over the previous year narrowed steadily, until at the end of the year, employment had slipped below the last month of 1956 by about 2,100 workers.

Major industries recording the biggest employment gain over the previous year were mining, (3.9%), finance, insurance and real estate, (4%), service, (3.2%), and government, (2.3%). The big gain in mining is due to the steel dispute which curtailed mining operations in 1956.

Major industries recording decreases were construction, (-1.9%), transportation, (-2%), and retail trade, (-1%).

Arizona Girl and Utah Bride Win Trip To Europe in Wool-Sewing Contest

Joy Ladawn Trout, 16 year old high school student, and Joyce Johnson, 20 year old wife and bank employee, model their garments which won two week tour of the fashion capitals of Europe.

PHOENIX, Ariz. — It's a trip to Paris, London and Rome this coming summer for Joy Ladawn Trout, 16, of Tolleson, Arizona, and Joyce Johnson, 20, of Salt Lake City. The trip is theirs as winners of the Grand Prize in the junior and senior divisions of the eleventh annual national "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest held here.

Joy, a high school student, won the European trip with her entry of a brown suit of wool flannel skirt and tweed jacket.

Joyce, wife of a college student and bookkeeper in a Salt Lake City bank, took the top prize with an ensemble consisting of a wool coat and wool jersey dress.

The young ladies led 34 other state finalists to receive the two-week trip via Pan American World Airways. They will enjoy a stay in New York and extensive tours of the fashion capitals of Europe as guests of the Wool Bureau and Pendleton Mills.

Several thousand girls between the ages of 13 and 22 enter the contest each year in 18 western and midwestern states. The contest, which is designed to show young girls how easy it is to sew with wool, offers prizes totaling $45,000. Following state-wide eliminations at which state champions are selected, the top home sewing experts appear in the National Fashion Review which is a highlight of the annual convention of the National Wool Growers Association whose Women's Auxiliary cosponsors the contest with The Wool Bureau.

Other national award winners announced at the finals are:

First prize, junior division: Yvonne Shaffer, 16, Arickaree, Colorado — an automatic console sewing machine by Singer Sewing Machine Company.

First prize, senior division: Nancy Ann Knopp, 22, Studio City, California — $300 scholarship by Forstmann Woolen Company.

Second prize, junior division: Judith Ann Maughan, 16, Preston, Idaho — $200 scholarship by Pendleton.

Second prize, senior division: Rosemary Hammer, 18, Boise, Idaho — an automatic console Singer sewing machine.

Third prize, junior division: Jeanne Annette Zalac, 17, Virginia City — $100 U. S. savings bond from "Sag-No-More" Jersey by Wyner.

Third prize, senior division: Shirley Reed, 20, Cheyenne, Wyoming — $100 U. S. savings bond by Stroock & Co., Inc.

Fourth prize, junior division: Roberta Pekley, 16, Vancouver, Wash. — $100 U. S. savings bond by Standard Felt Company.

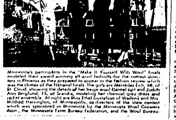
Fourth prize, senior division: Rosalyn M. Dunklau, 18, Arlington, Nebraska — $100 U. S. savings bond by Producers Livestock Marketing Association of Ogden, Utah.

A special award, the $500 John R. Clark scholarship was presented to Kay Pfeiffer, 16, of Kenton, Ohio, by Coats and Clark, Inc. for having the most fashionable garment in the national finals. Another special award, a $500 scholarship for outstanding home sewing skill and academic standing in high school was presented by the Colorado Women's College to JoAnn Wilson, 17, of Hudson, Iowa.

The 31 other national finalists received dress lengths of all-wool fabric from Strathmore Mills.

The 34 finalists traveled to Phoenix as guests of the F. W. Woolworth Co. Their five-day stay included special dinners and lunches, selected entertainment, and sightseeing tours of Arizona and parts of Mexico.

Minnesota Contestants Model Their Fashions



Minnesota's participants in the "Make It Yourself With Wool" finals modeled their award-winning all-wool fashions for the contest directors in Phoenix as they prepared to appear in the fashion review which was the climax of the National finals. The girls are Mercedes Eich, 18, of St. Cloud, showing the details of her beige wool flannel suit and Judith Ann Berglund, 15, of Scandia, modeling her charcoal grey dress and jacket ensemble. At right are Miss Ethel Gustafson of Wadena and Mrs. Mildred Harrington, of Minneapolis, co-directors of the state contest which was sponsored in Minnesota by the Minnesota Wool Growers Assn., the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, and the Wool Bureau.

The WORLD OUTDOORS

By Mike Hennessey

THE world-famous Kenai National Moose Range in Alaska is caught in the center being threatened of an oil bonanza which recalls the frenzied days of the territory's gold rush.

Established by an Executive Order in 1941, the wildlife refuge is famous for its monarch moose, the largest and most magnificent of all species of North American moose, and for its big brown bears, Dall sheep, mountain goats, and other large and small animals.

An oil strike in one part of the area this past summer has brought visions of quick dollars to citizens and oil companies alike. Businessmen and politicals with an eye to prospective expansion, are denouncing Federal regulations and calling for the speedy removal of all restrictions on even those parts of the Kenai that are ruled out geologically.

Under fire are the Department of the Interior's proposed regulations for the control of oil and gas leasing on Federal wildlife lands. The new regulations would permit oil and gas leasing on less critical portions of some types of wildlife lands, and drilling would be allowed on a limited basis in other sections when it is shown that oil resources belonging to the United States are being tapped through peripheral drainage. Oil and gas operators would have to comply with protective requirements established by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Bureau of Land Management.

Although the proposed regulations would permit the orderly use of wildlife lands where oil or gas is present in commercial quantities, the most important effect of the new order would be to protect from unwise use those lands that have been set aside and are being managed for wildlife.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mollie McIlvain La Mar, Elmo, Missouri: I was born March 16, 1860 and I wonder how many can remember the yoke—a piece of timber hollowed to fit two draught oxen together. I can remember the yoke that hung on the side of the first house my parents lived in when they came to Green township in 1860.

After they sold or traded the oxen, the yoke still hung on the side of the log house. Later they built a bigger house. When I grew older, I loved to hear my parents tell of the hardships they had endured in bringing all their belongings in that one covered wagon. And, I remember my father riding up to the house and calling to mother to come and see what he had brought. Of course, we all went, discovering he had a young deer across the saddle of his horse.

I remember when my older brothers went to school and our maternal grandfather was their teacher. He lived to be 83 years old and taught for 60 years. He also taught music, both vocal and instrumental, and how we loved for him to come and see us. I was the 8th child and only girl in a family of eight children and am the only one living now.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Rev. Robert H. Harper

Barking At the Moon

ONE night a little black dog went out and began barking at the moon. And the moon kept shining on and shining on.

It is interesting to see how men are going out to search for the lesser moons that are whirling about the earth. And, while these lines are being written, wise men are predicting the break-up of at least one sputnik and its flaming demise in friction with the earth's atmosphere. And the moon that shines 240,000 miles away keeps shining on and shining on.

And now a rocket is to be sent up to reach and encircle the moon. What will be found on the other side of the moon, and how the rocket will get back to earth intact, nobody knows. And the moon will keep shining and shining on.

And before a rocket encircles the moon, the present generation will all be dead, and the moon will keep shining and shining on.

"Be still," said the lord, "and know that I am God." If we would like to climb some tower of Bable that from its top we may look into heaven and see how the wheels go round, we may come, as in days of old, to the confusion of tongues. Perhaps we have already reached that state.

Week-end Brings Light Snowfall

Snowplows Swing Into Action In City Today

Light snow over the week-end, along with moderate winds brought out snow plows in the city Monday morning as street department crews work to clear city streets of the slight week-end snow accumulation.

Some light snow also fell early Monday morning but the fall will probably end today with skies becoming partly cloudy tonight.

Temperatures since Thursday ranged from 4 below that morning to a high of 33 Saturday, which also won high honors for the whole period. The Saturday low was 20 above. Snowfall amounted to slightly more than a trace.

The KTRF forecast calls for scattered light snow ending today with partly cloudy skies to be the rule tonight and Tuesday.

Cooler temperatures are expected today and tonight, with little temperature change Tuesday. High expected today is 18 while tonight's low will range from 0 to 5 above.

Northerly winds to 20 m.p.h. will prevail today, decreasing tonight.

Prowler 5 Wins at Detroit Lakes

With Jimmy Bennes clearing the rebounds off the defensive board, and with Phil and Mickey Hanson sparking the offense, the Prowlers pulled away from a sturdy and piston-legged band of Lakers in the second half to score a 58 to 46 inter-regional basketball win in a game played at Detroit Lakes on Saturday night. In the Prowlers' second half splurge, Phil Hanson notched twelve points while Mickey Hanson dropped in four fielders.

The Prowlers will meet the Warren Ponies here on Friday night, Jan. 31st, in a district conference tilt.

The Lakers, with Rollis Mann and Mike Parker doing the scoring, sprinted away to an 8 to 0 lead in the opening minutes of the game on Saturday night. The Prowlers, with a field goal and making seven of nine tries from the free throw lead, erased much of the Laker lead to trail by a 13 to 9 score at the end of the first period.

Parker's free throw and field goal gave the Lakers a 16 to 9 margin opening the second period, but then the Prowlers, with Dave Rasmussen, Phil Hanson, and Ken DeLap scoring, picked up up nine straight points to take over the lead. The two teams exchanged the lead several times, with Prowlers forging ahead to hold a 28 to 26 advantage at the intermission.

Late in the third period, with 2:20 to play and the score tied at 34-all, the Prowlers dropped in four field goals while holding the Lakers to a free throw to gain a 42 to 35 lead entering the final quarter.

In the final period, the Prowlers superior heighth advantage permitted the locals to control the play.

The cramped conditions on the Laker court caused numerous body contact fouls to be called, and the Prowlers lost Rasmussen and DeLap via the personal foul route. Rasmussen left the game in the third period, and DeLap trotted to the bench with 2:26 of the game remaining.

Thieves Suffer 1st Defeat of Season to Roseau Sunday 7 to 4

Getting a pair of one-period three-goal performances, from Bob Harris in the first period and Frank Nystrom in the third period, the Roseau Cloverleafs, by a 7 to 4 score, defeated the Thieves in a Northwest hockey league played on the Arena ice sheet Sunday afternoon. The defeat was the first suffered by the Thieves this season, but the local club continues to lead the league, holding a four-point advantage over the Leafs, who are in second place.

In a preliminary game on Sunday afternoon, the Roseau Peewees defeated the local V.F.W. midgets, 6 to 0.

Roseau racked up three quick goals in the first period to build up an early lead, shoving three tallies past goalie Jack McGill in the south net in the space of nineteen seconds. Harris hit the twine at 5:37; Dick Johnson flashed in for a goal at 5:45; and Harris, on a solo rush, beat McGill at 5:56. Harris tallied again at the 18:40 mark to complete his "hat trick."

Darry Durgin scored the Thieves' lone goal in the first period; and Monty Markstrom brought the locals within reach of the Leafs with a goal at the 3:31 mark of the second period.

Frank Nystrom, the Roseau rightwing, banged in three goals to open the third period scoring, and "insure" the game for the Leafs. Sid Vraa and Durgin closed out the game scoring by notching Thieves' goals at the 9:35 and 11:29 marks of the final stanza.

The Thieves will remain out of league competition until Saturday, Feb. 8th, when they entertain the Crookston Pirates on the Arena ice.

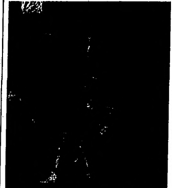
Hanson Scores in Friday Game



Phil Hanson, No. 40, nets two points at a crucial stage of Friday night's game with the Little Green Wave of East Grand Forks Central High, as Dick Stallmo (55) Wave star, fails to stop the shot. Looking on are Jim Bennes (54) of the Prowlers, and Perry Blanchette of East Grand Forks. Outcome of the game was not decided until the final seconds of the game with the score 44-42 in the Prowlers' favor when the buzzer sounded.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

The Roaring Game

The "roaring game", curling, is in progress every weekend night at the Fair Grounds ice sheet, and spectators are welcome to come and witness the matches. It apparently is an engrossing sport.

The twenty teams in the men's division have been divided into two leagues, the American and the National, and an inspection of the rink rosters reveals that most of the veteran curlers are included in the American league. That league should provide some fire-works before the season is concluded.

Entitled to be ranked as the American league favorite, by virtue of its city championship title, is the Wally Tunberg rink. This outfit, skipped by Wally, has Len Furuseth, Cliff Jorde, and Curtis Swanson in its lineup.

But Wally will have all kinds of competition for a number of the rinks are holdovers from last season's play, and included in this group is the Bill Rupprecht rink, with Everett and Jerry Amundgaard and Alan Iverson; the Lawrence Lubitz rink with Jim Muzzy, Clebert Molstad, and Harold Halvorson; the Hank Thorson rink with Bob Benke, George Pukari, and Ken Wiseth; and the Alan Thompson rink with Ardel Linden, Phil Beadle, and Glen Buster Anderson.

The "battle" for last place in the American league will undoubtedly be a duel between the Orvis Olen rink—Olen, Bud Kelly, Jub Prichard, and Lloyd Brunsberg—and the Carl Sundstrom rink — Sundstrom, Jack Barnick, Tony Madunich, and Ray Jarvi.

Interesting Item

Here's an interesting item taken from the current issue of the nationally-circulated "Sports Illustrated", and it's titled "How to Score." The one-paragraph item states: "Marv Jorde, University of Minnesota hockey player, complained of poor vision as he returned to the bench after scoring a goal against Michigan State. 'Things seem kind of fuzzy,' he complained. Inspection showed why: Jorde wears contact lenses, which is not unusual except that he had put two in one eye, none in the other. Mistake corrected, Jorde returned to the ice, scored no more goals."

Another Mark for Art

We had barely finished reporting that Art Johnson had set a new individual scoring mark for Concordia college basketball player, a 36-point performance against St. John's college a week or so ago, when, lo and behold, Art comes up with a 37-point game this week in leading the Cobbers to an 82 to 77 win over the M.S.T.C. Dragons.

This 82 to 77 win gave the Cobbers the Fargo-Moorhead college title, for previously the Cobbers had taken the measure of the North Dakota A.C. Bison.

That Art has developed into a "big man" on the Concordia college campus can be gleaned from these excerpts taken from a feature article in the college paper, "The Concordian". Says Art's coach, Sonny Gulsvig, "Art is the best center in the league, and if we could only help him by hitting from the outside he'd average at least 25 points a game."

When asked about his biggest basketball thrill, Art replied, "My biggest basketball thrill was when we beat Hamline two years ago, and broke that string of consecutive conference losses."

Adds the article: "Art is also popular with non-athletes. His intensity on the basketball floor is matched by his hard work in such 'extra-curricular' activites as studying, going to classes, etc. He is working towards a double major in matematics and economics and says that he hopes to go into graduate work, possibly at the Colorado School of Mines or New Mexico."

Continues the article, "It is rare indeed that one finds a great athlete, a good student, and a really nice guy, all rolled into one extremely modest human being."

And this conclusion, "The general consensus around the campus after his record-breaking scoring splurge was, 'It couldn't have happened to a nicer guy'."

Prowler Quintet Edge EGF 44 to 42

Coach Alan Adams' Prowlers outlasted coach Snooks Sullivan's East Grand Forks team on the local court Friday night to rack up a thrilling 44 to 42 win over the Little Green Wave. The game was a Northwest conference and 31st district contest.

The Prowlers after trailing throughout the first two periods, by a 12 to 9 score at the end of the first quarter, and 23 to 22 at the intermission, put together a strong third period, outpointing the East Siders, 11 to 6, to gain a 33 to 29 advantage entering the final eight minutes of play. In that 11-point third period, Ken DeLap looped a pair of corner shots into the east basket, Mickey Hanson nudged in a couple of jump shots, and Phil Hanson flashed in for a lay-up. DeLap added the free throw.

In the fourth period, Dick Hanson scored on a lay-up, and the Prowlers held a 35 to 29 lead. Dick Stallmo dropped in a free throw for the East Siders, and then hit on a jump shot. Phil Hanson, with 6:20 to play, scored a two-pointer; but Paul Havig's free throw, Stallmo's rebound shot, and Dick Raymond's lay-up evened the score at 37-all with 4:29 to play.

Dave Rasmussen shoved the Prowlers into the lead with a close-in shot, only to have Raymond's rebound tie the game into a 39-all knot. Rasmussen, taking a pass from Phil Hanson, drove in to lay-up, and then, seconds later, repeated on another close-in shot. Stallmo floated a hook shot into the basket, paring the lead to two points.

With twenty seconds to play, Perry Blanchette, on a bonus, made his first free throw try, but missed the second. Jim Bennes, fouled on a rebound play, notched the game's final point via the free throw line with 15 seconds to play.

DeLap and Rasmussen hit for double figures for the Prowlers, having 11 and 10 points, respectively. Dick Stallmo and Dick Raymond were the point-getters for Sullivan's club, with Stallmo having 15 points and Raymond 14 points.

At a meeting held this week, the Prowlers elected Ken DeLap and Jim Bennes co-captains of the 1957-58 Prowler cage team.

Cub Pack Den Takes Trip to Mars

At a meeting Thursday of Cub Pack 59 sponsored by Zion Lutheran church, Den No. 19 presented a humorous skit, "Mars Fantasy." The cubs dreamed up a trip to Mars and a meeting with Cub Scouts on the far-off planet. Fuel for the return trip was provided by ground-up Elvis Presley records.

Taking part in the skit were Patrick Fischer, narrator, in the rocket ship; Jeffrey Noel, Paul Stokke and Jon Efteland. Standing are Tuny Noel and Llewellyn Lane.

Den chief is Lynn Olson and den mother is Mrs. Donald Noel.

Apache Named Tribal Chief

Minnesota First in Honey Output

Minnesota is now the number one producer of honey in the United States, the state department of agriculture announced last week.

Byron Allen, commissioner, said that the state moved up from second largest producer in 1957 to edge California for top honors. He noted that California slipped to third with Florida edging into second place.

Minnesota honey, produced in 85 of the state's 87 counties, is marketed primarily outside the state. Allen said that roughly 85 per cent of the product goes to outside markets.

Seed for Farm Crops in Good Supply in '58

There is a good supply of high quality farm crop seed available for 1958 planting, according to Bill Hueg, University of Minnesota extension agronomist.

Supplies are good for corn, soybeans, forage crops and small grains, meaning farmers should have no difficulty getting all the certified seed they want.

Hueg points out that while there will be a good supply of Vernal alfalfa seed, present indications are that it will run 15-17 cents per pound higher in price than Ranger, the other recommended alfalfa variety.

However, Vernal is still the best choice for Minnesota, Hueg says. It yields about a half ton more per acre annually than Ranger, is more resistant to bacterial wilt and can stand Minnesota winters better than Ranger or any other alfalfa variety.

For the first time in many years, there is expected to be little difference in price between certified and non-certified alfalfa seed. That means that for farmers not already using certified seed, this will be a good year to start.

Among seeds of other crops, bromegrass and sweetclover are both expected to be lower in price than last year.

There is also a good supply of birdsfoot trefoil, a relative newcomer in Minnesota seed production. There were about 100,000 pounds of trefoil seed produced in northwest Minnesota and marketed through the Red River Valley Seed Growers' association in 1957. This is the highest production ever for this seed in this state.

For any seed, Hueg advises farmers to buy from established, well-known dealers and to avoid peddlers who may demand extremely high prices for non-certified and often inferior seed. One particular seed to avoid, he says, is a spring wheat variety called "Lee 8 X Kenya Farmer." It comes from Canada and is sold in Minnesota by some peddlers. However, it isn't recommended either in Canada or here, because it has poor milling quality.

TB Association to Get New Director

J. G. Neal to Succeed Dr. E. A. Meyerding

A state educational official will become managing director of the Minnesota Tuberculosis and Health association on April 1, on the retirement of Dr. E. A. Meyerding, who has directed activities of the state Christmas Seal organization for more than a third of a century.

J.G. Neal, supervisor of health, physical, safety and recreation education for the state department of education, has been appointed as Dr. Meyerding's successor, according to an official announcement made this week by the state tuberculosis association's executive committee.

Dr. Meyerding has served as executive secretary of the state organization for 34 years and was also secretary of the Minnesota State Medical association for a 14-year period. He was graduated from the University of Minnesota medical school in 1902.

Mr. Neal, who has held his present position with the state education department since 1950, received his B.S. and M.A. degrees from the University of Minnesota and is now working toward his doctorate.

MINNESOTA CENTENNIAL STORY

CHAPTER FOUR

Skeletons and Warfare

★ It was really long, long ago that the first men lived in Minnesota — probably about 20,000 years ago. The "Minnesota Man", a skeleton of a young girl found in 1931 under what had once been a glacial lake near Pelican Rapids, has given archeologists proof of such primitive peoples. The skeleton known as the "Brown's Valley Man" very likely was a living and breathing human about 12,000 years ago. He used flint tools. Ivory tools were used by some people who lived on the shores of glacial Lake Agassiz about 9,000 years ago.

Such people, it is believed, came over to North America from Asia by way of Bering Strait. They lived at a time when mastodons must have still been roaming the country, when the ice-caps had not completely receded farther north.

More Recent Indians

According to some theories, the most of the prehistoric people in what is now the United States lived considerably south of Minnesota. Indian tribes gradually migrated into the northeast. Eventually some moved westward again, from the east coast into the Ohio river region, and then into the Minnesota area.

Interior of a Burial Mound

When the very first white explorers came to that region west of Lake Superior and along the upper Mississippi, the Sioux or Dakota Indians occupied all the territory.

Mound Builders

Some of the earliest tribes must have been mound-builders. Over 8000 of these mounds containing skeletons and bits of tools and utensils have been found in Minnesota. Most were round or conical. Effigy mounds were built in the shapes of birds, snakes, frogs, buffalo or other animals. These tribes were likely the ancestors of the Sioux.

The Sioux

The earliest Sioux, when the French explorers encountered them, were primarily a stone-age people. They patiently chipped hammers, arrow-heads, knives and spear-blades from stone. Some pottery was made for cooking and storage. Pipes and ornaments were carved from the red pipestone mined in southwestern Minnesota.

The Sioux, proud and fierce, hunted wild game in the forests and on the prairies and fished the lakes and streams of Minnesota for several hundred years. They picked the berries and harvested the wild rice. They boiled maple sap down to sugar. Much of their food was boiled or roasted over an open fire.

The Chippewa

During these same years the Ojibway or Chippewa tribes lived along the southern shore of Lake Superior between Sault Ste. Marie and Chequamegon Bay. "Nadowa", the enemy, hemmed them in on both sides. To the east were the Iroquois who had forced their migration westward. To the west were the warlike Sioux whom they feared.

According to the Indian traditions, the Chippewa had established a village at the lower end of Chequamegon Bay about the time Columbus discovered America. When Radisson and Groseilliers entered Minnesota in the late 1650's, no Chippewa dared enter the region of the Sioux.

However, the Chippewa began to surpass the Sioux in many ways. The Chippewa hunted and fished as the Sioux did. But the Chippewa began using iron and brass kettles, knife blades and other tools made of steel or iron. They became extremely skillful in making light, swift birch-bark canoes. Moreover, their acquaintance with French explorers and fur traders accustomed them to the use of white men's firearms.

Consequently, the Chippewa soon began to do more than make a few raids into the enemy land. They sought furs to trade with the French. For fifty years a bloody guerrilla warfare was waged for the land between Lake Superior and the Mississippi.

Gradually the Chippewa seized the land around Sandy, Leech and Red lakes and moved farther southward and westward. By the time of the Revolutionary War the Sioux held no villages east of the Mississippi above St. Anthony Falls.

Interior of a Sioux Home

Thus it was that the Chippewa took over the forest regions of Minnesota and became known to settlers as the canoe-men. The Sioux clung to the plains regions and became known as horsemen.

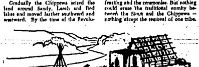
Treaties But Not Peace

Although continual attempts were made by the white people to maintain peaceful relations between the two great tribes of Indians, no success was achieved until the Sioux were driven out completely after the uprising of 1862.

One of the most colorful, and no doubt most tense, gatherings of Sioux and Chippewa must have been that of Prairie du Chien in 1825. Some 5000 Indians of both tribes assembled in their finest finery and most solemn solemnity at the Painted Rock above the town. Boats carrying soldiers and various dignitaries swept down the river, flags flying, drums beating, and guns cracking.

Delegations of the Chippewa and Sioux had been taken to Washington the previous year to impress them with the power of the white man and thus help impose peace. The negotiations at Prairie du Chien resulted in establishing a boundary line between the warring nations. The line extended, from the junction of Goose creek with the Red river, in a ragged southeasterly direction to a point eight miles below Osceola on the St. Croix river.

Other treaties were attempted. No doubt the Indians always enjoyed the feasting and the ceremonies. But nothing could erase the traditional enmity between the Sioux and the Chippewa — nothing except the removal of one tribe.



Life in a Sioux Indian village

This chapter of the Minnesota Centennial story is sponsored by BJORKMAN'S, Northwestern Minnesota's Most Complete Store for Men and Boys

Bjorkman's is in every respect a Thief River Falls institution. Both Cliff and Mrs. Cliff, who was Margaret Brown, were born in Thief River Falls. When they thought they had saved enough money to venture out for themselves in the clothing business they shrugged off the idea that a man couldn't do well in a community where he had broken a few windows as a youngster. They decided Thief River Falls was a good place for them to start a store.

In back of that beginning were not many dollars, but the lack of dollars was offset by a lot of good training in the problems of management and operation. When Cliff graduated from Lincoln high school in 1926 he was employed by the local Penney store, stepping up gradually to the assistant managership. In 1936 he was transferred to the Austin, Minnesota, store, where he served as assistant manager three years.

It was in the Fall of 1939 that he launched his own little business ship, casting off from the security of an assured pay check and opening his own store in Thief River Falls. The name was bigger at that time. It was Bjorkman's Toggery, the bigger name making up for the small quarters it occupied, the south half of the building just completed by Garfield Benson on North Main. In this two-by-four space he spread a small stock of shoes and haberdashery and hoped for customers.

The customers came and the little business prospered. By plowing profits back into merchandise he soon found himself crowded for space. In 1939 he moved to a larger location in the Elks building, the space now occupied by the Junior Shop. Here he remained seven years, and by that time the business required more room again.

To meet the needs of his growing business this time Cliff decided to build a building of his own. He bought the Newell Drug Store location on LaBree and in 1948 construction was started on the substantial building that is the present home of Bjorkman's.

With its main floor and basement loaded with merchandise there is justification for Cliff's claim to having the most complete stock of clothing for men and boys in northwestern Minnesota.

It was in 1938 too that Bjorkman's became a member of the Allied Clothiers, a buying organization that represents 225 men's stores. This organization now operates a jobbing business of its own. Cliff has been active in the association, having served two years as chairman of its promotion committee and he now is a member of the board of directors.

Bjorkman's has played an important part in the development of Thief River Falls as a retail center for this corner of the state.

Much Ado About Nothing?

We have received a longer than usual press release from Senator Hubert Humphrey, informing us that the Senate agriculture committee investigation of charges of "widespread irregularities and mismanagement in the conduct of Minnesota's state ASC farmer-committee elections last fall" has now been completed.

The investigation, made at the request of Senator Humphrey, was based on charges by Governor Freeman, "specifically, that many farmers were sent more than one ballot and second, that the ballot return envelopes were insufficiently identified so that duplicate and unauthorized ballots could not be excluded".

After a county-by-county survey, the investigating committee has now filed a 27 page report, accompanied by a 34 page appendix, finding that the Governor's charges were correct, Senator Humphrey reports.

So what? Why the investigation in the first place, when the charges included no inference of corruption or fraud. And apparently the investigating committee found no evidence of evil in the conduct of these elections, other than the evils of carelessness and probable error.

These elections are conducted by mail, and mailing lists must be based on various conditions involving participation in the program. It is easy to understand why, even under the most careful administration, there would be some duplication in the mailing lists.

The elections are conducted at the local level and controlled completely by local officials, selected by their neighbors. It is only fair to them to keep in mind that errors occur in all elections, and it is not unusual for canvassing boards to discover mistakes.

Senator Humphrey's press release failed to mention one result of this investigation that we think is noteworthy. Because of errors in mailing lists and identifications special elections were ordered in several counties. In no county did such special elections result in a change and the same local officers who had been elected to administer the ASC program were in all instances re-elected. We think this fact should be noted in the official record.

Under the circumstances it is natural to wonder why all this fuss and fury, and it is not unreasonable to assume that the real purpose is to discredit the present election system, which was introduced as a reform measure three years ago. Prior to that time the elections were of the town-meeting type, and they were discontinued because of the difficulty of securing a quorum attendance. Under that method it was easy for a small, organized minority to establish and maintain control.

The balloting-by-mail method of election has increased very substantially the number of voters expressing themselves and electing the officials charged with the responsibility of administration. Under this method of election there is less opportunity for boss control, and we suspect that this may be the real reason for the effort of the Humphrey-Freeman machine to discredit the present method. It does not lend itself to their personal political purposes.

Tragedy or Opportunity?

Hoard's Dairyman, widely accepted as the voice of the dairy industry, raises the question as to whether a drop in the support price for dairy products will prove to be a tragedy or an opportunity. Editor Knox says the announcement of a drop to be effective April 1, "came as a brutal blow" when the present support level is already too low. But he argues that the present support level, while too low from the standpoint of profitable production, is "not low enough to cause dairy and farm organizations to really move."

The annoucement "should not be a surprise to our readers", Mr. Knox states, saying:

> "During the past three or four years, we have repeatedly warned the industry that this day would come. The basic price support legislation enacted in 1949 is still on the books and the Secretary of Agriculture is charged by law with enforcing it. The law specifically provides that the Secretary will support manufacturing milk prices between 75 and 90 per cent of parity to assure an "adequate supply." No one can question that there is an adequate supply. And no Congress, Republican or Democrat, since 1949 has changed the basic legislation."

Pointing out that agriculture's influence in congress is diminishing and that there is increasing opposition to bigger price support appropriations, editor Knox comes up with this general conclusion:

> "While we regret the Secretary's action, there is no point in our going to the wailing wall. Certainly, no constructive purpose is served by weeping or by the gnashing of teeth. We have three personal choices as farmers. We can accept the lower price, we can quit dairy farming, or we can buckle down and get a dairy program that permits us to farm in a peacetime economy with fair degree of economic equity.
> "If yours is the third choice, what can you do? You can vigorously support those dairy and farm organizations that are working hard on a new program of which you approve. If your dairy or farm organization is on dead center, then MOVE IT!"

Get Out of Our Seats

(Financial Post, Toronto)

Education is not the only race the people of this continent may lose to the Russians. Physical fitness is another.

The current monthly letter of the Royal Bank cites some statistics concerning the stamina of the children of North America. Their leg and abdominal muscles are far weaker than they should be, it reports. They are more prone to certain diseases of the bones and organs of movement than were the children of a few generation back.

In the old days children had chores to do, walked miles to school and played outside. The modern child has few if any regular family chores, sits around inside and rides everywhere. "The older generation was tougher because it had to undergo adequate physical activity in the normal routine of living."

If we are going to regain our old-time vigor, as this Bank Letter points out, then young and old must get out of their seats, and cease being a race of riders and spectators.

"We sit at our desks in schools or offices all day; we sit on the bus or train or in automobiles while going to and from school or work; we sit before our television sets, in the stands at hockey, baseball and rugby; we sit in our cars or on buses on our way to the theatre where we sit again to watch a play or moving picture."

Is it any wonder we are getting soft?

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

By the time this column is printed, the committee which I appointed to consider the problem of reapportioning the Minnesota State Legislature will have held its first meeting. I have high hopes that the work of this committee will be successful. In this, as in most areas of state government, its chances for success depend to a great extent on how well the people of the state understand the problems involved.

Principle of Reapportionment

Representative democratic government is based on the principle that each citizen shall have an equal voice in selecting those who make the laws. And since population changes are bound to occur within each legislative district, our Minnesota state constitution provides for a reapportionment after every ten-year census. The responsibility for reapportionment is given to the legislature.

Problems of Reapportionment

This puts the state Legislature in a difficult position. Suppose a particular legislative district has become so small in population in proportion to the other districts that it is no longer entitled to a Representative or Senator of its own. If the state is to be reapportioned such a district would have to be divided up and parts attached to other districts. No member likes to vote to eliminate his own position, and each such member knows that the people in his district won't like it either.

Another difficulty arises when the Legislature tries to draw the boundaries of the newly proposed legislative districts. It is pretty hard to get agreement on such boundary lines.

Rural and Urban

A more serious problem arises out of the fear of many residents in rural areas that reapportionment according to population would leave them so few representatives that their interests would not be adequately represented in the legislature. It is not generally recognized that some of the districts that are now most glaringly over-represented are in the midst of our big cities. But it is still true that many rural areas are grossly over-represented now. And it is easy to understand the concern of citizens of such rural areas.

No Reapportionment Since 1913

These problems have been so troublesome that all attempts to reapportion since it was last done in 1913 have failed. The overwhelming majority of our legislators agree that we should reapportion, if only because it is required by the Constitution which they have sworn to observe. But they haven't been able to agree on how to reapportion. And one additional reason why they have failed to agree is the tremendous pressure of other work which members of the Legislature must accomplish during its brief 90-day session.

Possibilities

This is why I appointed a committee to study the problem during the interim between sessions. On that committee are nine Senators, nine Representatives, and nine other citizens. Those selected are all persons who have given special attention to reapportionment. I tried to select a carefully balanced group, equally divided between both political parties, representing all parts of the state, and representing the various conflicting points of view about reapportionment. I did this in the hope that this group can work out a plan on which they could all agree it would have a good chance of enactment.

A Common Problem

Most states face this same difficulty, although Minnesota lags behind nearly all of them in the length of time since any action was taken. Some states have solved their reapportionment problem by amending their constitutions to follow the principle incorporated in our federal government, choosing one house on an area basis and the other according to population. It is interesting to note that most of those who adopted this solution provided that the state senate should be elected according to population, and the house of representatives on the area basis. I am sure that the committee will study all possibilities in its effort to work out a fair and acceptable reapportionment for Minnesota.

There is none so blind as they that won't see.—Jonathan Swift.

THIS WEEK

—In Washington

With Clinton Davidson

With the farm debate getting into full swing in Congress this week the same old problem — too much production — but with a new twist is emerging as the big issue.

Congressmen from farming areas will talk about it in the cloakrooms, and off the record, but the subject is taboo when it comes to open debate on the floor of either the House or Senate.

Are there too many farmers? Agriculture Secretary Benson says, openly, that there are. The American Farm Bureau Federation, largest of the farm organizations, agrees with him.

Price supports, surplus disposal and other farm programs are costing the government in excess of $5 billion a year. The main objective of those programs has been (1) to keep farm prices from falling and (2) reduce farm production. They have done neither.

The Census Bureau counts 4,500,000 farms, and the USDA figures that 2,500,000 of those can produce all of the foods and fibers needed to feed and clothe this country well and have enough left over to meet all export requirements.

The problem of how to do that is not a simple one. It involves getting both farmers and farms out of production. USDA studies show that the 2,000,000 "excess" farms make up only 6% of total land in cultivation and only 5% of total farm production.

That 5% is just about the amount by which production has been exceeding sales in domestic and foreign markets. But that still leaves unsolved the problem of how to reduce the number of farmers and farms by 40%.

Mr. Benson says he does not favor "forced migration" off of farms. He says present support and subsidy programs are encouraging too many farmers to stay on the land when they ought to be seeking employment elsewhere. He thinks that if those supports and subsidies were reduced or eliminated many would leave farms "voluntarily."

With more than 4,000,000 unemployed city workers, the job of farmers finding work in factories, mines and other industries might not be an easy one. More probably, they would simply swell the unemployment relief rolls.

Business and professional men in small towns, who depend largely upon farmers for their income, would be hard hit by any mass migration of their customers to cities. The result could be a gigantic wave of bankruptcies across the country.

The main stumbling block to improving the farm price and overproduction problem is how to keep the 2,000,000 farms which Benson thinks should be removed from production from being absorbed by larger farmers and made even more productive.

Benson thinks a "super-soil bank" to pay farmers to leave their whole farm idle may be the solution. He is giving the idea a trial run this month in four states—Illinois, Nebraska, Maine and Tennessee—and if it looks promising he says he may ask all farmers to make the government an offer to take their farms out of production.

Total of 46,684,000 Persons Are Benefited

More than 25 per cent of the people of the United States get government checks for one reason or another during the year, [illegible] A. [illegible], executive secretary of the Minnesota Taxpayers association said in a statement today, quoting Ralph W. Gwynn, a member of Congress from New York state.

"Congressman Gwynn completed a survey last year," Bergen said, "which shows that as of June 30 1957 more than 40,000,000 persons received checks during the fiscal year of 1957 for services or for other reasons from federal, state and local government.

"The largest group includes federal civilian employees 2,[illegible], foreign nationals employed in the executive branch 276,000, state and local employees 5,[illegible], teachers and other educational employees 2,[illegible] or a total of 10,173,000. More than 5,588,000 received aid from various public assistance programs and [illegible] received checks under the old age and survivors act or the unemployment insurance acts. The railroad retirement act was paying benefits to 518,000 persons.

"The Veterans Administration, including checks for disability or pensions for all wars, death compensation or pensions, all wars, and the Veterans Educational and vocational assistance sent checks to more than 4,020,000 persons. The Army, Navy and Marine Corps accounted for 3,052,000 persons and the Defense Reserves 220,000 persons.

"In addition, Veterans Administration loan guarantees numbered 5,274,000 and there were an estimated 850,000 business and housing loan guarantees bringing the total number of persons receiving monetary or loan benefits in one way or another from the government to 46,684,735."

Wetlands Agency Gets $100 from Dodge Co. Group

In a salute to "Save the Wetland" program, a check for $100 was presented to George A. Selke, commissioner of the department of conservation by Alf Larson, secretary of the Dodge county soil conservation district at the annual meeting of that organization at Dodge Center last week.

The check was turned over to Richard J. Dorer, custodian of the Wetlands Fund, and will be used in the purchase and preservation of critical wetlands areas.

Selke said the action by the Dodge county soil conservation organization to support the wetlands program "is a fine example of the modern understanding of conserving the most important of our resources—water."

Dorer said the "agriculturists are attaching more and more importance to the water and wildlife resources on farms and this is fine cooperation with the conservation department."

CHAT
MINNESOTA'S CONGRESSWOMAN

Returning to Washington Monday evening after attending the funeral of my colleague at Red Wing, I was privileged to sit with Roy Barzen of Thief River Falls. We talked at great length about the student exchange program in which he is most active and a constant participant.

For several years now, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barzen have had in their home a student from another country. The two latest ones came from Indonesia and Japan. It was an inspiration to hear about the real missionary work, the public relations, good will and how this program is truly selling America to our friends and neighbors. Mr. Barzen said that Minnesota leads all other States in the United States in the Student Exchange Program.

We are going to be forced to take a good long look at our education program and facilities when we compare ourselves with the strides made in such short time by both Russian and China.

The Consumer Study Subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee will hold hearings on marketing practices which contribute to the wide spread between prices received by farmers and prices paid by consumers for fresh winter vegetables. The Committee has received numerous complaints that individual growers were receiving returns for produce at greatly lower prices than those paid in large consuming centers. Because of the close relationship between the interests of the Consumer Study Committee and the Marketing Subcommittee, these two Subcommittees will make this study together. The hearings will be held in Florida on Saturday, February 1st, on the spot—the Pompano State Farmers Market. This study was requested by several members of the Florida Congressional Delegation. A number of producers replying to questionnaires have indicated their desire to appear before the Subcommittees to describe marketing practices which they desire to be changed.

COMMANDING OFFICER

By Ralph Blanchard

OUTSIDE, the darkening winter afternoon was suddenly silent as the last of the squadron's aircraft taxied in and shut down, and a few weary pilots scrambled toward their hangars. It was a peaceful Friday, cold and festive, and Americans everywhere were hurrying to their homes.

Only the implements of war were left. The implements, and men like Commander Scaggliotl, who still nurtured old memories of less peaceful days. Who were at war within.

Scaggliotl, the commanding officer, leaned heavily back in his chair and listened to the silence settling over the world. His lips twisted into a grim smile and his dark eyes fixed angrily on a young boy, who stood nervously before his desk. The boy, not twenty yet, shifted his weight, and fearfully clenched a white, sailor hat.

"That's all you have to say?" Scaggliotl demanded.

"Yes, sir, that's all. I'm sorry."

"You're sorry!" The commanding officer swung his chair around and gazed out into the winter. "Sorry!" He laughed bitterly and told the boy to leave. The last flickering rays of light reflected dully on a small scar that creased the officer's cheek.

Scaggliotl turned back to the desk and glanced over some papers. One concerned the boy. 'A minor infraction,' he heard himself saying, but quickly thought, "I must have discipline." The word seared his mind. Discipline. He shut his eyes momentarily, folded the report on the boy and tucked it into his coat. As he stood to leave, a small note dropped, almost unnoticed, to the floor.

He picked it up and read the few words. "Good Lord," he said aloud, "What does he expect of me—a nursemaid?" He started to throw the note away, and leave for his apartment where he lived alone, but instead he glanced again at the words.

"Why don't you stop by and see him for a few minutes?" It would do him good." It was a short, scribbled note.

Across the road from his car was the Naval Hospital. Scaggliotl hesitated, shook his head in disgust, then wearily walked toward the big building. It was quiet like all hospitals. He nodded to an older man in white.

"Got my note, I see."

"The boy's in that room over there," the doctor pointed. "I'll see you later. Right now they need me upstairs."

A small, frail boy lay in the center of the big, white bed, with frightened eyes, as the heavy-set man approached. In one hand was a boy-worn model airplane, which the child held tightly.

"Hi."

The boy swallowed hard and answered, "Hi."

For a moment the lonely man was not at war. And, stranger, and for even a briefer moment, Scaggliotl was not the war-trained pilot, the officer, trained in war and games of war. It was like a wind that passed almost before he realized its presence.

"I've gotta go now, son," he heard himself later saying to the boy, and hesitantly asked, "Would you like me to stop by again sometime?"

The boy smiled softly in return and eagerness filled his eyes along with moisture. Scaggliotl looked behind him to be sure they were still alone and swiftly unpinned his aviator's wings and fastened them to the small boy's pajamas.

He turned and walked down the hospital corridors. A strange sensation passed through his consciousness, almost a warmth—a warmth that even the cold winter wind was unable to chill, as he stepped through the main door of the hospital.

Reaching into his coat pocket, he removed the folded report. It was only a minor infraction, he convinced himself. I'll give him a lecture and let it go this time. And in a final gesture, he shrouded the paper.

Our LAND

Appearing in newspapers of the Minnesota Editorial Association through the cooperation of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture.

Many Farmers on hilly land can raise more row crops without danger of heavy soil erosion than used to be thought possible. The secret is in following the right conservation practices. Ermond Hartmans and Kenneth Thomas, extension farm management specialists at the University of Minnesota, point to a recent Iowa study showing this to be true.

Iowa research workers compared different crop rotations. One was designed to control erosion through use of forage crops. A revised plan had a maximum acreage of cash grain, combined with terracing, contour plowing, diversion ditches and other erosion practices. The second plan allowed for 55 percent more row crops than had been recommended previously.

Surprisingly enough, there was nothing wrong with the revised plan. Mechanical practices held soil loss to less than 5 tons per acre, which is considered good enough. Terraces proved effective on slopes up to 20 percent, rather than just at 12 percent as previously recommended.

Hartmans and Thomas say these findings might make conservation farming popular with more farmers. Many people have failed to adopt it in the past because they felt it would keep their row-crop acreage lower than they wish. But the Iowa studies show that many farmers could safely raise twice as much corn if they use terraces and other recommended conservation practices.

Trigonometry, Geometry Models Displayed in Class

Pictured here are some of the projects completed by solid geometry and trigonometry class. Shown holding a paraboloid is Dean Bergland with instructor Joe Forberg. Most of these projects are practical and are used for demonstrations and actual work in solid geometry and trigonometry. A typical example is the telemeter which is used with trigonometric functions to determine the height of objects. These projects not only have practical value but serve to arouse interest among students.

Engine Development Led to Industrial Revolution

Lincoln School Students Interested in Science

Two of the results of Russia's Sputnik and Muttnik launchings were the renewal of American students' interest in subjects scientific and the revelation that previous to the launchings the students have been somewhat deficient in the study of science.

However, this deficiency is not universal and the activity of Lincoln high school students will prove that they are up to or perhaps a little above the average in regard to the study of the sciences.

Several science courses are available at the local high school, and since the satellite launchings ushered in the space age more emphasis than ever before is being put upon scientific studies.

The study of science dates back to the dawn of civilization. At one time scientists were thought of as wizards or crackpots and some of the men responsible for the most notable discoveries were branded as heretics, some even being persecuted for revealing their discoveries and teaching their theories during the "dark ages."

Aristotle, Galileo, Newton, Franklin, Edison, Einstein, Fermi— these are all great names in science. But, despite all the discoveries by these famous men, new revelations are made daily by the scientists of today.

And who knows—perhaps the boy next door may some day be added to the list of who's who in science. With the terrific need for and emphasis on scientists nowadays, our schools are faced with the task of developing the young geniuses so necessary to progress in this modern age.

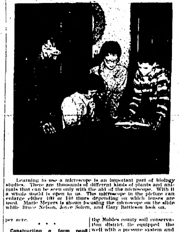
The pictures shown in this issue of the time focus attention on activities of the science department of Lincoln high school. Rocket launchings by the newly-formed high school rocket society here are but one facet of the activity in the science department.

Sputnik and Muttnik fired our youngsters' imagination — now, even the sky is no limit!

They Study Fish Anatomy

Liz Poole and Adella Tweten are shown dissecting a fish, while instructor Charles Samuelson has a large plastic model of fish. A student, in addition to studying the anatomy and physiology of animals has an opportunity to dissect animals such as the frog, fish grasshopper, earthworm to see for himself how these animals are constructed. What he learns from these animals is then compared to the human body, and he learns that animals may live very successfully even though they are built differently.

Study Specimens with Microscope



Learning to use a microscope is an important part of biology studies. There are thousands of different kinds of plants and animals that can be seen only with the aid of the microscope. With it a whole world is open to us. The microscope in the picture can enlarge either 100 or 140 times depending on which lenses are used. Marie Meyers is shown focusing the microscope on the slide while Bruce Nelson, Joyce Solem, and Gary Battleson look on.

OUR LAND

Tractor Track Planting worked out well for Dillon Hempstead and Orson Hempstead and Sons in Houston county last summer. Harlie Larson, Houston county extension soils agent, reports that the Hempsteads disked only the plowing ends and dead furrows, to level the land off. During the season, the disked areas had more weeds than did the undisked part of the fields, where corn had been planted in tractor tracks on freshly plowed soil. Yields ranged up to 150 bushels per acre.

Constructing a farm pond meant fulfilling a long-time wish several years ago for Robert Jerrers, farmer in the Scott county soil conservation district. He stocked the pond with sunfish and bass. Since then, many muskrats and other fur-bearing animals and some ducks have made this pond their home. According to Dewey Hahn, work unit conservationist, Jerrers considers the pond one of his most valuable pieces of property.

A dugout-type pond solved the livestock water problem for Wessel Box, Adrian, a cooperator in the Nobles county soil conservation district. He equipped the well with a pressure system and pipes water to several locations. He installed a pipe with a shut-off valve below the frost line from the pond to the well. This allows him to regulate the amount of water in the well which hasn't had enough to keep the livestock supplied in past years.

Learns Mysteries of Electricity

This picture shows experiments in physics to explain the three classification of electricity and how they are produced. A single experiment dating back to the early Greeks who discovered electricity by rubbing a piece of amber (Greek word for electricity) is demonstrated here. By successive steps static and dynamic electricity are produced and explained. This is turn leads to the principles involved in the practical application of electricity to our machines and devices involved in the field of electronics. In this class, it is not the purpose to make electricians or skilled mechanics of the students but to give them an understanding of the basic principles and the concepts involved from which they may progress into specialized fields of learning. Here Richard Schlechter operates the device as Shirley Gorelsh, left, and Karyl Gilthvedt look on. Their instructor is Lawrence Brown.

Reveal Secrets of Chemistry

Chemistry is the study of the composition and transformation of substances. Two phases of chemistry are shown here — on the left a demonstration of liquids that conduct an electrical current (electrolytes) shows how materials ionize. This is a basic principle to many developments of science — a storage battery — electroplating, antifreeze solutions — nuclear reactions. Another demonstration pictured shows a process whereby compounds can be changed into other compounds or substances having very different characteristics or properties.

Chemistry is not only a college preparatory subject but one that may be used in very practical everyday situations. Watching the experiment here are Richard Schlechter and Janet Torgerson. Lawrence J. Brown is the chemistry instructor responsible for this display.

Children and Science

Science has taken an added importance as nations race toward what is at best a delusion of security, based upon the notion that who gets there first with the most destruction always wins. Science, however, is much more than the creation of weapons, so if a sort of national jitters can serve as a reminder that science must stay in the foreground as we teach children, society will profit.

Science has natural allies in boys and girls, because they constantly seek answers: Why? What? How much? What is it made of? What does it do? Questions, asked at surprisingly early ages, are the stuff which begets the budding scientist.

Most everyone agrees that science is important in the education of children, but there are many opinions as to "when and how much of what kind?" Dr. P., a European scientist, teaching in America, kept a small mounted skeleton on his desk. He asked boys and girls from 6 to 17 to name the animal. After 348 negative answers Dr. P. identified it as a porcupine skeleton, common to their area. Dr. P. makes much of this example, and says that in his native land children by 9 to 10 years are able to recognize a porcupine skeleton.

There are many who would argue that being able to identify a porcupine skeleton by third grade is not apropos; that such efforts are wasteful when children are not ready to see meanings and use such information. Rather, they say, repeatedly give BALL interesting motivational facts about animals — such as telling them that a giraffe's neck even as long as it is, has only seven bones, the same as a human being or a sparrow. Or that he lets his food slip slowly down his long neck in a parade of little balls, which he later brings back up one by one, gives them a good chew and swallows them for keeps. This aproach is based upon the hope that when older, if the interest and ability are there, Bill will go on to the rest of the scientific picture.

Which way is better? Carefully controlled research has not yet produced answers which will work for all situations.

They will announce their findings Friday morning over a public address system.

The afternoon will be devoted to an educational program, which will commence at 1:30 with Mervin Syverson leading the discussion on "Processing Seed". At 2:00 p.m. Lowell Hanson, soil specialist at the University of Minnesota, will speak on "Different Soils Means Different Management," and Bernard E. Education for the Elementary Grades Will Be Topic Monday

A general discussion meeting for all parents and patrons internested in elementary education has been scheduled for Monday at 8:00 p.m., February 3, in the Washington school auditorium, Kermit L. Eastman, director of elementary education, stated today.

The purposes of the meeting are to acquaint parents with the school program and practices, to answer questions concerning aspects of the school program, and to seek suggestions for ways to improve present practices.

Many discussion groups were held last year with a large number of adults participating. It is hoped that similarly successful meetings will result this year.

Some possible points for discussion suggested by Eastman are:

1. What is being done for the educable child of average, below average, or above average ability in our elementary schools?
2. How "good" is our testing program?
3. Is the school program in reading, science, mathematics and other curriculum areas adequate?
4. Are the parent-teacher conferences really worth-while? Are you, as a parent, getting the information you want?
5. What suggestions do you have for improving the extra-curricular program in our elementary schools?
6. What suggestions do you have for change in our elementary school program? Should there be a summer school program for students who have learning difficulties and for pupils of exceptionally high ability? Should our school year be lengthened for all children?
7. What is desirable class size for most effective, economical instruction?
8. What problems must we face in our elementary school program in the future?
9. What criticisms of our school program do our own school personnel have?
10. Should the lunch hour be shortened for elementary school children?
11. What is done in our elementary school to improve instruction?

Patrons are asked to bring their questions to the February 3 meeting.

The Lions club quartet provided musical numbers at the banquet and the speaker of the evening, D. John Villas, executive assistant, Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., spoke on the topic "Your Telephone Future is Brighter Than Ever."

Villas, who was introduced by A. K. Baron, local telephone manager, gave members a preview of startling new service improvements now under development by telephone research scientists.

Emphasizing that it was still in the laboratory stage, Villas described a new system that would store up incoming telephone calls to a busy line, and then complete them in proper order after the line was free.

The development of closed circuit television for everyday business use, and a personal signalling device that could be carried in the user's pocket—are being tested for possible future commercial application, he said.

Using experimental models, Villas showed the audience several new types of telephones including a "picture phone" which provides for two-way "seeing" as well as talking, and an instru

Following this, a planned tour of the new Vocational school building and possibly of other new facilities in the city will take place.

Upon the Governors' arrival at the banquet site, the Legion municipal band will play. Conditions permitting, said Jepson, the Jaycees will attend a flight breakfast the following morning to observe the Governors departure.

If, for some reason you are unable to attend, arrange for someone in your place. If you plan to appoint an assistant inspector, whether in the township or village, to carry out your responsibility as weed inspector, do so before the meeting, and arrange for his attendance.

"At the conference the weed and insect program will be organized for the season. Mayor Beich's Street Group Tells of Plans

Committee Advises Paving of Fourth st. as 1958 Project

At a lengthy session Friday evening the mayor's street committee studied revised estimates of various street improvements and storm sewer projects with the hope that some definite plan could be laid out and recommended to the city council for action in the summer of 1958.

Engineer D. H. Stewart presented the alternate plan that the Minnesota highway department would take if the west side storm sewer project that had been dropped some years ago were not taken up again and completed. After consideration as to the cost of this modified plan and the apparent inadequate results, it was decided to have the engineer draw up final estimates of costs so that the affected property owners and the city council could be advised fully.

Figures just released by the highway department were presented which indicated that Thief River Falls would received $35,000 this year to assist in construction of municipal-state aid streets and a comparable amount in each following year, which would be applied to these storm sewer costs as well as the actual state aid street projects, the thought being that an adequate street construction program could only be accomplished with an adequate drainage project tied in.

The problem of the improvement of Fourth from Main av. to Atlantic was taken up and Engineer Stewart presented approximate cost estimates based on a 60 ft. concrete street. Drainage problems were relatively minor in this area and it was agreed that this project should take priority over any other plan because of the need and also because it could likely be completed in 1958 and would be tied to the first year's state aid allotment.

It was brought out that the new telephone equipment was in need of a relatively dust free street to keep local telephone service trouble free. The committee also indicated its belief that paving this street would add that much more to the business area of the City, and correct a street problem of long standing.

The streets to the north of Fourth st. as far as Eleventh appeared to be in need of resurfacing and although a drainage problem exists, it appeared this work could be accomplished quite handily and still allow time for the street construction work to be completed in 1958. Stewart was asked to furnish assessment figures for this project so that they could be studied and presented to the council and to the property owners.

Although the proposed work appeared to be extensive, the committee feels it can be accomplished without undue hardship and with actual long range saving to the tax payers. Present streets are admittedly inadequate and the proper maintenance costs are prohibitive.

Homemakers Get Lesson on Foods

Proteins Will Be Topic at Series of Meetings

When you buy a rib roast, are you getting better protein than in pot roast which costs you less money?

Pennington county homemakers will get the answer to that question and learn other facts about comparative costs and quality of protein foods in a special lesson to be given as part of the extension home program this month, announced County Agent Paul Steimachuk.

Local leaders in the extension home program will present the lesson, "Protein in Everyday Meals," to their own groups. Leaders were trained recently by Grace Brill, extension nutritionist at the University of Minnesota.

The importance of getting an adequate amount of protein every day will be stressed because of its importance in building and repairing bones, blood, skin and all other body tissue and for its role in helping the body resist disease. Meat, eggs, dried beans and peas, fish, bread, cereals and milk will be compared as sources of protein for the family.

The business meeting included voting to transfer the canton and its ladies auxiliary back to Thief River Falls, where it had been originally chartered in January 1923. Its membership covers the area of Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Williams, Warroad and Roseau. In April 1939, the charter had been transferred to Roseau, to locate in a more central area.

Now it is back in Thief River Falls where meetings will be held every fourth Monday at the local Odd Fellows Hall. Local officers include Harold F. Larson, Rene Werner, C. Herb Jung, Morris Odegaard, A. G. Gabrielson, Gole Anderson and Millard A. Nelson, for the men and Beatha Werner, Helga Nelson, Gladys Odegaard, Thora H. Nelson, for the auxiliary.

David Harrison, of the Federal Civil Defense Administration, Denver, Colo., and Capt. Robert Ostmann, from the Air Defense filter center, Fargo, N. D.

The morning session was taken up by major problems of civil defense in the state. Topics included schools, radiological defense, policing, fire protection, medical and welfare facilities, air warning systems, continuity of government, ground observer corps, natural disasters, etc.

Speakers on this phase included Schon, R. Bruce Reski, Pennington county civil defense head; Johnson, Eugene Simmons, Roseau county civil defense head, L. H. Furcht, welfare executive sec'y. of Area 3, Captain Ostmann and others.

The meeting was adjourned at noon for a lunch served cafeteria style by the Legion auxiliary.

After reconvening at 1 p.m. the group heard members of the state staff outline operations and training procedure and problems, which took in discussions of schools, training courses available to civil defense personnel, matching funds from the state and FCDA, and training aids. Later, the staff discussed operations alerts.

Final discussions by the state staff, including Schon and Aune, concerned the legal basis administration in a national or natural disaster, including federal state and local phases.

Federal and state aid for civil defense was explained along with how to apply for it and what to expect. At present the matching funds system is used which means that the federal, state and local units of government cooperate in paying costs of the civil defense organization.

Legislation concerning civil defense and volunteer activities in civil defense were the final discussions on the agenda before the summary and conclusion by Johnson, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Col. Schon and Johnson both praised Reski local defense head for his cooperation and excellent arrangements for the meeting and complimented the northwestern counties of the state for sending such a good representation to the meeting.

A similiar meeting to that held here Tuesday was held yesterday at Mahnomen for the southern half of Mobile Support Area 3, with the state officials also in attendance there.

Corn and Nitrogen Amount

Corn yields can be boosted in Pennington county through proper fertilization.

How much nitrogen you need to apply to your corn crop depends a good deal on what has been raised on the field before.

Years of research show that on sandy soils, for example, you can usually make nitrogen pay even on corn planted where legumes grew the year before.

On many heavier soils, this won't always hold true. But the longer it has been since legumes have been raised on the field, the more likely nitrogen fertilizer is to bring increases in yields.

Legumes themselves, because they "fix" nitrogen from the air in the soil, are a big help to crops like corn that need large amounts of nitrogen. This point was brought out clearly in recent field tests.

On several field plots, all corn received the same fertilizer treatment—200 pounds of 5-20-20 starter fertilizer. Plots where corn was raised three years in a row averaged 42.8 bushels per acre.

Where corn was raised one year, followed the next year by oats underseeded with sweetclover, then back to corn, corn yields averaged 48.5 bushels per acre.

Yields were even better where the rotation was corn one year, oats seeded to alfalfa the second, and alfalfa the third, then back to corn. These plots averaged 67 bushels per acre.

Winter Dysentery in Cattle

If you see signs of winter dysentery in your beef or dairy cattle this winter, isolate the first animal that gets it, if possible, and attend to the rest of the herd immediately.

While it's seldom fatal, winter dysentery usually affects most older animals in a herd where it hits, and it can cut milk production by 50-90 percent for up to two weeks.

The most obvious symptoms of this condition are a loose, watery, brown, diarrhea, sometimes containing a little blood. It often strikes one or two animals first, then affects other animals in the herd three to five days later.

Animals fail to gain or produce well when they have dysentery, but they often continue eating normally and seldom have a fever. It is much less sever in calves than in older animals.

Antibiotics and sulfa drugs are of little help against winter dysentery, but it can be treated with any one of several readily available intestinal antiseptics. These products are given as individual doses.

In particularly severe cases, additional steps must be taken to relieve dehydration. In this situation, it's best to call a veterinarian.

If your herd hasn't been affected by the disease, avoid farms where it has hit. You might bring the disease home with you. The condition is most common between November and March.

Minnesota's farm population in 1955 was estimated at 710,000, which is a decline of 205,000 from 1940, according to rural sociologists at the University of Minnesota.

* * *

The average person in the United States eats about 200 pounds of fresh, canned and frozen vegetables every year. That's about a fifth more than 20 years ago, but about the same as in 1950.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times:

The farmers in the Mud Lake area have formed an anti-wetlands group for the purpose of opening the ditches to drain the lake and controlling the beaver.

This man-made swamp has caused damage amounting to thousands of dollars, not only in 1957 when this territory was declared a disaster area, but every year since Mud Lake was formed and the beaver planted here. The situation has become worse each year, until the farmers are being forced to leave this territory at an alarming rate.

This situation has been explained to officials, but no effort has been made to correct it. For this reason an anti-wetlands group has been formed to try and get action before it is too late.

We think a dryland refuge for deer, grouse, pheasant, etc. would be more compatible with our farming operations. We also like to see the natural stands of hardwoods preserved rather than having them drowned out and replaced by swamp willow.

A mass meeting at the Gatzke school has been scheduled for Feb. 14 at 2:00 p.m. to present a plan of action to the public. We urge all interested people to attend and present their views.

Williams Six Tips Prowler Team 4-2

A gritty band of Williams Wolves, getting some agile net-minding from goalie Ken Beadle, defeated the Prowlers, 4 to 2, in a regional conference game played on the Arena rink Tuesday night.

The Prowlers will make the short jaunt to Roseau on Friday night for a conference game against the high-powered Roseau Rams, with face-off time slated for 8:00 P.M.

Following the Roseau game, the locals have but two games remaining on the schedule, both of which will be played on the Arena ice. Baudette will play here on Saturday, Feb. 1st, and the Warroad Warriors will play here on Tuesday, Feb. 4th.

The first period of Tuesday night's game was scoreless, and evenly played, with Neil Carlson kicking out eight on-goal shots, and Ken Beadle saving on nine on-goal shots.

Williams dented the mesh at the 1:06 mark of the second period when Gary Axtell's long backhand shot, from the blue-line, angled in for a tally. And at the 3:06 mark, Stan Birkedahl slapped in a shot from close in; and when Ken Pieper, with Dave Draper assisting, nailed the puck at 7:32, the Wolves had a 3 to 0 lead. On a face-off play in the Williams zone, Jerry Jorgenson gained the draw and passed to Dale Wennberg, who sent a bouncing shot past Beadle at the 8:12 mark.

Williams added a tally early in the third period when Larry Robberstad shoved in a rebound shot.

At one time in the third period, Williams had two players—Robberstad and Axtell—serving tripping penalties, but the Prowlers were unable to capitalize on their man power advantage. The locals tallied the game's final marker at 10:35, with Jorgenson scoring on a centering-out pass from Curt Ness.

The Year's First Fish Story

1958 was just a week old when we had repeated to us the year's first fish story. It seems that Bill Ranta had spent the early part of the winter in building a prefabricated fish house. And, from all reports, the house was a dandy.

The first week in January he took the house down to Itasca Park, where he set it up on snow-free and wind-swept Itasca lake, intending to do some serious fishing.

He had completed the set-up, augered a hole in the ice, crawled into the house, and prepared to bait-up and catch a mess of fish. And what happened? The door on the house slammed shut and became locked, a strong and gusty wind arose, and the house, with Ranta inside, began to slide out on the lake on the slick ice. Before it finally came to a halt, and before Ranta could get out, the house had "drifted" nearly a half-mile out on the lake.

As we said, this is the year's first fish story. It won't be the last for any day now we expect to get that annual report from Ole Ness, stating that the Union lake fish are so anxious to bite that he can hear them nibbling on the ice.

At Long Last

The high hopes that this curling season would be completed with the Russ Embury rink being winless were shattered on Monday night when, by the margin of a "disputed rock," the Embury's edged out Si Hanson, 6 to 5.

Previous to Monday's night match, the Emburys—Russ Embury skip, Ole Ekeren, L. L. Tygeson, Don Olson, and Jack Edmiston—had curled three matches, with the following results: Art Moe, 10, Embury, 8; Glenn Olson, 8, Embury, 7; and Kimbrough, 8, Embury 5. Three matches, and three losses.

And we hear that there is a possibility that the Monday night "victory" will be subject to a protest. The contention is that the Embury's were curling a lop-sided stone, and this stone, being measured from its lop-side provided the team with their winning marker.

Special Note

Fishermen who are proud and confident of their ability should make a memo of the fact that Boy Scout Troop No. 57 will conduct a fishing derby off Tindolph Point on the Red Lake river on Sunday, Feb. 9th. Contest hours are from 12:00 P.M. to 4:00 P.M.

Miscellany

Jackie Poole, all state tournament hockey selection with the champion Prowlers of 1956, and, for the past couple of seasons, a valued member of the Rochester club of the Central Hockey league, underwent surgery on his left knee last week. As we understand the details, the surgery was necessary to "re-thread" or "splice" a ligament supporting the knee. The knee will be immobilized for a couple of months, being placed in a cast.—We hear, so, that Bob Baker's active hockey career has come to an end. Baker, a Prowler all state selection in the first high school tournament held, back in 1945, has also been a member of a Rochester club. A couple of weeks ago, Bob received a jolt, during a practice session, that chipped a vertebra and caused a slight paralysis of an arm. Bob has recovered the full use of the arm, but the advice of the medical authorities is that he should "hang up his hockey skates." If he should re-injure his spine, the consequences could be serious. Well, Bob has had a long and glorious hockey career.— Duane Glass, another of the Prowlers all-state selections, has had the cast and a pair of "pins" removed from his left forefinger. He has been advised to cancel all plans for hockey this season. Fact is, he is not to put on skates and take a turn or two around the rink.—Jimmy Hall, the hard-working center-ice man on last season's Prowler hockey team, is a member of coach John (Connie) Pleban's Duluth Branch (UMD) Bulldogs. — We have heard rumors to the effect that two or three North Dakota Sioux hockey players, namely Don Trough, Guy LaFrance, and Les Merrifield, are in the same predicament as barred goalie Bob Peters, and vulnerable as to eligibility. It may be that these Sioux players are "tained," but we can't believe that the Denver U and Colorado college clubs are manned by "simon pures" either. For instance, that Bill (Red) Hay, the league's high scorer, a member of the Colorado team, was a contemorary of the Thieves' Jack McGill. And Jack's no kid.

Tree Planting Stock in Great Demand This Year, Says Forester

"Never in the history of the state reforestation program has there been such a demand for planting stock," says Ray Clement, forester in charge of nurseries and planting, division of forestry.

About 17,000,000 trees have been ordered to-date and there is only a limited amount of trees of a few kinds left for those who still wish to order for planting next spring, Clement reported.

Jack pine and white cedar are still available at $10 per thousand, and soft maple, green ash, American elm, and black walnut seed are available for $8.00 per thousand.

Clement advised those who are thinking of planting to make a request at once, but warned that order for trees out of stock would have to be returned when the present amounts are exhausted.

Clement estimates that more than 9,000,000 trees have been ordered for planting on private lands, which means an income of more than $90,000 to the state general fund. This amount turned into the state treasury is less than $25,000 below the amount appropriated by the last legislature for nursery expenditures. Clement predicts that income from sale of nursery stock will approximate the legislative appropriations before too many years pass.

About 8,000,000 will be planted on highway rights-of-way, county tax delinquent lands, state forests and parks, and other public lands. Windbreaks and roadside plantings by the state highway department will amount to nearly 1,000,000 trees this year; from a quarter to a half million trees will be planted on county lands and almost 5,000,000 are to be planted on other state lands.

These are the future forests and wooded areas, says Clement, which will provide wood products, scenic beauty, and protection for highways and state institutions in the future. They will eventually provide an income from lands which are now tax delinquent and non-productive; they will be the scenic areas to attract and provide enjoyment from the tourist travel, and some areas may be used as income for schools and government agencies.

Persons desiring more information may contact the nearest forestry office, the county agents, SCS headquarters, or the forestry offices in the State Office Building, St. Paul.

Two Men Narrowly Escape Drowning at Red Lake Friday

Pickup Truck Falls Thru Ice While Men Are Engaged in Hunting Wolves at Lake

While driving out on ice on upper Red Lake, looking for wolves, near Rogers Resort, on Friday afternoon, Ray Oftelie of Cloquet accompanied by Hubert Grover of Wrenchell, went through the ice with a 1955 Chevrolet pickup, into about 15 feet of water.

Grover tried to get out as the pickup was going down, but the pressure of ice and water against the door caught his leg and held him helpless until the pickup came to rest at the bottom of the lake with the radiator down. Oftelie was able to push the door open with his weight against it, thus freeing Mr. Grover's legs. However Grover was unable to get on top of the ice again.

Luckily two companions were near by and saw the accident. Clinton Vellieaux of Wrenchell and Frank Benkauski of Cloquet managed to pull the two drowning men up on the ice. Later with the aid of Gilmer Oftelie, Lloyd Pladsen, Arnold Brovold, all of Gully, and a power truck equipped with a winch from Bemidji and other volunteer help they managed to get the pickup to shore, but narrowly escaped again when a huge cake of ice broke off while they were all working to retrieve the pick-up from the bottom of the lake.

National Guard in Minnesota Given New Commander

Major General Richard Cook Named to Succeed Gen. Philip Bettenborg

Governor Orville L. Freeman today announced a change in command for the 47th "Viking" Infantry division of the Minnesota National Guard. Major General Philip C. Bettenburg, who has commanded the division since January 1954, has asked to be relieved of command and will be transferred to the inactive National Guard effective February 1.

Governor Freeman also announced the promotion of Brigadier General Richard Cook to major general in the guard and his appointment to succeed General Bettenburg in command of the "Viking" Division. General Cook has served as assistant division commander for the past four years and has been a member of the Minnesota National Guard since 1922. A resident of Redwood Falls his military career includes service in World War I, World War II and the Korean emergency.

The pressure of business affairs was given by General Bettenburg as the reason for relinquishing command. In civilian life General Bettenburg is senior partner of the architectural firm of Bettenburg Townsend, Stolte and Comb, St. Paul.

In accepting General Bettenburg's resignation, the governor stated "I regret that the press of business has required General Bettenburg's resignation at this time. I wish to thank him for the nearly 40 years of service which he has given to the military forces of our state and country as a member of the Minnesota National Guard."

Open Information Center for Poison

Department of Health to Aid Local Physicians

Establishment of a poison information center by the Minnesota department of health is announced by Dr. Robert N. Barr, secretary and executive officer.

The center will operate through eleven regional hospitals throughout the state in addition to a number of Twin City hospitals, and will offer physicians and hospitals immediate assistance by a 24-hour-a-day telephone service.

When a toxic substance cannot be identified in the regional center, the poison information officer or the attending physician will be able to call the central agency. This office will maintain a more complete file regarding the identification of ingredients, and an estimate of toxicity of the common household, industrial, and agricultural products which may be harmful if swallowed or improperly used.

In addition, it will conduct educational campaigns designed to acquaint parents with the proper methods of handling and storing potentially harmful substances and provide the necessary laboratory facilities where needed.

The poison information officer in each of the regional "subcenter" will be a physician from the hospital staff. He will be responsible for maintaining the regional file on toxic agents, and providing physicians in the area with up-to-date information. In formation. In cases involving accidental poisoning, the family physician should be consulted first and he will contact the regional center if he needs additional information.

Minnesota's hospitality offers a come-as-you-are vacation of relaxing, healthful fun.

Editorials . . .

"A husbandman who had a quarrelsome family, after having tried in vain to reconcile them by words, thought he might more readily prevail by an example. So he called his sons and bade them lay a bundle of sticks before him. Then having tied them up into a fagot, he told the lads, one after another, to take it up and break it. They all tried, but tried in vain. Then, untying the fagot, he gave them the sticks to break one by one. This they did with the greatest ease. Then said the father: "Thus my sons, as long as you remain united, you are a match for all your enemies; but differ and separate, and you are undone."

Sharing in the Profits

Walter Reuther thinks labor should share in the profits of industry, and there is much to be said in favor of the idea. Many workers now participate in the profits of large corporations through the ownership of shares of common stock. Many corporations encourage their employees to invest a part of their savings in this way.

Incidentally, as they share in company profits they also face the possibility of losses as earnings sometimes shrink. Many who have put their spare dollars into stocks can testify to this sad fact by recent experience.

Walter Reuther wouldn't go along with the idea that losses should be pro-rated as well as profits. He would want it to be strictly a one-way deal. For this reason his idea will find little support among informed and reasonable people.

China's New Alphabet

China has now adopted the Latin alphabet. It will be used on a limited scale at the start but we may assume that it will gradually replace the system of characters by which the Chinese have laboriously expressed themselves over a period of many centuries.

The fact that the alphabet of the Western world has been selected rather than that of Russia is interesting. In order to avoid awkward explanations on this point the people are being told that the system now being introduced is the invention of their brilliant leaders. The change, therefore, is not in any sense an admission to their own people of Western superiority.

Thruout Asia, however, there are millions of natives who speak the languages of the Western world, and for them the attempt of the Chinese leaders to deceive their people will be laughed off as another example of nationalistic nonsense. Progress in Asia is slow, but there is progress. Parting with tradition is never a popular procedure.

"Good" Teachers

Based on the findings of a recent survey the National Education Association has stated that:

> "It is increasingly difficult to get enough GOOD teachers in almost every subject. It is just about impossible in the fields of science and mathematics."

The capitalization of the word "good" is ours. It should be emphasized because it calls attention to a distinction we too often fail to recognize.

We have frequently questioned the often-repeated statement that teachers are underpaid. We agree that many of our good teachers are underpaid and deserve substantial merit increases. But it is also apparent to even a casual observer that many of our teachers are already being paid far more than they are worth.

Our school administrators, the officials we elect and hire to manage our schools, contribute to the overall mediocrity by their unwillingness to reward merit. Salary increases too often are made on the across-the-board basis, giving equally to the undeserving and to those who are doing exceptional work. This approach offers no incentive for extra effort and improvement.

There always will be an ample supply of men and women willing to serve as teachers. There never will be an adequate supply of GOOD teachers.

We Get What We Deserve

Not all of the inefficiency in the various branches of our armed services is due to the indifference or mismanagement of our defense officials. Recently the Navy wanted to close down four installations that could be eliminated safely and that would result in a saving of eight million dollars a year.

But closing these four installations would affect adversely the economy of four areas of the country, and the communities that would be adversely affected raised a great hue and cry in opposition to the Navy proposals. Few of our representatives in congress have the moral courage to deal honestly with such problems in their own districts.

And unfortunately these little problems are not dealt with separately according to their own merits. A large number of our representatives join together and wrap into one bundle all their local problems. By their joint effort they secure approval for many operations and programs that, by themselves could not be justified.

An honest and courageous congress could, we are sure, provide all of the additional funds that will be needed for an expanded defense program, by paring the pork out of appropriation measures, and would have sufficient additional savings to justify a substantial tax cut.

Of course we have little reason to complain. Considering all of the factors, we get about the kind of government that we deserve.

Good Place to Fight

The arguments about setting up controls against warfare in outer space strike us as bordering on the ridiculous. Our attitude may be due to a lack of understanding about the issues that are involved. Admittedly we have little personal interest in the area and as far as we are concerned, if folks want to fight we think that would be an excellent place for them to do the fighting.

It is the possibility of wars closer to home that is disturbing to us, and if we can figure out an effective way to settle our differences peacefully as neighbor nations this little planet, and the layer of atmosphere in which it is wrapped, is good enough for us. Of course a treaty with the Russians providing for a zone of no-fighting within five million miles of the sun might be useful as a start in establishing an area of agreement. We will let Harold Stassen figure it out.

Three Choices

(Edw. Morrison in Morris Tribune)

There are three ways to meet pending increases in defense spending—increases which are likely to run into the billions.

One way is to increase taxes. Then everyone will have less money to buy goods and services that keep America's enterprises running and American workers busy at good jobs.

The second way is to take the lid off the national debt limit, and let the government operate on a deficit basis—that is, by spending more than it takes in and making up the gap by borrowing. Then we will see a new and major wave of inflation that could end in economic disaster.

The third way is for the government to rigorously pare non-defense spending and reappraise all defense spending with a view to saving all non-essential expenses. Top authorities say that $5 billion or more a year could be saved in this manner.

The third way is the only reasonable choice.

Not Very Often

(W. E. Barnes in Sleepy Eye Herald-Dispatch)

Interviewed by representatives of the press last week, Senator Mansfield, Democrat, Montana, said he believed we could speed up our defense program without increasing taxes. He thought domestic expenditures could be cut.

Asked if he favored cutting funds for irrigation projects his state wants, he said no, that work was needed. Asked if any senator ever favored reducing appropriations for work to be done in his district, he said yes.

No one has ever accused Mansfield of asking for a reduction of federal funds for his state's projects, but it is true that occasionally a congressman has the courage to do just that.

Senator Lausche, Democrat, Ohio, recently opposed legislation which would have called for unnecessary expenditure of federal funds in his state.

Whether that opposition will cost him needed votes when he runs for re-election remains to be seen. Lausche is a man of courage who has the respect of both parties. His example is worthy of emulation. Few senators or representatives are like him. Mansfield isn't one of them.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representative at the Grand Forks VA office.

Q—I have a World War II GI term insurance policy. Do I have the right to borrow on this policy?

A—No. GI term insurance has no loan value. However, you may convert to a permanent plan of GI insurance, if you wish. Permanent insurance does build up a loan value, after it has been in force for one year.

Q—I am getting VA compensation for a service-connected condition. Recently my condition got worse. What steps must I take to get an increase in compensation?

A—You must submit new medical evidence, such as an adequate statement from your physician or a medical report of a recent period of hospitalization.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

It's in the Bag

Out-of-towners must have wondered what was going on last Tuesday. Every parking meter was covered by a paper bag lettered "Free Parking."

Tuesday was officially designated "Free Parking Day" by the Town Council as a reward for going a year without a traffic accident.

"Traffic safety, like virtue, is its own reward," said Judge Cunningham as he proposed the motion. "But let's show our drivers we're proud of 'em!"

From where I sit, a little praise never hurts—in fact, that's why I talk in this column about the nice, fair-minded people I meet. Folks who live—and let live . . . who don't care whether you like beer or buttermilk at dinnertime. I say real neighbors never try to "park" their ideas on others!

Revenue Man Reminds Firms of W-2 Forms

Employers and employees in the Minnesota district of the internal revenue service were reminded today by Director A. R. Knox of the importance of the W-2 withholding certificate in the proper filing of 1957 federal income tax returns.

Employers, he points out, are obligated by law to furnish copies of this form to their employees by January 31. Employees, in turn, must attach the requisite copy of the W-2 to their Form 1040 or 1040-A when filing.

Knox urged employees to prepare their returns as soon as they receive their withholding certificates and to file them as soon as possible thereafter. Larger employers can help by providing their workers with the W-2 form before the deadline date.

Knox also reminded employees who have worked for more than one concern during 1957 that all of the W-2's they received during the year must be included with the 1957 income tax return.

In the case of couples filing jointly, each of whom was employed during the year, care should be taken that all W-2's are attached and any change of jobs indicated. While the April 15 deadline still is in effect, early filing would prove advantageous both to the taxpayers and to the Government, Mr. Knox indicated.

A woman's memory seldom fails until it come to her age or the last line of a joke.—Wall Street Journal.

The three-day beauty, brains, and talent contest, which opens Friday night in the St. Paul auditorium theatre and continues Saturday and Sunday afternoons, has attracted contestants from 53 Minnesota cities and towns. Thus, it is the biggest queen promotion ever conducted in the middle west. St. Paul Jaycees are pageant sponsors. Miss Marion Hogenson is representing Thief River Falls in the contest.

The winner not only will preside over major Statehood Centennial functions, but also will represent Minnesota in the Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City next fall. She will be crowned by Miss America of 1957, Marilyn Van Derbur of Colorado.

WILDLIFE in Minnesota

Director of Game & Fish

Just for once I'm going to get ahead of the sports writers in making a prediction. I'll predict ten months in advance that our next deer season will be a successful one. This is more than a guess because we know that deer abundance in northern Minnesota is largely determined by available winter food and the severity of winter weather. When heavy snows come, northern Minnesota deer yard up in limited areas which make up only about one-tenth of their total range. From this time until spring, the limiting factor is the food supply on this ten percent of their range. Of course, the shorter the period of yarding, the more deer can be supported, and this year deer are running the woods far into January. Even if the rest of the winter is severe, the yards should provide sufficient food when the deer move in, Regional Game Manager Milt Stenlund says deer were still eating acorns in mid-January and examination of deer killed on the highways reveals plenty of fat.

Plentiful winter food means more deer for two reasons. First, there will be little starvation loss, which sometimes takes a heavy toll of fawns and small deer. Second, does which come through the winter in good shape produce more twins and triplets, while underfed does may abort their young before spring arrives.

Light snow a blessing to fishermen too. This lack of snow during the first half of the winter is as much of a blessing to the fishermen as to the big game hunter. Fish are as dependent upon oxygen in the water as we are upon oxygen in the air. This water oxygen is constantly being consumed—not so much by fish as by plant decay in the lakes. Fortunately, nature has endowed plants with a means of replacing this oxygen. While plants consume oxygen and give off carbon dioxide just as we do in respiration, they have a second function called "photosynthesis" whereby they use carbon dioxide and sunlight and in the process produce much larger quantities of oxygen.

This process goes on summer and winter in a lake as long as there is light, but when snow on the ice shuts out the light, oxygen in shallow lakes is used up, and we get what is erroneously called a "freeze out."

Sometimes a "freeze-out" is a blessing in disguise because the trash fish population is eliminated. Two years ago over 300 lakes froze out in Minnesota. The following spring some of these lakes have a fishing potential were stocked with 200 million hatchery fish and one million mature fish removed from over-populated waters.

Under these conditions, stocking of fry (very young fish), is highly successful because the carrying capacity of the lake is high—plentiful food and little competition. Then we pray there will not be another freeze-out for two or three years, and this time it looks as if our prayers are being answered.

The heavy freeze-out and stocking occurred two years ago. Last year we had only eight lakes freeze out, and so far this winter practicially no lakes have gone bad, and there is little chance they will now. Fish grow rapidly in these shallow fertile lakes. They'll be good sized and ready for catching come fishing time.

It is interesting that scientists apparently have not yet devised a substance for plants when it comes to changing carbon dioxide into oxygen. I learned this from one of the junior space men who complicates my life and gives our home that "lived in" appearance. He says space ships will be equipped with gardens to use up the CO2 and supply the O2. This may interest you but I don't give a darn—I'm not going up in a space ship.

2 Traffic Deaths in Pennington Co. During Past Year

Number Same as in 1956; 685 Persons Killed in Minnesota Road Mishaps

1957 was a black year for Minnesota drivers. Driving more miles than ever before, motorists in the state also raised the traffic fatality rate to its highest level in history. 685 people died on our highways in 1957.

This fatality picture from the standpoint of the counties shows little to brighten the picture. Almost one-half of the counties in the State showed an increase in the death toll. Of the remaining 45 counties, 31 showed decreases and 14 were able to hold their own with figures of 1956.

Two persons died in Pennington county traffic mishaps last year and also in 1956, while four deaths were recorded each year in Marshall county and one in Red Lake county in 1957, compared to three in 1956. The Pennington county victims were children from the Red Lake Indian reservation, who were killed in a car crash in Hickory township.

Of the 31 counties registering a decrease, Kandiyohi county leads the list with a reduction of nine deaths to 6 for the year. Polk county, on the other hand, leads the 42 counties which have an increase for 1957 with 15 more deaths in 1957 than in 1956 for a total of 21 fatalities.

Four counties posted no fatalities: Lake of the Woods, Sibley, Wadena and Watonwan. It is the third year in a row that Lake of the Woods county has had a perfect record.

WE WELCOME YOU IN JESUS' NAME!

A. C. Seitz, Pastor
"We Preach Christ and Him Crucified!"

Jesus loves me ...this I know

I still remember the happy words, and the easy tune. It was the first hymn I ever learned.

More important, I remember the certainty with which I sang "This I know!"

That was faith . . . My faith, firm . . . undoubting.

Have I outgrown that faith? No! But I have grown out from it. The ever-widening circle of experience has been drawing me away from the Center of life.

And when I heard little Janey singing her happy hymn just as I once sang it . . . I knew it was time to get back to the Real, the Unchanging.

And I've found that the Church is the one place in all this world where a man's heart—free of dread, fear, uncertainty—can sing "THIS I KNOW!"

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

B. Youngquist, N.W. School Supt., Speaks Here on Farm Outlook

Members of the Pennington County Crop Improvement association were given high praise Friday in a speech presented to a large audience in attendance at the seed and feed show held in the city auditorium by Dr. Bernard A. Youngquist, superintendent at the Northwest Station, Crookston.

Youngquist told the assembly, in his speech entitled "Look Ahead in Rural Living," that the seed and feed show was an example of the type of endeavor needed more than ever on the part of people in rural areas.

Rural people will become more and more interdependent with the rest of the nation's population as time passes, he said. This makes it more important than ever before that the rural population understand their relations with other parts of society.

What rural people need now is less complaining over conditions prevailing and more planning for the future, he emphasized. The government will continue in agriculture from now on but the farmer should have a greater voice in government farm programs than he has had in the past.

"Neither party has solved the problem of farm surplus to date," Youngquist stated, adding that they never will.

He also stated firmly that the family farm is stronger than ever today, despite fewer numbers of family farms. The family farm will always be here, although perhaps in a different form from the present.

Farmers should look at the whole picture in farm relations as concerned with the rest of the economy instead of just from the farm viewpoint. They should also be concerned, Youngquist pointed out, about the present and lack of basic agricultural research, as a result of the uproar over recent developments in the world arms race.

The voice of the farmer should be much stronger in getting a far greater share of the money set aside for research by the government.

Youngquist also outlined recent developments at the Northwest Experiment Station at Crookston and emphasized the aim of the station as service to farmers in northwest Minnesota. In relation to the farm economy in our area he said more and better livestock is the key factor to farm success in northwest Minnesota.

Lowell Hanson, extension soil specialist, University of Minnesota, spoke on "Different Soils Means Different Management." He pointed out that glaciers, Lake Agassez, vegetative cover and other factors led to the Action to force the drainage of Mud Lake refuge is being taken by a group of eastern Marshall county residents. A mass meeting has been set for Friday, February 14 at 2 p. m. at Gatzke to take area action in an effort to get the federal government to drop the level of the lake.

Ole Prestebak recently was elected temporary chairman of the Anti-Wetlands group at a preliminary meeting at the Prestebak farm.

Three farmers of the area will speak at the February 14 meeting. They are Delmar Hagen of Gatzke, Oliver Howland of Grygla, and Gunsten Skomedal of rural Thief River Falls.

Farmers have charged that the land in the refuge is not being farmed, resulting in the ducks migrating in large numbers to farmers' fields to feed.

An attempt will be made to tie in another conservation problem to the course of action. This is to halt the damage caused by beaver moving westward from the forested areas.

Marshall County Commissioner Sofus Bjertness has stated that the county government has taken steps to remedy the situation at times but they have not been able to get the cooperation of the state conservation department in regard to the beaver problem.

Local Garden Club Aids in Arboretum

Sow and Hoe Club Gives Support to State Project

The Sow and Hoe garden club is helping to make possible the development of a landscape arboretum which will play a leading role in increasing the variety of ornamental trees and shrubs for home yards in this state.

The local club is among the almost 450 garden clubs affiliated with the Minnesota State Horticultural society which Thursday, Feb. 6, presented to the University of Minnesota a deed to 160 acres of land for a landscape arboretum. In addition to the deed presented to the University by G. Victor Lowrie as president of the Horticultural society, was a check for $25,000 to begin development of the arboretum.

The Sow and Hoe club was among the clubs throughout the state, along with numerous individuals, contributing to the fund to buy the land and to begin development of the arboretum, according to Eldred Hunt, secretary of the Minnesota State Horticultural society.

The arboretum will be devoted to research in testing and developing hardy ornamentals for landscaping home grounds in Minnesota.

Located on Highway 5, a mile from the University fruit breeding farm near Excelsior, the landscape arboretum consists of 160 acres of woodland, lakes and open fields to be developed by University horticulturists.

Christmas Seals Finance TB Tests

Testing Program for '58 Now Getting under Way

In school, industry and community, plans for tuberculosis case-finding surveys are now getting underway for 1958, according to a Christmas Seal news release.

First among communities to schedule tuberculin testing for people of all ages is the Isle-Wahkon area, where recent discovery of active tuberculosis cases has brought requests for an all-out survey. TB tests for about 2,500 in that district will take place in mid-February. Plans are also being made for community-wide testing in Wyanette township near Cambridge. Costs of the programs will be paid with county Christmas Seal funds.

Reports so far tabulated at Christmas Seal headquarters show that last year at least 65,000 pupils and more than 6,000 teachers and school employees in 33 counties took part in tuberculin testing programs. Christmas Seal funds aid in financing the testing and follow-up chest x-rays for tuberculin reactors. In addition, 11,436 Cottonwood county residents participated in a county-wide tuberculin testing program, which was the Christmas Seal organization's biggest single undertaking for 1957.

"Tuberculin tests periodically are recommended for all people of all ages," the Christmas Seal release states, "except the persons who know they are tuberculin reactors. These individuals harbor TB germs in their bodies need chest X-rays at least once a year to make sure the germs are not causing active disease."

Warren City Council Signs Bureau Power

Warren residents will enjoy the benefits of Federal Bureau of Reclamation electric current, possibly by April 1, says the Warren Sheaf.

Members of the city council adopted a resolution at a special meeting Monday night to authorize Mayor L. J. Fournier and City Clerk Charles J. Carlson to enter into a contract for the city with the bureau for secondary power which will serve the city during the light load summer months, according to H. R. Drews, city engineers.

Council members will negotiate with Otter Tail Power Co. or Minnkota Power Cooperative to serve as the wheeling agent for the power generated by the Bureau of Reclamation Missouri river dams in North and South Dakota.

If a favorable contract is secured through Otter Tail Power whose high voltage transmission lines skirt the city limits, it will be necessary to construct only a short transmission line to a substation at the present power plant. However if Minnkota is designated as the wheeling agent, it will be necessary to build a transmission line from the Minnkota line near Argyle to Warren, Mr. Drews pointed out.

The contract with the Bureau provides for power at a cost of 4.4 mills at the Warren switchboard which would result in a saving of approximately 1 cent a kilowatt from locally produced power, said Drews. This would result in a saving of between $20,000 and $25,000 annually for the municipal power department in operating costs, fuel and lubricating oils and labor.

Under the contract approved by the council, the city would receive up to 1,000 K.W. daily of firm seasonable power from about April 1 to November 1 until 1961 when the city could expect to receive firm power from the bureau. The city's approved application calls for 1,500 K.W. in 1961, 2,000 K.W. in 1963 and 2,500 K.W. in 1965.

The city will have to build the substation and the power line from the station to the main switch board at the power plant.

Willmar Man Heads Minnesota Dairy Industry Group

D. T. Carlson Elected to Succeed W. S. Moscrip, Who Had Served 10 Years

D. T. Carlson, Willmar, Minnesota executive secretary of the Northwest Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers, last week was named president of the Minnesota Dairy Industry Committee, state unit of the American Dairy Association at the organization's annual meeting in St. Paul.

He succeeds W. S. Moscrip, St. Paul, who had been president for the past ten years. A representative of Land O' Lakes Creameries, Inc., for the past 8 years on the MDIC board of directors, Moscrip had been unanimously elected to the Land O' Lakes board again this year to represent it, but he declined to accept the directorship.

Associated with the dairy industry his entire life, Moscrip was one of the founders of the Minnesota Dairy Industry Committee and the American Dairy Association. Moscrip was a well known breeder of Holstein cattle and had operated the North Star farm at Lake Elmo until 8 years ago.

In the dairy industry for 45 years, Carlson had been president of MDIC from 1919 to 1938 and was one of the founders and first president of the American Dairy Association in 1940. He was president of ADA until 1948.

New vice president of MDIC to succeed Carlson is Andy Erickson, Badger, a dairy farmer and member of the board of directors for the past two years. Erickson is also the MDIC representative on the American Dairy Association executive committee.

All of the other officers and members of the executive committee of MDIC were re-elected for another term. They are William Anderson, Monticello, treasurer; W. E. Combs, St. Paul, secretary; C. L. Cole, St. Paul, Assistant secretary; Emmet Carroll, Rosemount; and Walter Schultz, Nicollet, executive committee members.

16 Counties Quit Paying Fox Bounty

State Game Officials Are Opposed to Bounty

Latest reports from throughout the state reveal that sixteen counties are no longer paying bounties on fox. Additional counties have either reduced bounty payments or eliminated the county share.

In making their reports, county commissioners, and auditors, indicated they are receiving countless questions from sportsmen, farmers, and interested citizens about the bounty. With sixteen counties paying no bounty on fox at all, adjacent and nearby counties are questioning whether to continue their bounty payments.

Farmers are questioning the value of the bounty in controlling foxes in the face of a continued increase in the statewide population of this species.

Wisconsin eliminated all bounty payments in July 1957.

Other states close to Minnesota are also closely scrutinizing the value and necessity of bounties. North Dakota and Michigan are reportedly making surveys of their bounty programs.

Minnesota game officials have expressed opposition to the bounty, pointing out that it is not controlling predators and not contributing more game for the hunter.

Easter Seal Society Arranges Screening Session Here Apr. 12

Screening centers for children with speech handicaps who want to attend the Easter Seal Society's speech camp near Stillwater will soon be set up at nine different locations in the state, including Thief River Falls.

The announcement was made today by W. B. Schoenbohm, executive director of the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults (the Easter Seal Society.)

"A team of three speech therapists will interview each child refered by physicians, public health nurses, school principals and other professional personnel, Schoenbohm said. "A schedule has been set up that will enable parents to bring their children to a center, within approximately 50 miles of their home."

The present Easter Seal speech camping program near Stillwater was inaugurated last year and served 78 children, Schoenbohm said. He pointed out there had been 586 referrals for this program and that plans call for expansion of the camp this year.

Schoenbohm said the camp will serve many different types of speech handicaps, including articulation disorders, stutterers, cleft palates, aphasics and voice disorders.

Each child will spend three weeks at the special speech camp, made available to the Society by the St. Paul Kiwanis Club, Schoenbohm said.

During the three weeks, every camper will participate in a program of concentrated speech therapy, as well as enjoying the recreational activities, he said.

The camp staff includes 7 graduate speech therapists and 13 counselors and other aides, he said.

The Easter Seal Society also operates Camp Courage for crippled children, a direct aid program supplying wheelchairs, walkers, hospital beds and other special equipment to the handicapped, and supports five rehabilitation centers in the state, research, employment and educational programs.

The schedule of screening centers includes one April 12 from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. in the meeting room in the court house in this city. Mrs. Margaret Race school nurse, is the local contact.

great variation in soil type. Each soil type needs different fertilizing program to produce according to its capability.

Mervin Syverson, who was introduced by Frank Fanberg, district supervisor Minnesota Crop Improvement Ass'n., spoke on "Processing Seed". Syverson pointed out that grain is not seed until the germination, purity, weed content, and progeny of the grain is definitely established. The need for greater care in handling seed, and proper processing and cleaning of seed is imperative, Syverson stated.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

Hans Christian Andersen was a great story teller. His stories not only were amusing but each had a moral.

We're reminded of one in particular about the king who loved fine clothes. Seems this pair of shysters sold him a bill of goods about the clothes they made being so fine only quality folks could see them.

Well, rather than admit he couldn't see the non-existent fine cloth they held up for him to examine, the king exclaimed over its beauty and texture, and submitted to a fitting for a non-existent suit of clothes.

He spread the word to all in his Kingdom that only quality folks could see the finery when he wore it. So, on the day of the big parade all the people had been forewarned that unless they were quality folks they wouldn't be able to see the fine soup and fish the king was wearing — with the result that when the king passed by in the altogether, people, not wanting to appear common, oohed and aaahed over the non-existent finery.

That is, they did until a little boy whispered to his mother, "Look Mamma—the king doesn't have any clothes on!"

The situation deteriorated rapidly from there on, and the king ran home in disgrace . . . in his birthday suit.

The lesson here is; whose was the positive thinking?

Like the little boy in the story, we believe in calling 'em the way we see 'em. Anything but the truth isn't fit to be said.

However, we sometimes have a lot of difficulty to avoid putting both feet in our mouth. We were pretty badly hobbled when we were writing our Jan. 20 column, apparently.

A few days ago a neighbor visited our place and during the course of the visit she looked around and said, "Oh, you do have a stove and a refrigerator!"

Well, I thought it was tremendously funny but the missus didn't. Seems that some folks thought, from what came out in this column Jan. 20, that we do our cooking differently from most folks nowadays.

What I really meant was, we cook on an old-fashioned electric range (we don't have an electronic cooker.) We also have a refrigerator (fairly new) and good cooking utensils. Our radio is an old one but we enjoy it, in spite of all the rock 'n' roll. We can always switch to a different station.

We don't have a TV, although we would certainly enjoy one. But, the point we were trying to make in our Jan. 20 column was that we can live without it, and a goodly number of other things contrary to what the Madison Avenue boys claim at times.

Lack of some items would be most difficult, we'll admit. Our objection is directed against the network huckster who tells us the things we have are greatly inferior to the product he is selling, or, we just can't live without his product even tho we may have been doing OK without it for years.

We hope you get the idea. Feel better O.E.J.?

The days are getting perceptibly longer now. Another six weeks and folks will be itching for spring to put in an appearance. Anybody seen a robin yet? We read recently that thousands of ducks wintered in North Dakota this year, compared to only a few hundred last year. Upland game in these parts must have fared well this winter, too.

Come to think of it, putting both of one's feet in one's mouth at the same time is a pretty good trick at that. But if you want to learn how, just ask yours truly! SO LONG!

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the

BATTLES AND BALLOTS

In 1857 Minnesotans knew that the territory would soon be a state, and the struggle for political control became very bitter. A frontier rough-and-tumble contest developed over the election of the first state governor, held on October 13 of that year.

The Democratic candidate was Henry H. Sibley, fur trader and respected citizen of the territory. The Republican candidate was Alexander Ramsey, who had come from Pennsylvania in 1849 to be Minnesota's first territorial governor. Though the candidates were warm personal friends, the charges which they leveled at each other during the hard-fought campaign would be thought very surprising in the worst of enemies today.

On election day Minnesota was a vast battleground. Food, drink, and promises were used to induce indecisive voters to make up their minds. Fights at the polls were common, ballot boxes were tampered with, ineligible persons were allowed to vote, and fraud was almost universal on both sides.

For example, when the returns finally came in, it was discovered that the town of Kenyon, a predominantly Republican community with thirty-three legal voters had given Ramsey a 74 to 0 victory. From Pembina, where Sibley's friend Joe Rolette was virtually king, Sibley received a highly suspicious 316 votes and Ramsey none.

When the votes were to be counted, there were so many obviously justified charges of fraud that it was impossible to determine who had won the election. The territorial governor, Samuel Medary, who was a Democrat, appointed a three-man board—consisting of himself, Thomas Galbraith, a Republican, and Joseph R. Brown, a Democrat and one of Sibley's best friends—to investigate and decide the election.

Brown was not willing to let matters take their course. Secretly he counted the ballots in advance. When he found that there were more votes for Ramsey in the box, legal or illegal as they may have been, he persuaded the other members of the committee to accept the decisions of the election boards in each county. In this way, Sibley was declared the winner by the tiny margin of 17,790 to 17,550 votes.

SIX MAIL ROUTES IN 1851

In 1851 Minnesota's mail service was greatly improved when six mail routes were established in the territory. The federal government, upon advice from Minnesota's representative in Congress decided where the routes were to run. The mail was carried on contract by private individuals.

The six routes were described in the "Minnesota Pioneer" for February 18, 1851, and all those who were interested in carrying the mail were asked to submit their bids. The contract for each route was to be awarded to the lowest bidder. The first mail route was "From Mendota at 6 a.m. once a month, 1st day; by Little Rapids, Traverse des Sioux, and Little Rock; to Lac qui Parle by 6 p.m. of the 15th day of said month, 370 miles; and back between 6 p.m. of the 16th and 6 p.m., of the 30th day of the month."

The government also provided for weekly service between Point Douglas and St. Paul and for monthly service between Point Douglas and "the Falls of St. Louis River", near the present site of Duluth. From St. Paul to Fort Gaines, now called Fort Ripley, the mail was to be carried every two weeks, and from Wabasha to Fort Snelling every week. The longest and most difficult route was "From Swan River at 6 a.m. once a month on the 1st day of each month; by Long Prairie; to Pembina by 6 p.m. of the 30th day of said month, 630 miles; and back." In case no one was willing to undertake this dangerous journey so often, the paper said that "Proposals for six trips a year will be considered."

Needless to say, the mail was never carried as regularly as the contract specified. Heroic mailmen were sometimes lost in blizzards or killed by the Indians, and not-so-heroic mailmen often just didn't bother to set out on their routes.

WILLIAMS ARENA

One of the most impressive of the University of Minnesota's sports buildings is Williams arena, a blocklong structure housing Gopher basketball and hockey teams. The arena was constructed in 1927 at a cost of about $650,000. It was originally called simply the Minnesota field house or even "the barn", a name suggested by its great semicircular roof, dirt floor, and drafty interior.

The field house was opened for use at the beginning of the 1927-28 basketball season. Its seating capacity was somewhat over 13,000—7,600 in permanent balcony seats and the rest in temporary bleachers which were removed when the building was used for indoor track meets or for football practice.

Dedication ceremonies were held in January, 1928, at a Minnesota-Ohio State basketball game. The inventor of the game, Dr. James Naismith, was an honored guest and participated in the dedication. The game, incidentally, was won by Ohio State, 42-40, in double overtime.

In 1948 the University initiated a program of repair and modernized the field house. A covering of sheet aluminum was laid over the entire roof at a cost of $210,000—roughly one third of the cost of the entire building in 1927. Another million dollars was spent renovating the interior. A concrete floor was laid; large, heat-wasting windows were bricked up; and a roomy lobby was built along one side of the building. The biggest change made in the interior was the erection of a center wall dividing the space into two separate areas—one containing hockey facilities and the other a basketball court. Basketball seating capacity was increased to 18,025, making Minnesota's field house the largest college basketball court in the United States.

Upon completion of the remodeling, the field house was officially renamed in honor of Dr. Harry L. Williams, beloved University football coach from 1900 to 1921. Rededication ceremonies were held on March 4, 1950.

Prowler Hockey Six Wins and Ties

"It was a loss and tie for coach Johnny Matchefts' Prowlers as they met the region's top-ranked teams in a pair of conference hockey games on Friday and Saturday. Playing at Roseau on Friday night the Prowlers dropped a 4 to 2 decision to the powerful Rams, with the Roseau line of Dave Wensloff, Ed Bulauca, and Larry Anderson accounting for all of the Ram goals. Archie Schneider, just recently moved up to a front line spot on the Prowler squad, tallied the two goals for the blue and gold, getting his markers in the first and third periods.

The Prowlers will conclude their 1957-58 schedule on Tuesday night, when, on the Arena rink, they meet coach Al Maki's Warroad Warriors.

Saturday night's game here, against the Baudette Burbots, found the Prowlers trailing by a 3 to 1 score entering the final minutes of play. Coach Matchefts pulled goalie Niel Carlson out the net to make room for another forward, and the strategy paid dividends for at the 13:44 mark, Mike Poole, following a faceoff in the Baudette zone, slapped a goal into the north cage. And just as the game-ending buzzer sounded, Poole, from a scramble in front of the Baudette net, shoved the puck past goalie Rod Pickett, tying the score at 3-all.

Neither team scored in the sudden-death five-minute overtime period, and as a result each team will be credited with one point in the conference standings.

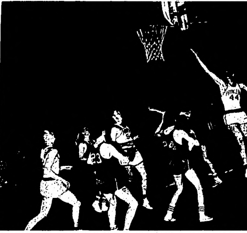
Ken DeLap in Last Minute Basket Try



Prowler co-captain, Ken DeLap (44) eludes Warren's David Brada (35) in the final minute of the Prowlers vs. Ponies basketball game here on Friday night to take a lay-up shot at the east basket. The ball rolled off the rim. Prowlers awaiting the rebound are co-captain Jim Bennes, (51) and Stan Torgerson (42). Warren players positioning for the defensive rebound are Gary Solmonson (23) and Billy Gilbert (24).

The Prowlers won the district conference tilt by a 79 to 38 score.

Future Prowler Cagers In Action

Prowlers vs. the Rams

When the Roseau Rams defeated the Prowlers at Roseau on Friday night, by a 4 to 2 score, it marked the fourth straight win for the Rams over the Prowlers. In last season's two-game series, the Rams, by 4 to 2 and 5 to 1 scores, were victorious. And in an earlier game this year, on the Arena ice, Roseau won by a 6 to 2 score.

Over the long haul, since hockey became an official high school sport in 1944-45, the Prowlers and the Rams have engaged in thirty-eight hockey games. During that time, the Prowlers have won twenty-one games, lost eleven, and tied six.

While the Rams are working on a winning streak of four games, coach Oscar Almquist's club will have quite a way to travel before they reach the ten-game winning streak that the Prowlers established over Roseau from 1947 and into 1953.

Quite an Honor

It surely must be quite a thrill and an honor for the Christian family in particular, and Warroad hockey fans in general, to have the three Christian brothers—Gordy, Roger, and Billy—together on the team that is to represent the United States in the world hockey tournament being held in Oslo, Norway, Feb. 28th to March 9th.

In pre-tournament exhibition games, the Christians, playing at forwards, have proven to be strong skaters and potent scorers. They are reserving of selection to the AHA hockey squad.

Local high school fans are well-acquainted with the hockey talents of the Christians, for the boys have competed against the Prowlers on numerous occasions. Gordy and Roger and Billy always gave the Prowlers, and the Prowler hockey fans, many anxious moments. The three Christians were, and are, noted for their breakaway rushes.

The Warroad Warriors, in those days, stressed a "sleeper" type of game, with one of the Christians up near the far blue line or center ice waiting for a clearing out pass from the defensive zone. When they received the pass Gordy, or Roger, or Billy would make a rush at the goal. With their stick handling ability and skating speed, the boys were always a problem.

We can recall when Gordy, the oldest brother, made his first trip down here as a member of the Warroad high school squad. At the time he was only an eighth grader. In 1945 and '46, after hockey was installed as a major sport by the Minnesota state high school league, Gordy was a member of that famed Warrior line that had Max Oshie and Sam Gibbons at the wings, with Christian at center.

Gordy followed up his high school career by enrolling at North Dakota and there he became a valued member of the North Dakota Sioux hockey squad.

In our opinion, and it has been formed after watching the boys in action many times, the Christian with the greatest hockey potential is the youngest brother, Billy. We would like to see Bill go on to college, but we hear that such a happening is doubtful.

Pioneer Days

We had occasion to glance through a copy of the Thief River Falls News-Press dated Dec. 24th, 1914, and of particular interest was the write-up of the season-opening basketball played in the high school gymnasium.

The Prowlers (although they weren't called the Prowlers back in those days) defeated the Bagley team, 29 to 26, in a game that was described as follows, "Loose playing characterized the work of both teams."

State Park Folks Dislike Lipstick

Running a close second to the litterbug as a creator of ulcers for state park personnel is the lipstick spreader.

Lipstick spreaders fall into two general classifications. One is the inconsiderate lipsticker who uses the lipstick to put on color where it will do the most good and then spreads it from her lips to towels, napkins, coffee cups and glasses. In the other classification is the lipsticker who uses the lipstick as a brush or pencil. Park managers are on a sharp lookout for a good lipstick eradicator. Know of any?

2 Local Students Graduate at UND

Two Thief River Falls students at the University of North Dakota received degrees at midwinter commencement exercises in Grand Forks Saturday morning. They are Kathryn C. Flom, bachelor of arts, SLA; and Harvey McMahon Jr., Bachelor of science in general industrial engineering. Mae R. Anderson of Newfolden received the degree of bachelor of science in education.

Colder Weather Prevails in Area

Mr. Groundhog Sees His Shadow Here Sunday

B'rer Groundhog's appearance was probably brief Sunday, Groundhog Day, because, if his shadow didn't scare him, the cold temperature probably drove him back indoors.

According to that our area is due for six more weeks of winter. However, our northwest Minnesota latitude makes such forecasting a cinch since it can be safely assumed we'd have six weeks more winter even if the woodchuck was an extinct creature.

Temperatures didn't reach the 20-above mark in the period since last Wednesday and low temperatures ranged from 3 below Thursday to 11 below Sunday. Highs ranged from 17 Thursday to Sunday's 11 above. No precipitation fell during the period.

The KTRF forecast is for increasing cloudiness and not so cold today, with high temperatures in the twenties. Tonight it will be cloudy and occasional light snow is predicted, along with not-so-cold temperatures. Lows of 5-15 above are forecast.

Light snow is also forecast for Tuesday, along with colder temperatures. Winds today will be light, becoming southeasterly, 10-15 m.p.h. this afternoon or tonight.

Prowler 5 Whips Warren 79 to 38

Sprinting away to a 24 to 11 lead at the end of the first period, and a lop-sided 41 to 19 advantage at the intermission, the Prowlers had an easy time in corralling the Warren Ponies in a district conference basketball game played here Friday, the locals winning by a 79 to 38 score.

This weekend will find the Prowlers meeting a pair of tough regional and Northwest conference foes. On Friday night, Feb. 7th, on the Lincoln high school gymnasium court, the Prowlers will face the Crookston Pirates; and on Saturday night, Feb. 8th, the local squad will travel to Bemidji for a game against the high-flying Lumberjacks. In previous games against these two teams the Prowlers have registered a win and a loss, defeating Crookston by a 65 to 54 score at Crookston, and losing to Bemidji, 61 to 52, in a game played here early in the season.

Coach Alan Adams used his entire nine-man squad in the game against Warren on Friday night, and all of the boys entered the scoring column.

Jimmy Bennes, who played a strong game in clearing the defensive backboard being particularly effective in the second half, also proved to be one of the Prowlers high point players, notching 12 points to share scoring honors with Dick Hanson.

Other "double figure" scorers for the Prowlers were Phil Hanson, Mickey Hanson, and Lynn Nicholson, scoring ten points apiece.

The high point man for coach Irv St. John's team was lanky center Tom Knutson, who tallied nine points. Knutson's play was handicapped greatly in the second half as he was "carrying" four personal fouls.

Cookbook Is Due for Centennial

Local Homemakers Asked to Submit Their Recipes

A search for recipes to be compiled in a 200 page Minnesota Centennial Cookbook was announced this week by Mrs. Donald Heng, Minneapolis, Centennial women's division chairman.

Recipes are needed from each of Minnesota's 87 counties as each county will be highlighted. A final selection of 10 or 12 from each county will be featured.

"We are not looking for run-of-the-mill cake recipes or the like," Mrs. Heng explained. "We want the cookbook to contain pioneer and nationality recipes appropriate to the county and people in the area from which they come."

Entries should be forwarded to the Centennial Cookbook Committee, Women's Division, Minnesota Centennial, 1958 University Avenue, St. Paul 4. Deadline is February 15.

Categories include bread, casseroles, desserts, fish, fowl and game, meat, sauces, dressings and soup. Specialty items should include outdoor cooking, family traditional recipes and nationality favorites "with a distinctive twist".

"We also are looking for any little anecdote or history that might go with the recipes submitted for additional interest," Mrs. Heng said.

The cookbook will be published in May.

Congress Bill Seeks Dairy Stabilization

A new dairy stabilization act was introduced in the Senate last Monday by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey on behalf of himself and Senator Wiley, Wisc., calling for establishing a comprehensive national dairy policy "commensurate with the importance of dairying in the national economy."

As a part of the policy declaration, the criteria for price stabilization would include not only assurance of adequate supplies of milk and dairy products for consumers, but "a fair return to producers—taking into consideration investment, risk, and the labor of the producer and his family", Senator Humphrey declared.

Senator Humphrey said he was introducing the legislation at the request of the National Milk Producers Federation, the National Grange and the National Farmers Union "to assure a serious study by our committees on agriculture of a new and longer-range approach to better dairy legislation."

"The new measure is an outgrowth of negotiations among interested dairy and other farm groups in an attempt to obtain the maximum unity on a new, long-range approach to sounder dairy legislation", Senator Humphrey declared.

"We support the principle of trying to unite the dairy industry toward developing a better program for stabilization of dairy income and dairy supplies, and want to see that the recommendations of these groups are given serious study." He called attention to the fact that similar proposals in alternate form had also been introduced and said such action was "welcome."

"We believe submission of these measures to our Senate and House agriculture committees offers an opportunity for comparing them together and working out an effective program all dairy groups can support," Senator Humphrey declared.

Senator Humphrey also said introduction of the more comprehensive measure "in no way lessons the determination . . . of insisting upon emergency action to prevent the Secretary of Agriculture from further cutting dairy support prices on April 1 of this year, regardless of what is done about new legislation for the future."

"We want to show our good faith in offering constructive alternatives for the future while seeking to protect dairy income now," Senator Humphrey declared.

Nitrogen Parley at St. Paul Feb. 20

1,000 Persons Expected at Three-day Conference

Nitrogen—a critical plant nutrient on many farms in Minnesota—will get some careful attention at a nitrogen conference Feb. 20-22 in the Lowry hotel in St. Paul.

According to W. P. Martin, head of the University of Minnesota soils department, about 1,000 people will attend the conference. It's the first event of this kind ever held in the Upper Midwest.

Martin says the purpose of the conference is to summarize current research on how nitrogen can be used to increase profits per acre from field crops and pastures. Soils and fertilizer experts from the University, other colleges and universities, and commercial firms will report on nitrogen use.

Minnesota farmers are now using about 6 times as much nitrogen fertilizer as they did in 1950, but there is still a place for much more, Martin says.

In addition to hearing research reports, visitors to the conference will visit the new Soils building being constructed on the St. Paul campus of the University and will tour The St. Paul Ammonia products nitrogen plant.

The conference is sponsored jointly by the University and the Minnesota Fertilizer Industry and Soil Improvement committee. All interested person are invited.

Claims Are Approved $4,923,000 in Bonus

Bonus claims totaling nearly 5 million dollars have been approved to date for Minnesota men and women who served in the armed forces during the Korean War. For Pennington county, 82 claims have been approved, aggregating $15,270.

Lyle E. Kinvig, Minnesota commissioner of veterans affairs, said today that funds earmarked for payment thus far under the bonus program total $4,923,342.50. Of this total, $4,770,535 represents claims made by 25,427 living veterans and $152,807.50 represents claims by 461 survivors of those killed in service or who died following discharge.

Living-veterans' claims approved to date average $187.61. Beneficiary claims—those made by survivors—average $331.47.

When the bonus law was passed by the 1957 legislature, it was estimated 110,000 claims would be filed. To date, there have been 46,000 applications, of which 25,888 living and beneficiary claims have been approved. The remained are still being processed.

The legislature authorized payments up to 15 million dollars, with the stipulation that if the money was not sufficient to meet the approved claims each payment would be scaled downward.

Kinvig said it is believed likely that those veterans or survivors with the largest claims would be among the first to file and that those with smaller claims might have delayed filing. "Because of this," he said, "we are not able to speculate at this time on whether the 15 million dollars will be enough to pay off each claimant in full."

The commissioner pointed out that prompt filing by all eligible applicants will help clarify the picture. Deadline for filing is Dec. 31 this year with payments to begin in January, 1959.

Veterans who received the Korean Service Medal are eligible for bonus payments of up to $400. Others who served during the Korean conflict may receive up to $200. Survivors of veterans killed in action are eligible for the full $400.

Commissioner Kinvig said claims have come from every state in the nation except Vermont and also from a number of foreign countries.

Thanks to "Explorer"

The successful launching of a projectile that will keep company for a while with Russia's Sputniks was good news to Americans mainly because it did much to restore confidence in our defense organization. We now know that we too can build rockets capable of penetrating outer space. We have proven to ourselves, and to the world, that we still are in first place as a military power and that we intend to maintain that position.

Russia's successful launching of the first satellite was a great propaganda victory. We do not know how many times they had tried and failed in such an effort. If there were failures the world was not informed about them.

Caught off balance by the Russian success, we proceeded to magnify the achievement by overpublicizing several of our own attempts which the world laughed merrily at as Flopniks. Our prestige took a severe beating, a setback we probably deserved.

Now, following our humiliation, we are restored once again to a place of honor at the head table. And in time we probably will look back upon our humiliation as a very much worth while experience that awakened us to a realization of the fact that we are not a nation of supermen. We now know that we are not justified in taking our security for granted.

And now that we have proven we can match Russia's tricks with rockets we are in a better position to participate in those summit talks Kruschchev has been so insistent about. His eagerness for such a meeting, where he could pose in the reflected glory of his two moons while our representatives would appear in the shadow of several failures, is understandable. Thanks to "Explorer" we no longer have to eat crow.

Competition Was Good

In its issue of Wednesday, January 29, the Wall Street Journal commented on the Navy's unsuccessful efforts to launch a satellite, and expressed sympathy for the "research people who have done their best to put Vanguard into the air." To the U. S. Army scientists, "who have their Jupiter-C ready, our best wishes," was the hopeful sentiment expressed for the continuing experiments.

Then came this bit of advice, which, as we now are able to look back upon the developments with all of the wisdom of hindsighters, we must recognize as an observation of considerable merit:

> "Our advice to go slow goes to those in Washington who are in such a hurry to make over the Defense Department into a single top service with a single military leader. We don't know when—or whether—Jupiter-C will get into outer space, but we do know there couldn't even be an attempt made now if there weren't competition among the services.
> "Suppose the single military leader of the single top service had decided on a single satellite-missile and his choice had been Vanguard?"

As a member of that group of gripers who have favored a central command and the savings that come with uniformity, we are now willing to admit that there is much to be said in favor of competition — even in the defense department, between the various branches of the military organization.

Higher Standards Needed

An interim committee of the Minnesota legislature is studying the problem of higher education. This committee probably will devote most of its time to the special needs of our own state, and properly so. The university, our state colleges and junior colleges have developed without much plan and certainly without coordination. A reorganization is long overdue.

But many of the questions with which the committee will be confronted are related to the general problems of higher education about which there now is national concern. In this field the 1958 report of the Commission on Liberal Education of the Association of American Colleges, now released, should be especially helpful. The recommendations of this national commission, a group of distinguished educators, merits the respectful consideration of all who are seeking satisfactory solutions for questions that have become so controversial.

As reported in the New York Times, the commission recommends that colleges raise their entrance requirements to four years of mathematics, four years of foreign languages, and two years of laboratory sciences. A general stiffening of standards of admission, it holds, will be in the interests of all, the student, the school, the college and the nation.

Dr. Weigle, chairman of the commission, is quoted as saying, "What we need today is more quality in our education and not greater numbers of inadequately educated students."

The report itself concludes:

> "It is the conviction of the commission on liberal education that minds rigorously disciplined, broadly stretched, analytically sharpened, imaginatively challenged, and [illegible] matured provide the only real [illegible] a nuclear and planetary age."

This Spartan approach to the problem is in refreshing contrast to the "progressive" ideas that have been so generally accepted among public school administrators in recent years.

"Escapes from Paradise"

(Cottonwood County Citizen)

It's absurd to think of any one trying to "escape" from Paradise. But it is said that every day about 800 East Germans "escape" over into West Germany. They are fleeing from the Communist paradise. Every attempt is made to hinder their escape. There is barbed wire at the border, watch towers, armed guards, everything done to keep these people in the communist zone of Germany. But they risk their very lives to get out of it.

One would think that this in itself would be sufficient evidence to the rest of the world that all is not lovely where communism holds sway. But you can't make them believe it.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

The ultimate was reached on our block when a mother loaded her boy's bicycle into the car to drive him two blocks to his class in advanced bicycle-riding.—Winnipeg Tribune.

In an old country bus was a dignified man carrying a pair of women's shoes. He had evidently collected them from the repair shop, and was taking them home to his wife, but had not been supplied with wrapping paper.

A man opposite was interested. Finally, he leaned over, tapped the dignified one on the knee, and said, with a knowing wink: "That's right, gov'nor, don't let 'er gad about."

The trouble with public opinion is that so many people express it privately.—Ex.

SENATOR THYE Reports TO YOU

from the UNITED STATES SENATE

August Andresen

The untimely death of Representative August H. Andresen means, beyond doubt that Minnesota has lost one of her truly devoted and dedicated public servants. August Andresen established a well-deserved reputation for honesty and fair-dealing. He was more than a Congressman of the people. He was a friend, servant, and counselor. The people confided in him, had faith in him, and trusted him. This confidence, faith, and trust were never misplaced with August Anderson. There is a real emptiness today in the hearts of all who knew him. There is an emptiness in the Congress. There is a void which never will be completely filled for many people.

Thye Authors Disaster Bill

As ranking minority member of the Senate Small Business Committee, I have introduced a bill to expand the Disaster Assistance authority of the Small Business Administration. Under the terms of this bill disaster loans would be available to small business firms who were affected by adverse economic conditions produced by excessive rainfall. There are areas where farm income is substantially reduced due to heavy rainfall. This loss of income is reflected in loss of sales for the small firms in the surrounding territory.

This bill would have the effect of linking the disaster programs of agriculture and small business more closely together.—This makes sense to me and I believe that as time goes on the concept will gain widespread support.

Rabies in Wildlife

On Monday, January 20 I attended a meeting in St. Paul on the subject of rabies control in wildlife. I had invited federal and state officials to attend so that a free and open discussion of the problem could result.—First, I want to clarify one point. The entire purpose of this meeting was to discuss the spread of rabies from infected wild life. Actually this type of rabies case has doubled during the past ten years and it now poses a threat to our domestic animals and pets.—Representatives from the Department of Agriculture and the Public Health Service in Washington attended along with state officials from Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, and North Dakota.—Everyone agreed that we faced a serious problem in the midwest. The remedy will come through intensive research which is supported by the states and the federal government. This is a subject which I have long been interested in. I intend to follow it through to completion

AIRMAN HOWARD HALBASCH AT SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE

Airman Howard D. Halbasch of Thief River Falls, recently entered the communications equipment repairman school at Scott Air Force Base in Illinois.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

Safety is a goal we seek in many ways. One of our most serious problems areas is in the field of traffic safety. We are trying to secure the cooperation of every driver and every pedestrian in our efforts to reduce the tool of life and property taken by accidents on our highways. The war against automobile accidents must be waged continuously and by all.

Other Safety Fields

There are other areas where safety is an important matter. I hope that many of you read the recent announcement from the Minnesota Department of Health which tells about the setting up of a Poison Information Center, which will operate in the hospitals of the Twin Cities area and in about eleven regional hospitals throughout the state. The central agency will maintain a complete file regarding the identification of the ingredients of products which may be dangerous or harmful if swallowed or improperly used. The centers will offer advice and assistance by means of a 24-hour-a-day telephone service.

The new agency will conduct educational campaigns to acquaint parents with the proper methods of handling and storing potentially harmful substances. A recent study showed that 80 percent of the deaths from accidental poisoning in Minnesota occurred in the home. Most of the victims were under four years of age.

On the Farm

Many serious accidents have occurred on the farm, particularly in the use of farm machinery. In the past, much greater effort has been made to guard and protect against the hazards of machines used in factories than for those on the farm.

The Accident Prevention Division of the Minnesota Industrial Commission has been giving particular attention to securing more adequate guards on farm machinery. It has issued orders directing firms that manufacture and seel farm machinery to provide such guards wherever possible.

The manufacturers of such machinery have been eager to cooperate. Minnesota manufacturers have conferred with our officials and discussed measures to be taken. An out-of-state manufacturer has requested one of our inspectors to explain in detail how their machinery should be guarded in order to have uninterrupted sale in Minnesota.

Minnesota is taking a lead in this field. As more and more complicated machinery is used in farming operations, this kind of effort is essential to prevent crippling and fatal accidents on the farm.

Minnesota Honored

For the third time, Minnesota has received a bronze plaque for the most outstanding progress in safety education in the nation. I think our citizens have the right to be proud of the work done by our schools, as well as that done by the many other state agencies and by volunteer groups in the interest of safety.

THIS WEEK

—In Washington

With Clinton Davidson

If you listen to the debate in Congress this week you can hear what sounds remarkably like an echo of speeches made some 33 years ago in those same House and Senate chambers.

The issue is the same: How important to our defense is air power? The central figure of the debate in 1925 was the well-remembered Brig.-Gen. William "Billy" Mitchell, an early and earnest advocate of air power.

Mitchell was being courtmartialed by the Army for criticising the military brass for failure to build up our almost non-existent air force. Congress was divided over whether Mitchell was a crackpot or a genius.

The question, again, is how important is the airplane to our defense? Has it, or will it soon, become antiquated by guided missiles? Those are questions this session of Congress must attempt to answer.

Who will make the important decision? Two small groups of experts, the Senate and House sub-committees for Air Force appropriations, have major responsibility for supplying the answers. The conclusions they reach can determine the success or failure of our defense against aggression.

Hearings on President Eisenhower's budget request for Air Force funds, including both missiles and planes, will be begun by the committees within the next few weeks. This and a later column will be intended to give you a behind-the-scenes look at how those committees think and function.

First, the Senate sub-committee. Both Chairman Dennis Chavez, a New Mexico Democrat, and ranking minority member Leveritt Saltonstall, a Massachusetts Republican, are men of unusual vision and ability.

Sen. Chavez fought for more money for our defense all last year, bucking the "economy" tide that was running strongly. That he was right is now indicated by President Eisenhower's request for a supplemental defense appropriation for the remainder of this fiscal year.

The New Mexico Senator has combined ability and 35 years of seniority to rise to the head of one of the most important and powerful committees in Congress. Replying to charges that Congress had cut military funds too drastically, he told us:

"My figures show Congress has not been reluctant to provide the money to assure this country's safety. We are going to keep right on providing every cent needed to maintain our position as a world power."

Two years ago Sen. Chavez, with what now proves to have been remarkable foresight, fought successfully to include a billion dollars more in the Air Force budget than the Administration had asked for or wanted. As much or more than any other man in Congress he has helped to build a strong U. S. air force.

Sen. Saltonstall came to the Senate in 1944 and has twice been re-elected. As a former chairman of the Armed Services Committee, he has a thorough knowledge of our military strength and requirements.

"The front line of our defense is SAC (Strategic Air Command) with the B-52, and in the months ahead, we hope, with the B-58. These are the weapons of today and todays defense must be built around them," Sen. Saltonstall said.

The highest proof of virtue is to possess boundless power without abusing it.—Lord Macaulay.

6¢ feeds a chick thru first 4 weeks

Chick Starter "20" was formulated for higher nutritive efficiency at the start, of course. But that's only part of the story. Not one pound of this new feed was released for sale until its higher nutritive efficiency had been proved. Then it was researched again; its efficiency stepped up again. And then—again! That's why today it feeds pullet chicks for even less than 6¢, why it produces healthier birds, why it produces birds that develop to the limit of inherited laying ability. Try it!

THE MINNESOTA CENTENNIAL STORY 1858 to 1958

CHAPTER FIVE

Furs, Forts, Trading Posts

★ The French pathfinders were constantly lured by stories of "Salt Seas", stories of "People of the Sea". They hoped to hit China. But they never overlooked a lively trade in furs.

Almost any little log hut set up by the explorers as a base was called a fort. For protection against the Indians it had to be built like a fort. But more often than not it soon became a trading post where the Indians could get anything from beads and ribbons to rifles and rum for their valuable furs.

Most of these forts usually consisted of several small log buildings —houses for the commandant and the missionary, a chapel, a storehouse, a watch-tower, and perhaps one or two other buildings — enclosed by a ten or twelve foot high palisade of logs. The enclosure would be about 100 feet square. Other buildings might be built outside the enclosure.

Fort St. Charles

The earliest of the French forts on what is now Minnesota soil were erected along the shores of Lake Pepin during the last years of the seventeenth century. However, the story of Fort St. Charles, on what is now the northernmost boundary of the Northwest Angle, is typical of these fort trading posts.

When an Indian, in the early spring of 1731, told the story in Montreal that he knew of a river which emptied into a "great salt sea", an expedition was quickly outfitted. Pierre Gaultier de Varennes, sieur de la Verendrye, with a party of 50, including three sons and a nephew, set out westward in June.

The following summer, in 1732, the whole party, plus a gaudy escort of 50 Indian canoes, paddled up the Rainy river and across the Lake of the Woods. On the western shores of a northern projection of Lake of the Woods they built Fort St. Charles, named after the governor-general of Canada.

Bustle and Tragedy

Such a fort, at first isolated, in a few years became the center of much bustle and activity as more forts were built farther out and more traders and soldiers pushed into the northwest. As many as 150 canoes frequently stopped in one day — canoes loaded with two or three Indians plus supplies of meat, buffalo fat, bear oil, wild rice, and what-not.

The men at the post kept themselves busy trading furs from the Indians, planting corn and peas, gathering wild rice and even occasionally exploring for iron.

Monotony was broken, too, when the Chippewa and the Sioux went on the warpath. One day 300 warriors rambled by the post on their way to attack the Chippewa. The next day 500 more warriors were going the other way to attack the prairie Sioux.

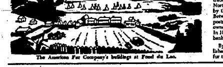
Tragedy occurred in 1736. The expected canoe-loads from Grand Portage were long overdue. La Verendrye sent his eldest son, with Father Aulneau and 19 voyageurs, in search of the awaited supplies.

On an island in Lake of the Woods, an island now known as "Massacre Island", the entire party was trapped by the Sioux. Every man was beheaded. The Sioux had become angry because the French had befriended the Cree, Monsone and Assiniboin Indians.

Minnesota Posts

Fort St. Charles was the second of a string of French posts stretching along the Red and Assiniboin rivers and farther northwest into the Saskatchewan river country. Many more such forts continued to be built throughout Minnesota and the Northwest by British and American trading companies as well as the French.

Posts sprang up along the Mississippi and Minnesota rivers and their many tributaries. Posts were established at Red lake, Lake Winnibigoshish, Leech lake, Otter Tail lake, Mille Lacs, Lake Traverse, Big Stone lake and Lac Qui Parle as well as along many of the streams leading into those lakes.

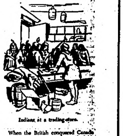


The American Fur Company's buildings at Fond du Lac.

Between 1660 and 1853 about 1[illegible] posts were established in the area.

The Great Trading Companies

The history of fur trading in the northwest can be divided into three periods, that of French, British and American domination.



Indians at a trading-store.

When the British conquered Canada in 1760, the French voyageurs had already hauled back to Montreal thousands of beaver, marten, fox, lynx, bear, otter, wolf and muskrat pelts. In one season one trader recorded sending back more than 18,000 pelts. Something like 3,000 must have been scattered through the Northwest during the latter years of the fur trading era.

With the treaty of 1763 the French lost Canada. The Hudson's Bay company had been chartered in 1670 but had not been too active. The traders waited at their posts for the Indians to bring furs to them. But during the British period the Northwest company began to offer competition. Both companies sent out voyageurs. More lakes and rivers were explored. More furs found their way to Montreal. The X Y company, an offshoot of the Northwest company, offered more competition.

In 1816 John Jacob Astor organized the American Fur company. He soon had posts along the border lakes and rivers and throughout what is now Minnesota. Finally in 1833 the Hudson's Bay company bought off the American traders with an annual payment. The Northwest company had been absorbed by the Hudson's Bay company in 1821. Between 1833 and 1847 almost all the posts in the border lakes region were owned by the Hudson's Bay company. In 1842 the American Fur company went bankrupt.

By the time the territory was established lumbering had begun to replace fur trading.

This chapter of the Centennial Story is sponsored by the T. R. Falls branch of Land O'Lakes Creameries, Inc.

In terms of local payroll and in terms of area business, Land O' Lakes is one of the most important industries in Thief River Falls and northwestern Minnesota. In this centennial year it must be recognized as one of the most important businesses in Minnesota. The interesting story of its development as a great marketing organization of the state is necessary background material for the story of its operations in this area.

Land O' Lakes started its corporate existance in June of 1921, when representatives of 320 of the state's 622 creameries assembled in the House chamber of the state capitol and formed the organization. But that really was not the true beginning. That is when the young tree sprouted, but in back of that occasion were many years of preparing the ground and planting the seed.

The history of Land O' Lakes really began with the start of the first cooperative dairy manufacturing plant in the state, and the leader in the early effort to organize cooperative creameries was Professor T. H. Haecker, who came to Minnesota in 1891 with a background of Wisconsin experience and education in dairying. He was hired by the Regents of the University of Minnesota to take up his work at the Farm School.

Prof. Haecker is recognized as the first and the greatest of the greats in the history of the dairy industry in Minnesota. He gained national and international recognition for his contributions to the development of sound production and processing methods. By 1899 Minnesota had 438 cooperative butter factories, a tribute to his organizing capacity.

With the not-so-gay 'nineties came several important developments in dairying. In 1890 two-thirds of the total butter production in the country was the product of the farm churn, and cream was hand skimmed from the milk that had settled in shallow pans. In the early '90s cream separators came into use as separating stations were established, and the Babcock test simplified the problem of determining the butterfat content of milk and cream. These were important factors in the new way of marketing.

Then came the small cream separator for on-the-farm use, and that proved to be a mixed blessing. It made practical the shipping of cream for greater distances, and resulted in the growth of centralizing plants, highly competitive to the small creamery operations. Here was the start of a long battle for survival waged by the cooperatives.

Prof. Haecker supplied the leadership for this defensive action. In 1902 he arranged a summer-vacation job for one of his young students, Arthur J. McGuire, to tour the state and obtain reliable information on the comparative prices paid by centralizers and the cooperatives. On this mission McGuire covered the southern part of the state on bicycle, earning his board as he went by picking up odd jobs.

It was while in this service that he met one of the top buttermakers of the state, Hans Sondergaard, who operated the Litchfield creamery in Meeker county, the real birthplace of Land O' Lakes Creameries Inc.

The statistics assembled by McGuire were overwhelmingly favorable for the first class cooperative creameries, but from 1900 to 1915, 40 centralizers and 2,000 cream stations came into being in the state. In the fight for volume, quality standards suffered. Small, inefficient creameries, with reduced volume, had excessive manufacturing costs. Small l.c.l. shipments meant much higher freight charges and these small creameries were at the mercy of the brokers in the distant market to which they shipped their product.

In December of 1918 McGuire, then with the extension division of the University, directed an appeal to all creameries to join together as county units, combining some services in order to reduce costs. This was the beginning of cooperation among cooperatives, the basic principle upon which Land O' Lakes was established.

In several counties McGuire's suggestions were followed, including Meeker, where, after a couple of failures, a successful county organization was finally formed in May of 1920. As the head of the newly formed Meeker County Creamery Association, and responsible for much of its success, was John Brandt. And until the day of his death in Middle River, following a district meeting in March of 1953, the story of Land O' Lakes has been pretty much the story of John Brandt.

The Meeker county association did several notable things. It imposed upon its member creameries uniform quality standards. It hired a competent manager to enforce the quality standards and arrange pool shipments. The experiment paid off in substantial cash returns. The success of the Meeker county experiment attracted state-wide attention.

In 1920 a statewide organization, the Minnesota Cooperative Dairies Association, long dormant, was revived and through its efforts a state law was secured which permitted individual cooperatives to join together in one larger agency. And in Congress, the Capper-Volstead bill was introduced, permitting cooperative marketing of farm products in inter-state and foreign commerce, clearing the way of legal barriers to the organization of a cooperative of cooperatives.

It was early in 1921 that the movement to organize the cooperative creameries of the state really got under way. It was a disastrous price decline that forced them to unite. Butter dropped from 76 cents to 29 cents a pound on the New York market, and that was the call-to-arms that united the industry.

A conference of leaders was held March 28 at which a committee was authorized to draw plans for a state organization to be presented at a more representative meeting to be held April 23. Thirty creameries were represented at this later gathering. John Brandt proposed a state-wide marketing association, citing what had been accomplished in his own county. Following a lengthy discussion the delegates voted unanimously for such an organization, and a committee of 11 was authorized to draft a plan for such a permanent organization.

At the June 7 meeting, the committee recommendations were adopted and McGuire was hired to direct the organization work. In the list of volunteer workers is recorded the name of Stuart McLeod, then active in the Goodridge creamery.

The Litchfield area was the first to affiliate with the new association as a district and it is still District No. 1 in the Land O' Lakes organization. At a meeting held at Thief River Falls in December, 35 creameries in this area joined as District No. 14 and this was the fifth district to become a part of the organization. By the end of the year 200 creameries had joined.

But while the organization was formed in 1921, that year merely brought to an end the preliminaries of an operation that has continued to expand with each succeeding year. It was not until 1924 that "Land O' Lakes" was adopted as the name for the top quality products of the company which officially was still known as the Minnesota Cooperative Creameries Association, and the product name was adopted as the corporation name in 1926.

More about that expansion, and especially the development of the organizations operations in this area, will be submitted in a later installment.

Many Attend Open House at St. John's New Church Home

First Services Held in Attractive New Edifice Last Sunday Morning

The new St. John's Lutheran church edifice was used for worship for the first time Sunday, the church being well filled by members and guests. The sermon for the opening of the new house of worship was on the topic: "That We May be Better Laborers In The Lord's Vineyard" and was based on Matthew 20: 1-16.

The Rev. A. C. Seitz, pastor of St. John's, stated in his address: "Far from feeling that we are deserving of special consideration by the Lord Jesus, perhaps because of great service to Him over a period of years, perhaps in the present project of building our new church, perhaps in the support of His world-wide mission program, let us instead rejoice that here we can do still more work for Him."

St. John's building committee members were gratified not only by the large attendance at the morning service, but also by the large turnout at the open house in the afternoon and evening. Public dedication services will be held when the total plant, including the basement, fellowship hall and kitchen facilities, are completed, probably not until May or June.

New Vice President

ANDY ERICKSON

Of Badger, a member of the board of directors of the Minnesota Dairy Industry Committee for two years, last week was elected vice president of the organization at its annual meeting in St. Paul.

He succeeds D. T. Carlson, Willmar, who is the dairy group's new president. Erickson also was named to the American Dairy association's board of directors and executive committee. As vice president he is also a member of the MDIC executive committee.

Anderson is a prominent dairy farmer of the Badger community, specializing in Holstein cattle. Several of his sons and daughters have won top honors in the calf shows held in connection with Northwest Dairy Day in this city.

Plans have been completed for the first annual fishing derby to be conducted here Sunday afternoon, from 12:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. The derby, which is being conducted by Boy Scout troop number 57, will operate under a set of rules which will be posted at the derby's headquarters at Tindolph Park.

The contest, which is a hook-and-line affair, will be open to all fishermen upon the payment of a $1.00 entry fee. According to present plans, the fishing contest waters will be that portion of Red Lake river between the Third street bridge and the Eighth street bridge.

Prizes will be awarded to fisherman catching the biggest game fish, and a consolation prize will be given to the angler catching the smallest game fish. In addition, a prize will be awarded to the contestant coming the furthest distance.

The derby chairman announced that an auger-equipped tractor will be available to drill holes for the fishermen. Contestants will be able to get bait and minnows at the headquarters.

Doughnuts and coffee, for the chilled contestants, will be provided at a nominal price.

Quiet Session of Pennington Board Was Held Tuesday

Dr. Paul Wendt Renamed County Health Officer; Ask Bids on Culverts

Little business was acted upon at the February meeting of the Pennington county board held at the courthouse Tuesday.

Among the items acted upon was reappointment of Dr. H. Paul Wendt as county health officer. Commissioners Don L. Olson and Merle Lindberg were also appointed to serve with Wendt as the county board of health.

One beer license was issued to Gilmer S. Manderud, who operates a tavern at Highlanding.

A three-man land appraisal committee to assist the county engineer was appointed by the commissioners. The committee, whose names were not released, will help the county engineer in matters pertaining to acquiring additional land for roadways under the expanded highway program.

The only other business was authorization of County Engineer Joseph Seidel to advertise for culverts and equipment rental for the 1958 road program in the county.

Jobs Inc. Election Put off to Feb. 20

To Be Held Following Monthly Chamber Dinner

Due to the fact that the scheduled annual meeting and election of directors of TRF Jobs Incorporated Tuesday evening was a few members short of the required quorum, the election was deferred to a meeting to be held immediately following the Chamber of Commerce dinner Thursday evening, February 20.

Stanton R. Dahlen, trustee, was called on by President Bill LaFave, and he reported that the drive for funds last fall to induce the Dow Key company to move its plant to this city had been an outstanding success, the amount raised exceeding the set quota by more than one-third.

LaFave stated that the results proved that Thief River Falls businessmen are interested in promoting local industries.

E. O. Peterson, treasurer, made his report, and Robert J. Lund, secretary, recorded the proceedings.

Registration of Lincoln Students for 1958-59 Opens

Principal Miles Nelson Says Spanish Returns to Curriculum Next Year

Registration of students for classes to be taken in Lincoln high school next year, 1958-1959, will begin early next week F. Miles Nelson, principal announced today. Many students who have taken advantage of the counselling services have already made plans for an entire high school course. However, some changes have been made in subject listings, and some students will be required to make some changes in their schedule as a result.

Courses in auto mechanics will be offered in the senior year only. Students who intend to take these courses as a preparation for a vocation will be given background courses in high school mathematics and physics during their Junior year. These background courses will be designed to make the industrial courses more meaningful, and will eliminate the necessity of a teacher of those vocational subjects taking time to teach this theory part of the course.

Spanish I will return to the curriculum and will be offered to sophomores and juniors, as will French I and II. Latin I and II complete the language offerings for 1958-1959.

Ruling Made in '50 Death Case by High Court

Insurance Firm Held Liable for Claims in Donarski Deaths

The Minnesota supreme court Friday handed down a far-reaching decision of special importance to buyers and sellers of automobile liability insurance policies when, on an appeal from Pennington county district court, it ruled in favor of the appellants, holding that a provision in the policy that does not require that the insured receive notice that the policy was being canceled "would be in violation of the public policy of the state".

The case was the outgrowth of a 1950 automobile accident near Thief River Falls, in which two young men, Frank and Leonard Donarski, sons of Edward Donarski, were killed and Donna Basse injured. Tim Lardy, formerly of Thief River Falls and now living at Glendale, Calif., was held responsible for the accident, and was sued, judgments totaling almost $18,000 being returned against him.

Later, action was started in district court to compel Farmers Insurance Exchange of Minneapolis, with whom Lardy had insurance, to help pay judgements against Lardy, Judge Paul A. Lundgren holding for the insurance company.

The insurance company said it had mailed Lardy notice of cancellation and that his policy expired two days before the accident. Lardy did not receive the notice.

A clause in Lardy's policy said mailing of notice of cancellation "shall be sufficient proof of notice."

H. O. Chommie, attorney for Edward Donarski, special administrator of the estate of Frank Donarski et al., then carried the case to the supreme court, which as stated above upheld Donarski's claim.

With accrued interest, the claims against Lardy and the insurance company now aggregate approximately $25,000.

The supreme court's decision was written by Justice Frank T. Gallagher.

School Meeting Is Told of Need for More Classrooms

Two More Elementary Classrooms Required by Next Fall, Says Eastman

For the coming school year the Thief River Falls schools will need at least two additional elementary classrooms to accommodate the steadily increasing enrollment, it was stated by Kermit Eastman, elementary school director, at a discussion meeting Monday evening in the Washington building.

Eastman supplied figures on estimated future enrollments, starting with an actual enrollment of 1,312 in 1957 and estimates of 1,340 for 1958; 1,401 for 1959; 1,458 for 1960; and rising to 1,588 for 1965.

In discussing the school curriculum, Eastman stated that children are grouped according to achievement as indicated by standardized test results, teacher-made tests and teacher appraisal of pupil progress. Every effort, he added, is made within the groups to provide learning experiences at the level of the children.

Suggestions were made that a summer school program be instituted for exceptional and slow-learning pupils, and it was pointed out that the cost factor must be considered, since state aid funds are not available for such courses.

Eastman reported that the school staff is now engaged in preparing manuals designed to improve courses in social studies and music, as well as in kindergarten classes.

School Board Buys Four New Buses Tuesday

Tunberg Motor Co. Awarded Contract; E. Bratsch Resigns

The Thief River Falls board of education, at a special meeting Tuesday evening, awarded to the Tunberg Motor company the contract to supply four school buses, each with a capacity of 42 passengers, on the firm's low bid totaling $22,136 after allowing for four old buses taken in on trade. Three other local dealers submitted bids.

At the meeting, Elmer Bratsch, a member of the board the past five and one half years, submitted his resignation, giving as his principal reason that the position conflicts with his business activities. It was indicated that a successor to serve until the next school district election in May may be named at the March session.

The board also acted to renew contracts with members of the school administrative staff for the coming year, and offered contracts to members of the faculty. Supt. Irwin Mickelson stated that the new salary schedule is not ready for publication in this issue of the Times, pending completion of the detailed tabulation in his office.

Other action taken by the board included decisions not to permit the rental of school buses by groups outside the school, and to continue the driver training program next summer, as was the case a year ago.

Suggested towns for the itinerary of the bookmobile and Miss Emily Mayne of the State Library Department were selected.

To help finance the work of the committee various organizations in the area are being asked to donate money, Mr. Brown stated. One dollar per organization appeared to be satisfactory. This money should be sent to the secretary, Mrs. Albert Kassa of Goodridge, he added.

All those interested in obtaining a multi-county library are asked to contact their county chairman for more information.

Monday's municipal court session was a light affair, with few persons facing Judge H. O. Chommie on a variety of traffic law violations.

The highway patrol had two cases. Harvey Eliason, Goodridge, charged with careless driving pleaded guilty and was fined $15 plus $3.50 costs. Tuesday a juvenile was brought before acting Judge Stanley Mortenson on a speeding charge. A $15 fine was levied upon plea of guilty but suspended, $4 costs paid.

Sheriff Charles Richards had one case, that of Herbert M. Amundson, city, in court. Amundson pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of liquor, and was fined $100 plus $3.75 costs, in addition to having his license revoked.

City police cases were most numerous, although several were of a minor nature. David A. Drotts, city, pleaded guilty to making an improper U-turn and was fined $5.

A juvenile pleaded to speeding and was fined $10 plus $3.50 costs.

Conrad J. McDougall, Red Lake Falls, pleaded guilty to careless driving and was fined $25 plus $3.50, and on pleading guilty to driving without a license drew a $25 fine and $3.50 costs the second time.

Leonard E. Hill, Red Lake Falls, pleaded guilty to permitting unlawful operation of a motor vehicle and was fined $15 plus $3.50 costs.

Wednesday, Earl J. Melvie, city, appeared before Chommie on a charge of running a stop sign, pleaded guilty and was fined $5 plus $3.50 costs.

An unusual turn of events in the city was logged during the month of January in connection with traffic offenses listed in municipal court, Chief Elton Cummings announced this week. Cummings said not a single person was arrested during that month for driving under the influence of intoxicants, which is considered very rare.

John Lang and Maurice Haney of this city, Henry Williams of rural Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hagen of Rosewood spent from Thursday until Sunday in the Cities and attended the Minnesota Turkey Growers convention and also the St. Paul Winter carnival.

Minors Charged in Rural Breakins, Sheriff Reports

A number of break-ins of vacant farmhouses in the county, involving mostly minor thefts, and thefts of gasoline were reported solved by the county sheriff's office this week.

Few of the break-ins had been reported to the sheriff's office so that Sheriff Charles Richards and Deputy Eugene Prestegard had little or nothing to go on, other than tips and, sometimes, rumors concerning the depredations.

The cases occurred over a period of about two months or longer, the county lawmen stated. Recent developments in the investigation finally led to questioning of two different groups of youths and juveniles, several of whom will appear in municipal court at a later date.

No names were released pending outcome of the forthcoming court hearings, Sheriff Richards said today.

Early Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Ida Holtorf, city, hit a lamp post at the E. Third st.-Kendall av. intersection. No damage estimate was given for her car but the light standard was demolished. A citizen had reported the accident and identified the driver of the car and later Mrs. Holtorf also reported it after leaving the scene earlier. She was charged with careless driving.

N.W. Development Assn. Convened Here

The Northwestern Minnesota Development association got off to a good start in 1958 when an enthusiastic group gathered Monday evening, January 27th at Thief River Falls. The organization, headed by Glenn Mattson of Fosston, is moving forward on many fronts in a well integrated program of helping communities in northwestern Minnesota develop new industry and stimulate business through joint planting.

Five districts were represented at the meeting.

Major business transacted by the group was the discussion of a resolution presented by Albin Erickson of Roseau in behalf of the Roseau Conservation Club and signed by several community organizations in that area pertaining to the Roseau River Channel project. After lengthy discussion the directors passed a resolution supporting the project as proposed by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers. This, in the opinion of the association, is an important project of paramount importance to the Roseau community where many acres of good farm land is flooded during years of heavy rain.

The Association deeply concerned in the proposed Mississippi Parkway discussed the route of the highway and the Chairman appointed Carsten Meade, Bill LaVave and Albert Gillie to make a study of the location and report at the next meeting, February 24th.

The association is making progress in stimulating interest in finding new ways and means to improve the economy of this area. It is hoped that civic and community leaders of this area will get behind the Association so that it may secure the financial backing and moral support necessary to embark upon new and bigger projects for the mutual good of the entire northwestern part of Minnesota, according to President Mattson.

C., who grew up in Thief River Falls as the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Fuller. Mr. Fuller had been associated for many years with the Hanson and Barzen Milling company here.

Surviving Ryan's death are his wife and four children, and a son and daughter by a former marriage to Eleanore Moravec of Glencoe, who died in 1938.

The Grand Forks Jets, winning a pair of games and picking up six points, made a "big bounce" in the Northwest Hockey league standings this past week. In a two-point game, the Jets defeated the Crookston Pirates; and in a four-point game against the Fargo Flyers, Grand Forks scored a lopsided 18 to 5 win.

The league-leading Thief River Falls Thieves were idle during the week, but coach Paul Bedard's club will return to action this weekend when they engage the Crookston Pirates here on Saturday night, and play at Grand Forks on Sunday afternoon.

With the Minnesota senior amateur tournament scheduled to be played in Minneapolis on March 1st and 2nd, the Northwest Hockey league will have to reshuffle its season-ending league games. The league is slated to conclude play on March 2nd.

Lincoln Six Defeats Warroad Tuesday 4-3

Dale Wennberg's slap shot, from twenty-five feet out after getting a pass from Arlan Hjelle, cleanly beat goalie Jerry Lindsay and swooshed into the north goal at the 14:28 mark of the third period, breaking a 3-all tie and giving the Prowlers a well-earned win over the Warroad Warriors in a regional conference hockey game played here Tuesday night.

The game concluded the 1957-58 schedule for the Prowlers and the win brought the locals season's record to five wins, eight losses, and three ties.

Wennberg's last-minute goal was the only "clean" score registered during the hotly-contested game, with four of the other goals scored being rebounds, and the other two being "tainted" by "breaks".

In the second period, after a scoreless opening stanza, Warroad's Jerry Foster banged in a rebound; Jerry Jorgenson, picking up the rebound of Jerry Larson's shot, to even the score at 4:55. Hjelle made a blue-line on-goal shot, and Wennberg pumped in the rebound, giving the Prowlers a 2 to 0 lead at the 9:08 mark. Warroad's Larry Huerd was credited with a goal, tying the score, when the Prowler defense nudged the disc into the cage.

With Warroad a man short midway in the third period, Don Cornellusen lofted a rink-length clearing shot, and when the bouncing puck eluded goalie Neil Carlson and into the North goal, the Warriors held a 3 to 2 lead. Jerry Jorgenson's rebound, on Hjelle's shot, tied the score at 11:12; and Wennberg's nifty tally provided the game-winning goal at 14:28.

The northern was the largest taken this season by local decoy-and-spear enthusiasts from the river here.

Prowler Wrestlers In Action

Action at the high school gymnasium on Monday afternoon as coach Dale Folger's Prowler wrestling squad dropped a 31 to 11 decision to the Park Rapids squad. Wrestling is a new activity in Prowler athletics, this being the first year that the local school has had a squad engaged in interscholastic competition. Here the Prowler wrestler attempts to pin the Park Rapids matman (dark shorts and tights).

A Planned Campaign

That the Bemidji Lumberjacks intend to go "for the bundle" as far as the state high school basketball title is concerned is evident by the schedule that coach Bun Fortier's cagers have been playing. For instance, on Saturday night they met and defeated the St. Louis Park team, 81 to 74; and on Monday night, in a preliminary to the Indiana vs. Minnesota Big Ten tilt in Minneapolis, the Jacks met, and defeated the St. Paul Cretin team.

St. Louis Park and St. Paul Cretin are only two of a long list of state-wide teams that Bemidji has met, or will meet, this season. Such top-flight teams as Willmar, Moorhead, and Brainerd are included on the schedule. Bemidji is able to contract such an attractive out-state schedule due to the fact that Jacks have complete domination over the competition in district 29. When Bemidji plays a home-and-home series with Park Rapids and Cass Lake, the Jacks have fulfilled their district obligations, and can begin to roam out into inter-district and inter-regional competition. In the eighth region, Bemidji competes, in season play, against East Grand Forks, Crookston, Thief River Falls, and Fosston, and thus gains valuable experience against potential regional tourney foes.

A "key" game in eighth regional, and Northwest conference competition, will be played on the Bemidji floor on Saturday night when the Prowlers invade the B.S.T.C. court to do battle against the Lumberjacks. In an earlier game this season, played here, the Jacks defeated the Prowlers, 61 to 52, but Bemidji had a tussle before they rolled up that nine-point win. In that game, the Prowlers' Dave Hanson outpointed Bemidji's famed Ray Crunk, 22 to 21, but since then Hanson is no longer a member of the Prowlers. That will pose some problems for the locals on Saturday, mainly on how to "contain" the mobile Cronk.

Welcome, East Side

Harold (Snooks) Sullivan, the athletic director of East Grand Forks high school informed us, when he was here with his Little Green Wave basketball team last week, that the East Side school will be entering hockey competition. Snooks wasn't too enthusiastic about icing a team at East Grand Forks for the reason that playing facilities over there leave much to be desired, being restricted to outdoor rinks. But with the authorization of a considerable sum of money for equipment, Snooks has set up a program.

And in charge of this program, which is being started in the seventh and eighth grades, will be Armand Pagliarini. Pag, a native of Eveleth, has had much hockey experience, for he coached at Warroad, Thief River Falls, and Grafton before moving to East Grand Forks.

The East Grand Forks school officials realize that the building of a capable hockey squad is a long-range project, and with that understanding, Pagliarini is concentrating on the youngsters. We hope that the boys do not become discouraged; and knowing the East Side kids from the many years we have seen them in action, we are sure that they will be difficult to discourage. Hockey should be a natural at the East Grand Forks school for the Green Wave has an excellent football tradition. Hockey and football are sport compatibles.

A Winter Feature

Something new will be added to winter sports picture in these parts come Sunday afternoon when, from 12:00 P.M. to 4:00 P.M. a fishing derby will be in progress on the Red Lake river in the vicinity of Tindolph Park. The derby will be sponsored and conducted by Boy Scout troop 57, and it is hoped that a goodly number of the city's anglers will avail themselves of the opportunity of proving their fishing skill.

Of course, several fishermen of our acquaintance will be handicapped considerably by the fact that bullheads will not be eligible for the prize awards.

Park Rapids Takes Local Wrestlers

Prowler Matmen Lose by Total Score of 31-11

The Park Rapids high school wrestling squad, in a match held here on Monday afternoon, defeated coach Dale Folger's Prowler grapplers, 31 to 11. Point-winners for the locals were Mark Maidment, who decisioned Dietchler of Park Rapids; Mike Cummings, who decisioned W. Pike of Park Rapids; and David Carlson, who pinned G. Simiens of Park Rapids.

Other results were, Olson of Park Rapids pinning Webakowski of T. R. Falls; LaBonte of Park Rapids pinning Wilson of T. R. Falls; Holmes of Park Rapids pinning Seyre of T. R. Falls; Saarinen of Park Rapids pinning Christensen of T. R. Falls; Zacarowski of Park Rapids a decision over Hartje of T. R. Falls; Warren of Park Rapids a pin over Anderson of T. R. Falls; and Ladely of Park Rapids a decision over Wedul of T. R. Falls.

Egg Price Outlook Is Viewed for This Year

Minnesota poultry producers can expect prices for eggs to be a little higher between now and late summer than they were during the same months of 1957.

However, prices will be somewhat lower during the fall months, according to S. A. Engene, agricultural economist at the University of Minnesota.

He points out that per capita egg production will be low until new pullets start laying about 7 months from now.

Right now, total egg production is down about 2 percent, while the population has increased. There are 5 percent less hens on American farms than a year ago, but production per hen is up 2 percent.

The "egg-feed ratio"—the amount of feed a farmer can buy with a dozen eggs—is about 50 percent greater than last year. This, Engene says, points to more pullets being saved this year.

This ratio has gone up from one year to the next 15 different times since 1930. In 13 of these times, the increase was followed by an increase in number of pullets saved. So if history repeats itself, there will be an increase of 5 to 10 percent in the number of pullets next fall, Engene says.

Number of layers won't go up as much, though, probably not more than 5 percent. Farmers this year have a higher percentage of older hens than usual in their flocks, and it will take quite a few pullets to replace them.

There will continue to be more eggs laid per hen, so total production a year from now will be higher. The American population will also increase, but per capita egg production after late summer will be above the past year, meaning egg prices by fall will be somewhat lower.

Engene says the outlook means poultry producers need to be more efficient than ever to make a profit. Margins left to pay for labor, shelter, veterinary charges and other costs besides feed have been cut about in half since the 1930's.

No. Central Lines Notes Tenth Year

Firm Now Leads U. S. Local Airline Industry

North Central Airlines will celebrate its 10th anniversary of scheduled operations in its birthplace, Clintonville, Wis., this month, Frank N. Buttomer, vice president, traffic and sales, said today.

During the 10 years since the airline started scheduled service, it has caught and held first place in the local airline industry.

Starting Feb. 21, 1948, with only three nine-passenger planes flying a limited Wisconsin-Minnesota route pattern, the airline today serves 53 cities in nine midwest states over a 3,471 route-mile system. North Central extended new service to Yankton, S. D., Feb. 1.

During 1957, the airline carried 680,930 revenue passengers, a 24 per cent increase over 1956. The company's fleet of DC-3 North-liners flew a total of 9,221,350 miles last year and some 442,-000,000 miles in its 10 years of operation.

Most Must File an Income Tax Return

Internal Revenue Man Gives Notice to Public

There has been little change in federal income tax filing requirements from last year and the same general regulations regarding who must file still apply, according to District Director A. R. Knox of the Internal Revenue Service.

Those under 65 who had a gross income of $600 or more during 1957 must file. If over 65, the income base for filing rises to $1,200.

Individuals whose net earnings from self-employment were $400 or more must file. Persons whose total income from salaries, wages, fees and commissions was less than $600—$1,200 for those 65 or over—should file even though not required to do so, in order to obtain refunds of any tax withheld from their earnings. There are believed to be several thousand students who worked during vacation or on weekends or before or after school, to whom this would very likely apply.

"The form and instruction booklet, read together, should enable most taxpayers to prepare their own returns without too much difficulty," Mr. Knox said.

Plan Marshall Co. Farm Meetings

16 Driver License Examiners Added

Will Serve Stations In Twin Cities Area

Fifteen examiners were added to the Minnesota driver license examining force Monday to fill newly created positions. A sixteenth was appointed to fill a vacancy. The 16 examiners immediately entered a three week indoctrination course operated by the state Highway department.

In making the announcement, L. P. Zimmerman, commissioner of highways, said the new examiners would be added to the Twin Cities area stations for their first assignments. The 15 additional men will bring the total number of examiners to 70.

"This will enable us to greatly increase our service to the driving public in the eight county metropolitan area," said G. A. Hatfield, state driver license director. "Formerly, stations in Washington, Anoka, Wright, Carver, Scott and Dakota counties were served by examiners from the Minneapolis and St. Paul stations. Now we will be able to assign men permanently to these county stations and schools, giving additional service without withdrawing men from the crowded Twin Cities activities."

Using state-owned facilities at Camp Ripley, the men will have a two-week training school before being given one-week on-the-job training at St. Paul and Minneapolis examining stations.

Rev. Jonas Helland to Leave May 1st

Satersdal Parish Pastor to Serve in G. Forks Area

Members of Satersdal parish were surprised Sunday when their pastor, Rev. Jonas Helland, tendered his resignation effective May 1st. He plans to serve a congregation near Grand Forks and also travel as part time evangelist for the Hauge Lutheran Innermission Federation.

Rev. Helland came here in 1954 from Everett, Wash., where he served the Calvary Lutheran church for five years.

Besides serving Satersdal parish, Pastor Helland reorganized the Norden church in 1951, and in 1952 he organized the Our Saviour's Lutheran Free church now located in the former St. John's church on St. Paul Ave So.

How the atomic age, trade with foreign countries, and changing technology affect farm families, consumers, and business in general in the Red River Valley will come under discussion at a Farm-City Forum on February 25 and February 26 in Crookston.

The event will be held at the Central high school auditorium as part of the Red River Valley Winter Shows, according to Carl Ash, West Polk county agricultural agent and local coordinator for the forum.

It will be one of the most extensive of about two dozen county regional forums of this type around the state this winter. The program is being coordinated by Luther J. Pickrel, extension agricultural economist at the University of Minnesota.

The general outline of these forums was developed after consultation between Pickrel and state leaders of three general farm organizations—the Minnesota Farmers Union, the Minnesota Farm Bureau, and the Minnesota Grange.

The two-day event will feature speakers from the University of Minnesota, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, and from the University of Manitoba, Canada.

Pickrel explains that "the general theory of the forums is that, since public opinion is the most powerful force in a democracy, the success and durability of representative government depends on an informed citizenry."

"In our system, we believe in the advantages of sharing and exchanging knowledge and experience as a method of arriving at the system of public policies which is best for all."

The role of the Farm-City Forum is to aid in general understanding of these problems, with this four-fold purpose:

1. To stimulate an active interest in public affairs problems, in all citizens—rural and urban—in the local area.

2. To help these citizens better understand issues and principles involved.

3. To help people develop the ability to make judgements based on careful examination of the evidence and logical thinking.

4. To stimulate a desire to participate effectively in solving these problems.

The forenoon programs will get under way at 10:00 a. m. and the afternoon programs at 1:15 p. m. in the Central high school auditorium, Crookston. Before the 10:00 a. m. session each day, free coffee will be served by the Crookston Milling Company.

A Peaceful Solution

It appears now that the armies of Minnesota and North Dakota will not have to be mobilized along the border. Tension between the states eased last week when tax officials reached a peaceful understanding about which state should tax whom of the citizens who live on one side of the Red River but draw their paychecks from the other side.

The settlement covers income taxes on wages earned during the year 1957 only. Wage earners will pay taxes to the state of which they are resident, and to that state only. It will be up to the legislatures of the two states to decide how these taxes shall be paid in subsequent years. This temporary agreement disposes of the possibility of double taxation in some instances.

Many of these across-the-border headaches could be eliminated if greater uniformity were obtained in the tax laws and traffic regulations of neighboring states. A nation-wide organization, in which all state governments are represented, is doing good work in pointing up the advantages of uniformity, and the disadvantages of laws and regulations that act as barriers to the free exchange of goods and services.

Here in Minnesota we have several of these problems that involve us needlessly in across-the-border difficulties. A special effort should be made to work out reasonable adjustments that will eliminate annoying differences with our neighbors.

We are glad that for the time being we will not have to shoot it out with our friends in North Dakota.

Not an Easy Role

At the meeting of the Baghdad Pact countries, held at Ankara, Turkey, last week, Secretary Dulles pledged the military support of the United States if any of the member-nations are attacked. He stated however that our country would not become a member-nation. Because of this position he has been subjected to considerable criticism. It is argued that a willingness to become a member would have strengthened the organization much more than merely the promise to give military support, and actually would not have involved us to any greater extend.

There probably is justification such criticism and possibly Mr. Dulles would agree that, under the circumstances, full membership would have been preferable. In fairness to him we probably should keep in mind that while he speaks as one who has authority, in these matters his authority is limited by the policy makers who direct his activities. He speaks for the President. Behind the President is the foreign affairs committee of the Senate, and behind the committee is the Senate itself.

We may be certain that before he went to Ankara Mr. Dulles knew how far he could go in pledging the support, militarily or financially, of our country. And with a government that is divided, to answer to, his role as a representatve is not an easy one.

Deep-South Justice

Down in Robeson county, North Carolina, the Ku Klux Klan recently burned crosses and scheduled a mass meeting to express the displeasure of its members with the conduct of an Indian family that had moved into a white neighborhood. But there are 30,000 Americans of Indian ancestry in Robeson county, and only 40,000 whites, and the redskins very effectively broke up the Klan demonstration with a demonstration of their own. They won the battle.

Interesting result was the indictment of the Klan leader on a charge of inciting a riot by a Grand Jury of three Indians, two Negroes and 13 whites. A second Klansman was fined by an Indian judge for drunkenness and carrying a gun. In ordering the fine the judge said:

"If your organization had something worthwhile to offer us, we would be happy to have you. But the history of your organization proves it has nothing to offer."

Looks like, given time enough, the South will take care of its own race and prejudice problems.

Play Ball—That's an Order

Art Suel of the New Prague Times, got involved in a terrific argument with himself in a recent mid-winter editorial about baseball. Evidently feeling a little foolish about it when his temperature returned to normal, he concluded that it must have been the summer weather that started him thinking about baseball in the middle of January. Knowing that he is a temperate man we are willing to accept his explanation as, shall we say, incontrovertible.

With that preamble out of the way, we are happy to pass along a few of his conclusions, with which we wholeheartedly agree:

> "To compete successfully with other forms of entertainment and recreation these days, the baseball players themselves must speed up the games. Failure to start each game on time and unnecessary delays during progress of the games cut down the attendance at the gate.
> "A fighting, scrappy team makes a hit with the fans but those frequent delays while rival groups of players gather to argue with the umpire about a ball and strike or a base decision, keep the fans away in droves. The pitcher who stands and tries to outstare the batter before every pitch and the batter who habitually steps out of the batter's box just when the pitcher finally decides to begin his windup are . . . helping to fill the stands."

Priced Out of the Market

(Industrial News Review)

A leading newspaper recently carried two important stories side by side on the front page. One was headlined: 'Labor to seek high wages, shorter week." The other headline read: 'November jobless highest since 1949."

This puts one in mind of the irresistible force and the immovable object.

Labor can press for higher wages and shorter work-weeks, and very likely it can get them. But labor can't make people buy the goods and services that keep the labor force employed.

A worker, like a product, can be priced out of the market. There is plenty of evidence that this is beginning to happen now.

Missing Virtue

McTavish was violently oposed to his daughter marrying her boy friend Hugo. He ranted and raved a long time before breaking down and giving his consent. Doing so he said to her, "Marry him if you will, Lassie, though I fear happiness will be hard to find since he has not the virtue of thrift. Why just the other day I saw him drive out of a parking space with twelve minutes left on the meter."

Small Business Aid

For the past year, the Senate Small Business Committee of which I am a member has been conducting a comprehensive study of the impact of federal taxation upon the small businessman. The study included a nationwide series of field hearings in fourteen cities, at which a group of 456 witnesses representing all lines of business activity presented statements to our Committee. It was my privilege to preside over many of these hearings. The chief recommendations growing out of these years have now been embodied in the Small Business Tax Adjustment Act of 1958, which I am co-sponsoring in the Senate along with Senator Sparkman, committee chairman, and seven other members of our Committee.

Tax Relief

The bill is designed to remedy seven areas of the taxe system which are most in need of urgent attention. It included the following seven sections:

1. To permit a tax allowance for reinvestment.
2. To provide for individual retirement plans.
3. To allow installment payment of estate taxes.
4. To extend alternative methods of depreciation to used property.
5. To permit corporations to elect by unanimous agreement of stockholders to be taxed as partnerships.
6. To increase minimum accumulated earnings credit.
7. To clarify Internal Revenue Code interpretations.

Action Needed

From my own background of small business, I'm convinced that our small business has been denied equal opportunity under our tax law as it is presently written. The impact of Federal taxes is not the same on all segments of the economy, and there are changes which are urgently required if our economic system is to remain as we have known it. We've tried to incorporate such needed changes in our new small business tax adjustment act. Our free enterprise system requires a dynamic independent business, which cannot exist when entry for the new and growth for the small are hampered by adverse tax policies. For that reason I am convinced these tax adjustments are necessary to equalize opportunity and give small business a fair chance to serve its vital part in our economy.

Send For Copies

I will be glad to send copies of the new tax measure to any interested businessmen who care to write me about it. Just write to Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, 140 Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

What to do till the doctor comes

Emergencies strike with sudden swiftness. A slip, a fall, a collision is seldom announced. So be prepared. At least one member of every family should have a working knowledge of first aid. There are books on the subject and the American Red Cross gives classes where such information and training can be acquired. We recommend that you, or someone in your household, acquire the know-how. Another worthy recommendation is to maintain a supply of first-aid medications on hand at all times—antiseptic, gauze bandages, adhesive tape, alcohol, soothing creams, etc. The cost is small and we'll be glad to assist you in your selection.

Governor Proclaims School Patrol Week

The more than 25,500 school and bus safety patrol youngsters in Minnesota will be given recognition for their excellent work during the annual observance of "School Safety Patrol Week," set today by Governor Orville L. Freeman for the week of February 16 through 22.

Governor Freeman requested that local organizations and groups, especially those who sponsor safety patrols within their communities, arrange special programs and activities to "give proper recognition to these faithful youngsters who contribute so much to the state's safety program."

In his proclamation, the Governor pointed out that:

"The school safety patrol program originated in Minnesota 28 years ago and since then there has never been a traffic fatality charged against the school patrol.

"Young members of the patrols endure much discomfort with great loyalty and courage in all kinds of weather with outstanding public service."

"The School Safety Patrol is the primary program in the state for the protection of our children," Governor Freeman said. "We adults must express our appreciation for fine job these youngsters do in keeping their schoolmates safe."

The Governor also gave credit to the many organizations in the state who have sponsored school patrol leaders attending the annual training center "Legionville" which is operated by the American Legion. More than 1,000 young patrol leaders received advanced instruction here during the last summer school vacation.

The training center program will be repeated again during June and July of 1958 in the $150,000 facility north of Brainerd when 140 boys or girls will be trained during each of the eight weeks the camp will operate.

MAJESTY
THE CHURCH FOR ALL
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

Beyond the timber line rises sheer rock, towering above the clouds themselves. Looking at this great giant of nature we marvel at God's creations . . . and are aware of the comparative insignificance of man.

Yet, man is far from insignificant, save in physical size. For God, after all, made man in His image. And He gave man a brain, and a soul, with a sense of right and wrong. He gave him character and responsibility.

It is man who can progress to heights far greater than this mountain. But he needs help to do it—God's help, through the help of the Church.

You weren't meant to stand alone in this world. Remember that . . . and go to Church this Sunday.

TRF Creamery Board and C. C. Men Make Tour

Visit Dairy Plants in Central and South Parts of Minnesota

Five officials of the Thief River Falls creamery and three representatives of the Chamber of Commerce visited several dairy products manufacturing plants in central and southern Minnesota Tuesday and Wednesday. All of the operations inspected were cooperatives, formed by cooperative creameries of the area to perform all or part of the manufacturing processes.

Representing the creamery were Albert Hanson, president, board members Fred Koop, Otto Haugen and Carl Torgerson, and Norman Wenberg, manager. Representing the Chamber of Commerce were Stuart McLeod, J. M. Roche, secretary; and W. E. Dahlquist. Plants visited Tuesday were at Bertha, Browerville and Litchfield. On Wednesday the group inspected the operations at Pine Island and Rochester.

Smallest of the plants was the Bertha creamery which, in addition to its own regular operation, was providing a skimmilk drying service for several neighboring creameries. In 1957 it manufactured 1,840,000 pounds of butter and paid other creameries a quarter of a million dollars for skimmilk. Products were marketed through North Star Creameries, a selling agency.

The Browerville operation, also a North Star affiliate, was established in 1944 by 12 Todd county creameries to provide a market for skimmilk. It now provides this service for 20 creameries, each of these independent cooperative creameries having one member on the managing board. It is recognized as one of the most successful organizations of its kind in the world. The plant has expanded year after year and now represents a two million dollar investment.

At Litchfield, John Brandt's home town and the birthplace of Land O' Lakes Creameries, the delegation inspected a highly successful operation that is providing a diversified service for many creameries. In 1957 its sales totalled $8,400,000, a new high in volume and continuing a steady year-by-year growth. The Litchfield plant is operated by the creameries that are members of the Land O' Lakes First District association and of course

Emergency Loans Open to Marshall County Farmers

Emergency loans are available in Marshall county to eligible farmers whose crops were damaged by flood, County Supervisor John P. W. Friederichs said today.

Funds can be advanced for the purchase of feed, seed, fertilizer, fuel, insecticides and other essential operating expenses.

To be eligible a farmer must be primarily engaged in farming and have reasonable prospects for success in the farming operations he plans to carry on. In addition he must have suffered a substantial loss from the flood and related damages and must be unable to obtain the credit he needs from other sources.

The interest rate is 3 percent. Repayment schedules depend upon purposes for which funds are advanced and upon the estimated income of the applicant. For example, loans for crop production are usually scheduled for repayment when income from the crop is normally received.

Loans for the repair or replacement of equipment and buildings damaged by the flood are usually made repayable over periods of from one to ten years.

Adequate security is obtained to protect the Government's interest.

Applications for emergency loans may be made by contacting the Marshall county FHA office, located in the Taralseth building in Warren. The office is open Monday through Friday, from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Applications may also be made by calling at the Marshall-Beltrami Soil Conservation office in Grygla on any Friday between the hours of 11:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m.

U. S. Agents Seek to Settle Dispute on Reservation

Argument on Leadership of Tribal Council Headed by Peter Graves' Grandson

An Interior Department committee seeking to determine which of two rival Indian councils should be recognized visited the Red Lake Reservation Wednesday.

The three-man group set up visits and hearings to last through Saturday upon its arrival in Bemidji Tuesday. Making the study are George Robinson, Newton W. Edwards and M. W. Goding.

The tribal council currently in power is headed by Byron Graves, Pine River school teacher whose grandfather, Peter Graves, was its chief spokesman until his death last spring. That group was organized in 1918.

Opposing this group is the Hereditary Chiefs Council organized in 1920. The Red Lake Tribal Business Assn. organized in 1932, is backing the hereditary council. Roger Jourdain, association secretary and spokesman, claims that the other body is illegal. He said it does not adhere to the tribal constitution that chiefs be hereditary.

At stake is supervision over the reservation's two principal sources of employment and income, the Indian fisheries and sawmills, both located on Red Lake.

Jaycees Honor Ormond Johnson, E.O. Peterson

E. O. Peterson Named Top Boss

A local banker, E. O. Peterson, president of Union State Bank, was named the outstanding boss at the Boss-Employe banquet held Thursday in the Legion clubrooms. Peterson was named because of outstanding community service and cooperation with the local Junior Chamber of Commerce, of which four of his bank's employes are members. Peterson is shown here as he received the award from Glenn Sjolander, president of the Moorhead JayCees.

Two outstanding businessmen were honored with awards Thursday evening at the Junior Chamber of Commerce Boss-Employe banquet which drew an attendance of nearly 200 at the Legion clubrooms. Governor Orville Freeman was the main speaker, following the meal, which was served by the Legion auxiliary.

E. O. Peterson, president of Union State bank, was named outstanding boss, while Ormond Johnson, of the KTRF advertising staff was given the distinguished service award.

The evening's program got under way at 5:30 with a social hour preceding the banquet at 6:30. Invocation was by Rev. Keough Patnode and music during the meal was provided by Jerry Joringdal at the electric organ, and piano selections were played by Dave Thorstad.

Toastmaster at the affair was Doug Tegtmeier, KTRF announcer. The welcoming speech was given by N. H. Korteum, JayCee president, and Harley Kelly, Chamber of Commerce president, gave the bosses' response.

Glenn Sjolander, Moorhead JayCee president, spoke briefly before making the outstanding boss award to Peterson. Sjolander complimented local JayCees on the excellent program they had planned for the evening.

Mayor O. D. Belch, himself a one-time distinguished service award winner, presented the DSA to Ormond Johnson, who expressed surprise that he had been chosen for the honor.

Governor Freeman praised the local JayCee chapter for their efforts in the opening of his address. He touched on several subjects concerning the state's economy, listing the conditions as set forth in a series of newspaper articles by Carl Rowan, well-known Minneapolis reporter, as calling for immediate action to prevent further recession in the state's rural areas.

Freeman re-emphasized that agriculture in the state is not getting a fair share of the benefits of increased productivity and that his program is designed to bring about a better balance between industry and agriculture in the state.

He also noted progress being made at the port of Duluth to meet the demands of increased shipping once the St. Lawrence Seaway is complete, as well as other progress made by the state as its centennial is celebrated.

Freeman called for a program in the U. S. to aid needy peoples in the world, saying we should never have a surplus of food with so many hungry people in a world shrunken small by modern technological advances.

He listed the pressures on the state's educational system in meeting the challenge of the space-age at a time when the population of school-age children is burgeoning to undreamed-of proportions.

Problems of our age can be faced with optimism if we have the wisdom, kindness and sensitiveness to use our resources toward making a better world for people to live in, Freeman stated.

We can go forward with confidence if we base our decisions on sound spiritual principals, both in meeting the challenge of modern technology and an unscrupulous adversary abroad, he asserted.

The governor noted several steps, such as the expanded highway building program, and others, as typical of efforts being made to alleviate the effects of bad crops in some Minnesota areas the past 3 years. He also praised local self-help programs and assured business leaders full support of such programs.

Good Attendance at 1958 Plant Industry Conference in City

The Pennington county plant industry conference held Thursday was well attended by township and village officials and interested farmers. Fifty-eight farmers were in attendence during the morning session and over eighty were present in the afternoon.

Leading off the morning discussion was Robert Flaskerud, entomologist, state department of agriculture, who spoke on aster yellows, cutworms and sweet clover weevil. Little can be done in the way of predicting an aster yellows outbreak Flaskerud pointed out, since the six-spotted leaf hopper which spreads the disease that wiped out most of the flax crop in northern Minnesota moves into this area from the southern states. In some years it carries the virus causing aster yellows and in other years the virus is not transmitted. Flaskerud also stated that sweet clover yields, of hay and seed, can be greatly increased by spraying for the sweet clover weevil.

Frank Fairbanks, area weed inspector supervisor from Wadena, spoke on regulatory problems and stated that land going into the conservation reserve program has caused problems in weed control. He stated that everything possible is being done to enforce compliance with weed laws on these lands. Ed Moren, weed inspector, reported that the dreaded leafy spurge is being well contained and in some instances eradicated in both Pennington and Red Lake counties.

Leo Lehn, weed inspector supervisor, Crookston, talked on seed inspection activities. He stated that all seed whether sold by a dealer or a farmer is subject to inspection; and purity, germination, weed content must be known on all lots of seed offered for sale. Some feeds are also subject to inspection.

Oscar Pearson, entomologist, USDA, stated that in taking surveys of grasshopper numbers and thru counts of hopper eggs in the soil, most of Pennington county can expect a severe infestation of grasshoppers in 1958. The extreme southeast part of the county can expect a threatening outbreak.

Lehn and Fairbanks also discussed the neew weed chemicals pointing out the promise of butyric acids, amino triozol and others.

The meeting was presided over by County Agent Paul Steimaschuk.

Mercury Hits —22 Here This Morning

Reading Sets New Low Mark for This Winter

The thermometer dropped to a frigid 22 below this morning to set the season's record low, according to Station KTRF. The cold is expected to continue today but warmer weather is on the way again, the station report indicates. The low tonight is expected to be about 12 below.

Since Thursday the low point has dropped from a -10 to -15 Friday. Saturday and Sunday both registered lows of -17. High for the period was Friday with a plus 3.

Fire Chief Roy Langevin reports no fires during the period with only one call for a small chimney fire Sunday evening.

Mrs. H. Halverson Again Will Direct Easter Seal Sale

Mrs. Herbert G. Halverson of Thief River Falls, has been named chairman of the 1958 Pennington county Easter Seal committee, it was announced today by Rustan O. Thayer, president of the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults (the Easter Seal Society).

"The role played by the county chairman and committee members in the annual Easter Seal appeal is an important one," Thayer said. "The work done by these volunteers results in hope, courage and happiness for many of Minnesota's crippled children and adults.

"They benefit from Camp Courage, five Easter Seal-supported rehabilitation centers, a direct aid program which provides loans of special equipment such as wheelchairs, walkers and hospital beds, employment and many other services," he said.

Indian tribesmen believe that old elephants never die, because elephant carcasses are so rarely seen. Actually, animal remains of any kind are seldom found in Indian forests, thanks to clean-up squads of ants, cultures, jackals, and hyenas.

Hit-run Motorist Flees after Crash

Escapes after Hitting Duane Liden Car Sunday

A hit-run driver escaped after a short chase last night after he had side-swiped a car driven by Duane Liden. Liden, driving north on Main at 9:45 p.m., was turning left on Ninth when his car was struck by a vehicle attempting to pass on his left.

The other car swerved over the lawn of the Orvis Olen residence without striking any trees and made its way back to the street. Liden started to pursue the speeding car but lost sight of it.

Two minor accidents occurred Friday night. A car driven by Robert Ekeren, 17, was damaged slightly when it collided with a Soo Line coach being backed across Third St.

Later in the evening Jeffrey Hartje, 15, reported to police that he had crashed into a Prior Electric truck parked on North Arnold. The accident occurred as he was turning south on Arnold from 8th St. Damage to the truck was estimated at $25 while the Hartje car was damaged to the extent of $170.

Creamery Board & C. C. Members Tour Dairy Plants

all products are marketed thru Land O' Lakes.

The Pine Island plant is operated by the Minnesota Cheese Producers' association. As its name indicates Pine Island is in cheese country. The association was organized in 1921 to provide a marketing service for a number of cheese factories in that area. In 1934 the association joined Land O' Lakes and in 1946 a central manufacturing plant was started at Pine Island. Of the 32 cheese factories that were a part of this association only two are now in operation and one of these is still a member of the association.

In 1954 the plant discontinued the manufacture of cheese, shifting to butter and skimmilk powder. It serves a compact area in which butterfat has been marketed in the form of whole milk for many years and in which high quality standards have been well established. The area is shifting rapidly to bulk handling. All products are marketed through Land O' Lakes.

The largest and most highly diversified of the plants visited was at Rochester, operated by the Rochester Dairy Cooperative. It was in 1942 when a number of creameries from neighboring communities joined with the Rochester creamery in forming this association which now operates the largest cooperative dairy products manufacturing plant in the world. It manufactures 10 million pounds of butter and 30 million pounds of powder a year, along with a large Grade A milk operation. Other products are cottage cheese and ice cream. At one time cheese was an important product but this has been discontinued.

In the Rochester area, too, the trend to bulk handling is progressing rapidly. All of the 191 grade A producers have bulk facilities and more than 600 of the grade B producers now have bulk tanks. The Rochester Dairy maintains its own sales organization.

On Wednesday night the members of the local delegation were guests of Frank Stone, president of Land O' Lakes Creameries at an informal dinner at which there was a general discussion of trends in manufacturing and marketing of dairy products and the special problems of our area.

Creamery officials agreed that the inspection trip was highly informative and very much worth while.

Wool Growers in Session Thursday at Red Lake Falls

Over 175 area wool growers met at the American Legion club rooms in Red Lake Falls Thursday to get the latest word on sheep raising from experts.

Dr. Raymond Solac, extension veterinarian from the University of Minnesota, spoke on the care of sheep and control of diseases. Discussing the current wool market was Len Nadasdy, of the Wool Growers association.

Movies on sheep raising in other areas of the world were shown to the group. Following the meeting the sheepmen were served lunch.

OUR LAND

Minnesota Soil needs high levels of organic matter. But organic matter alone is not the objective of soil management. Rather, it's an important step in getting the highest profits from each acre, explains Curtis Overdahl, extension soils specialist at the University of Minnesota.

He points out that, with the low price of nitrogen fertilizer in relation to prices of crops, statistics show a marked trend toward less small grains and more corn and soybeans. But he adds that if you are using a rotation that includes more row crops, you need to pay more attention to the physical condition of the soil.

Canoes Along the Border

☆ Put together in their proper places a red woolen cap, a short shirt, some sort of short loose pants — perhaps a breech cloth, deerskin leggings, and deerskin moccasins. For a touch of gaiety, add a long scarlet sash, knotted over one hip and the ends dangling. Hang a multi-colored beaded bag or pouch from the sash. Surround it all with a blue capote.

Inside all this insert some human flesh — perhaps 160 or 180 pounds of bone and sinew and muscle will do. This would not be more than 5½ feet high but might run almost as wide in the shoulders with biceps to match. The legs might seem puny but would be quick and tough.

Put a pipe in the mouth and a song on the lips. Now you have the essential ingredients for a first-class voyageur.

Put this mixture in a birch-bark canoe with a paddle in his hands or under 200 to 450 pounds of merchandise on a rocky portage. Season well with pride and skill and braggadocio. Bake several seasons in the wind and sun at many temperatures, mostly chilly, on the lakes and rivers of the northwest.

The result is the full-fledged voyageur.

The Water Trails

The trailways of these men extended from Montreal on the St. Lawrence, through the Great Lakes, across the northern boundary of Minnesota, and on up to Lake Winnipeg. From there the trail might lead down the Nelson river to Hudson's Bay, or northwest to the Mackenzie river area and the Arctic ocean, or generally westward and down the Fraser river to the Pacific ocean.

Voyageurs coming to Minnesota might leave Montreal on the St. Lawrence, ride the Ottawa and Matawa and French rivers to Lake Huron, and cross Huron and Superior to Grand Portage at the mouth of the Pigeon river. From there they would follow the Pigeon to Rainy lake, then the Rainy river to Lake of the Woods, the Winnipeg river to Lake Winnipeg, and the Red river down to Pembina and often farther down to the headwaters of the Mississippi.

Many voyageurs headed for Minnesota might follow the southern shore of Lake Superior. They took the St. Louis or the Bois Brule into the fur country.

Preparing for the Trip

Almost all voyageurs began their trips at Montreal. Here, when spring broke and the ice released the waters, was a scene of bustling, frantic activity. Agents were busy gathering men and checking supplies. The men were busy patching canoes or bundling the trading goods into ninety-pound "pieces" with two potato-sack ears at one end. Two of these "pieces" were the normal load over a portage.

All the canoes of the voyageurs were made of birch bark tied together usually with the fine roots of a red spruce and gummed watertight with pine pitch. The largest, 35 or 40 feet long, carried fourteen men and up to three tons of freight. These were used on the trip through the Great Lakes to Grand Portage. From Grand Portage on, a shorter canoe, about 25 feet long, known as the "canoe of the north", was used.

Heading Out

When all was in readiness, perhaps thirty canoes, in brigades of ten, each with a guide, might leave together. Other brigades might follow on succeeding days.

The men lifted their voices in a rollicking, rhythmic song. Paddles flashed to the rhythm, perhaps forty, sometimes as high as sixty strokes to the minute. The canoes swirled through the water.

The pace was maintained throughout a long day, from dawn to sunset, often from three in the morning until eight or nine in the evening. With favorable wind and current as much as 75 to 80 miles a day could be covered.

At rapids and dangerous twists in the rivers, canoes were occasionally upset. Cargoes and lives could be lost. Tall wooden crosses along the banks marked the graves of former voyageurs. Whenever they passed such a spot, the men doffed their red caps and offered prayers. In 1800 one place apparently had 80 crosses along the bank.

Every four miles or so the bowman, the most expert guide and paddler, and the leader of the crew, would call a halt. The men rested and smoked their pipes. Distances were known as so many pipes rather than so many miles.

At portages the men trotted with canoes or the two ninety-pound "pieces" on their backs about a third of a mile before they rested. They put down their burdens to enjoy a brief "pose". Portages were often measured in "poses" rather than in miles.

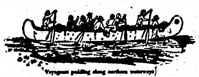
Shift at Grand Portage

At Grand Portage were the big fur companies. The trading goods were unloaded from the big canoes. Stacks and bundles of furs took their place and were soon headed back toward Montreal. The best voyageurs shifted to the smaller canoes of the north and headed for the posts on Rainy lake and at Pembina. Here they often spent the winter months trapping. In the spring they returned with loads of furs.

The posts at Rainy lake, particularly, were headquarters for much trading. This was as far as the men from the far northwest, such as the famed Athabasca men, could travel before ice locked the rivers and prevented their return. Great loads of furs were brought to Rainy lake. From there other crews took the furs to Grand Portage.

[illegible] Day's End

By 1849, when Minnesota became a territory, the hey-day of the voyageur was at an end. Between 1763 and 1849 he was king of the woods and streams. But by mid-century, the lumberjack with his ax was replacing him.



Voyageurs paddling along northern waterways

GAMBLE STORE of THIEF RIVER FALLS

It was in 1925 that Bert Gamble and Phil Skogmo opened an auto supply store in St. Cloud, Minnesota, that eventually developed into Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., an organization consisting of over 2,100 retail stores in twenty states. About 1,800 of these stores are independently owned by Gamble authorized dealers.

The young men had been boyhood friends, whose first business venture was a Hudson-Essex dealership which they operated in Fergus Falls, Minnesota, five years before going into the auto supply business in St. Cloud.

Four years after opening their store in St. Cloud, the two young businessmen, Gamble and Skogmo, saw the possibilities in the thriving farming community of Thief River Falls. Since that date, the Gamble Store has served this trade area, growing and prospering along with the community.

Expansion and Development

The Gamble-Skogmo combination didn't stop after establishing stores in towns such as St. Cloud and Thief River Falls. Further expansion and development came in the years to follow. Main Street of hundreds of Minnesota towns and cities became sites for the now familiar Gamble Stores. They expanded their merchandise lines from auto supplies to hardware, paint, housewares, farm supplies, and many other items for home, car and family.

Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., with home offices in Minneapolis, has grown up in Minnesota. It has developed with the leadership and help of industrious Minnesota citizens. Natural resources used in many items of merchandise sold at Gambles come from our state. Minnesota manufacturers produce countless products sold at Gamble Stores. Surely the growth of Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., can be related to the abundance of natural resources and high quality products of the state of Minnesota.

Last year, Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., sold over $100 million of merchandise. At last year-end, the company's assets exceeded $60 million. Though the company is but 33 years old its recognized success may be attributed to the dream of two young businessmen who had faith in Minnesota communities such as Thief River Falls and faith in the free enterprise system of the United States.

Thief River Falls Store

Stan Pladson, manager of the Gamble Store at Thief River Falls, reports that the store was one of the first established by Gamble-Skogmo. He is proud that, for almost 30 years, the Gamble Store has been serving Thief River Falls.

On November 29, 1936, Gambles moved to their present location at 208 N. LaBree Avenue. The store was remodeled in 1955. Pladson has been manager since March 1, 1948. The store has 4 employees.

Gambles Salute Minnesota

From the first store 33 years ago at St. Cloud and other early stores such as the one at Thief River Falls, Gambles has expanded beyond the borders of Minnesota. But the Gamble traditions and heritage still remain a part of the great North Star State. Stan Pladson, Gamble Store manager at Thief River Falls, joins the entire Gamble organization in saluting Minnesota on its "100th Birthday."

Two Evening Programs at Winter Shows

Talks on Russia and Centennial Pageant Will Be Presented

The evening programs February 25 and 26 for the Red River Valley Winter Shows, Crookston, will address themselves to some of the facts in and around the Russian Sputnik, and address themselves to the Minnesota Centennial year, and one evening will be given over to a high school hockey game between Roseau and Crookston Cathedral High Schools.

The program for Tuesday evening, February 25, will begin at 7:45 o'clock with music by the Central high school concert orchestra under the direction of T. W. Thorson. On Wednesday evening, February 26, the Minnesota Centennial will be featured at the Winter Shows by a Centennial pageant, which will be presented by citizens of West Polk county and will depict the early days in the Red River Valley. Fred Shrimpton of Crookston is directing the pageant and arrangements are being made by the Polk County Centennial Committee. Taking part in the pageant will be the Fisher high school (Fisher Landing); Climax community (Frog Point); Northwest School (Old Crossing Treaty); Fosston community (Railroads); Crookston Cathedral high school (Personalities in early Polk county); and Mallory community (Bobby Burns). This is an acount given by Mrs. Helmer Lind about her trip to Washington, D. C. We left Saint Paul by bus at 6 a. m. on Saturday and we rode day and night. On Sunday we made a three hour visit to Gettysburg, visiting the battlegrounds and other historic spots. We arrived in Washington, D. C. Sunday evening.

Monday—We toured the Bureau of Printing and Engraving where we saw the printing, trimming and packaging of dollar bills. We were shown a $100,000 bill bearing President Wilson's picture.

We visited Arlington National Cemetery, arriving in time to see the very impressive ceremony of the changing of the guards.

We also took the elevator and and went to the top of the Washington Monument which is 555 feet high and from the windows we looked out over the city from all directions. We also saw the Marine Memorial Jefferson Monument and Christ's Church which was an interesting experience. The Church is unchanged from the days when George Washington attended it except that heat and electricity have been installed. In the afternoon we went to Mount Vernon, the estate of George Washington where we went through the Mansion, well kept gardens, shops, barns and carriage houses. We saw the tomb where Washington and his wife were buried. Their bodies have never laid under the sod but are now resting in caskets made out of Vermont Marble.

In the evening we met with campaigners from North and South Dakota, Colorado and Wyoming to discuss the farm subjects which we were to speak with our congressmen about during our visit.

Tuesday—We visited the Department of Agriculture and in the absence of Secretary Benson we were welcomed by one of his undersecretaries. We ate lunch at the U.S.D.A. Cafteria and from there we went to the State Department Auditorium where we listened to a number of speeches.

Following that we went to the department of Justice and the F.B.I. seeing displays of scientific criminological methods. We also went through an Art Gallery where we saw some very beautiful and expensive pictures.

Wednesday—Senator Edward J. Thye was not back from attending Anderson's funeral in Minnesota so his secretary, Mr. Lund, spoke to us. He stated that Thye was opposed to the bill to raise the REA interest rates from 2 to 6%. The first bill introduced to congress in 1958 was a dairy bill relating to the price supports of dairy products and was introduced by Senator Thye.

Then we had our group picture taken in front of the Capital. Next we called on Congressman Fred Marshall and from there we toured the Supreme Court Building.

After eating our lunch in the Supreme Court Cafeteria we visited the offices of Congressman H. Carl Anderson who was also working hard trying to get better price support for agricultural products.

Then we toured the Library of Congress which contains 8 million books and has 400 miles of shelfs and there we saw the Gutenberg Bible. This Bible was the first major book printed from moveable metal type about 1450-1455. Next we toured the Capitol.

At four o'clock we had an appointment with Senator Humphrey. However he was attending a Senate Committee meeting on Agriculture and he sent word out that we were welcome to come in and listen which we did for two hours. The hottest seat in Washington was occupied by Secretary Benson. He tried to spell out the details of the Eisenhower Administration farm program for 1958 and he ran into all kinds of trouble. The Senators were surprised when Benson said the farm support program for 1957 cost 3½ billion dollars. The Senators then asked the Secretary "When we spend money to feed our armed forces overseas to fulfill our military obligations or for the school lunch program are these costs charged up to the farmers?" That brought a break down of farm costs showing that a major part of the 3 billion went for interest charged, foreign affairs and consumers subsides like the school lunch program and not to farmers at all. We finally met with Senator Humphrey in his office and he said that he was glad that we had the opportunity to see what they were up against in Washington.

Wednesday evening was our free evening and we went down town shopping.

Thursday we called first on Congressman Roy Weir. He stated that he didn't think that Secretary Benson's dairy bill would be passed and that he hoped that before Congress adjourned that the Hell's Canyon Bill will be passed.

Some of our group called on Congressman McCarthy and O'Hara and following that we all met together in Congresswoman Coya Knutson's office. She gave us a very genial welcome and she introduced her mother to us. Mrs. Knutson spoke to us and she said that corn and feed grains are the fly in the ointment and that the dairy problem will be taken care of in the comprehensive farm bill.

Following our visit to Coya's office we toured the White House. We ate our lunch at Halgates, a famous sea food restaurant, after which we toured the Smithsonian Institute.

The first attraction in that building was Lindbergs plane "The Spirit of Saint Louis" and also the plane in which the Wright Brothers made their original flight. With so much to see in there we did the best we could rushing along to see as much as we possibly could in a few hours.

In the evening there was a party for the bus groups from the different states. There was entertainment in which the Minnesota group had part with a skit and a violin solo.

Our group was a very friendly and congenial one and I think we gained a new appreciation of the problems of all the different types of farmers. I think we feel more greatly than ever the need for farmers to be united and to work together for their welfare.

A Few Decades Past . . .
IN MANY AMERICAN COMMUNITIES!
Then—a newspaper was a thing to be marveled at —for memories of the Press' fight for freedom were fresh in mind. Although newspapers are common in our country today, their existence should not be taken for granted. It is a wonderful fact that almost all of our modern communities have their own hometown newspapers, freely edited by members of their own communities—spreading the news, stimulating the business of the community, and keeping their readers informed of important events elsewhere. It is well to keep in mind that a free press and a free people are an unbeatable team.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

EXTRA! EXTRA! EXTRA! FLORIDA COLD WAVE HITS MINNESOTA!

That's what one local fellow suggested we should run as a banner headline last Thursday.

It did get a little nippy last week, didn't it? No complaints tho—and nuff sed!

There's one local mother and housewife who shows a lot more zest in living than a lot of teenagers we see nowadays.

I'm referring to Mrs. Jim Anderson, who has ice skating classes at the arena in the winter. I was over to take a picture of her in action last week and it really was fun to watch such an accomplished skater.

She has several classes and is also teaching her daughter, a wee, 17-month old tot to skate. Furthermore, she says, the little tyke does a good job of it!

But, as for old duffers like Yours Truly learning—well, we'll sit on the sidelines, regardless of how inviting the ice looks!

Too bad you can't stop me if you've heard this one:

A middle-aged Englishman had taken a pair of his wife's shoes to be repaired and when he called to pick them up the shoe didn't furnish any wrapping for them.

So, he boarded his bus home, carrying the shoes out in the open for everyone to see. A fellow passenger, a workman, riding home at the same time kept eyeing our friend with the shoes and finally leaned over to say, in a confiding tone, "'At's right, Guv'nor—It doesn't pay to let the Old Lydy go gadding about!"

There's only one thrill that can top driving one's nice, new automobile—and that's making the last payment on it.

A hick town is one where the people think a columnist or editorial writer should be hung for writing the awful truth about some of them.

February is whizzing by like last week's pay check. First thing you know we'll be getting our delinquent tax notices in the mail.

Anybody seen a robin lately?

The navy is experiencing difficulty in firing a satellite into space in its Vanguard rocket.

It's rumored sailors aren't too adept at digging foxholes, either.

As one of Bill Mauldin's World War II cartoon characters put it, "I wouldn't want to be a tank driver—a movin' foxhole attracks enemy eyes."

Of course that was way back when we were fighting one of those old-fashioned wars where soldiers shot at each other instead of taxpayers.

Congratulations are in order for the fine Bosses' Night program arranged by our local Jay-Cees, at the Legion clubrooms Thursday.

It was a fine program from start to finish. And this Doug Tegtmeier character . . . he was so funny, as toastmaster, that the folks at the affair started laughing every time he got up to introduce a speaker.

I don't know where you got 'em Doug—but your silly sallies really brought down the house!

After listening to the UND-Colorado College hockey game enroute home from Grand Forks Friday night we can only conclude that breaking up the WIHL is a good thing.

I'm not an authority on hockey but it seems to me those birds on the CC team would be more at home competing with the Montreal Canadians—and that any of the other teams in the WIHL are way beyond their depth when they play CC.

That fourth CC goal Friday night didn't improve my opinion on the subject either. This, of course, comes as privileged prejudice from a NDU alumnus which makes the privilege reciprocal for alumni and rooters of other schools in the loop.

We don't expect a lot of disagreement concerning this Colorado College pro team, tho. So long!

REINER . . .

The Farmers Union meeting will be held Thursday evening, February 13 in District 59 schoolhouse.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sigerud who are the parents of a baby daughter born January 28 at Northwestern Hospital.

Last Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller of Grand Forks and Mrs. Gilbert Vraa were guests for supper at the Herbert Vraa home.

Henry Vraa of Thief River Falls spent a few days at the Gilbert Vraa home in Goodridge last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Quam visited a week ago Saturday with Mrs. Tillie Brattland who is employed a the Alexander home in Star.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Miller, Mrs. Alma Miller and Norman Miller were last Thursday callers in Thief River Falls. The two latter had dental work done.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Erickson were last Sunday dinner guests at Herbert Vraas.

Misses Arlene Vad and Leone Hovet were last week overnight guests of Sharon Miller.

Herbert Vraa was a Monday caller in Thief River Falls. His father, Gilbert Vraa returned home with him after being hospitalized for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Johnsrud of Grand Rapids and Duane Johnsrud of Aurora came Tuesday to look after farm interests here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Coan and Kenneth and Mrs. Edgar Miller attended funeral services for Mrs. Walter Oberg at Warren Wednesday. Mrs. Mary Parnow of Thief River Falls also accompanied them.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Miller and Morrie Jon left Saturday for Duluth where they visited at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Loven and family. They were all Sunday dinner guests at the Einer Loven home. Thhey returned home on Tuesday. On their way to Duluth they visited with Mr. and Mrs. Benneth Johnsrud and Donna at Grand Rapids.

Crookston Trips Local Quint 56-48

In a tough and rugged basketball game played here Friday night, the Crookston, scoring strongly in the second half, defeated the Prowlers, 56 to 48. It was the first district conference loss of the season for the Prowlers, and the win for the Pirates moved the Crookston team into position for 'seeding' as the number one team in the district tournament pairings.

The Prowlers will play the Red Lake Falls here on Tuesday night, Feb. 11th. The game was originally scheduled for the Red Lake Falls floor, but the new gymnasium being erected down there is not completed, and the game has been transferred to the local floor.

Friday night's game found the Prowlers playing erratic basketball, being especially lax in covering rebounds and lacking aggressiveness in striving for the recovery of jump balls. Crookston's more mobile squad took advantage of several pass interceptions to drive in for lay-up shots.

After trailing by a 9 to 6 score at the end of the first period of play, and which period found the two teams stressing defensive play, the Prowlers, with Phil Hanson and Jim Bennes sparking the attack, rolled up a 17-point second period to take a 23 to 22 lead at the intermission.

Opening the third period, Jerry Solheim dropped in a Crookston free throw, tying the score at 23-all. Bennes looped a left handed hook shot into the east basket, and the Prowlers led, 25 to 23. Bill Taylor hit on Crookston jump shot. Jerry Dohm, who had scored eleven points in the first half, scored on a lay-up, and then took a rebound to score on a jump shot. Solheim lofted in a long shot, and Crookston held a 31 to 25 lead. Phil Hanson's long shot, and Ken DeLap's swisher from the side of the court, pared the Pirates lead to two points, 31 to 29, but that was the closest the Prowlers came to erasing the lead. Crookston held a 39 to 32 lead at the end of the third period.

And midway in the fourth period, the Pirates increased their margin to 13 points, 49 to 36. The Prowlers, resorting to "pressing" tactics in an effort to disrupt the Pirates' semi stall game, did succeed in whittling the Crookston lead to eight points in the final minutes of play.

Bemidji Defeats Prowlers 71-58

Until the burden of personal fouls became too heavy, midway in the third period, the aggressive Prowlers had done a fine job in whittling the Bemidji Lumberjacks down to size, holding the score to 41 to 38 with four minutes of the third period remaining. With several Prowlers leaving the game via the personal foul route, the Jacks were able to pull away to a comfortable 53 to 42 lead at the end of the stanza, and defeat the locals 71 to 58 in a regional and Northwest conference basketball game played at Bemidji Saturday night.

The Prowlers will meet the Red Lake Falls Eagles here on Tuesday night; and on Friday night the revenge-minded Fertile Falcons will meet the locals on the Prowler court.

Saturday night's tilt at Bemidji found both teams scoring twenty-two field goals, but the Lumberjacks marked up their winning margin by converting on twenty-seven of thirty-eight tries from the free throw line. The Prowlers, meanwhile, garnered but fourteen points out of twenty-two tries from the gift shot line.

Bemidji sprinted away to a 5 to 0 lead in the opening minutes of the game, but the Prowlers, with Dave Rasmussen, Phil Hanson, and Ken DeLap hitting the basket, came back to tie the game at 10-all. Three free throws, one by Ray Cronk and a pair by Fred Swenson, gave the Jacks their 13 to 10 first period lead.

Picking up fourteen points from the free throw line, and adding four field goals, Bemidji moved into a 35 to 28 lead at the intermission. The Prowlers, in the second period, scored seven field goals and four free throws. Phil Hanson's four field goals kept the Prowlers within reach of the Jacks in the third period until the waning minutes when a pair of five-point spurts shoved Bemidji into an 11-point lead. One of Phil's third period baskets was a classic, with the smooth-moving forward flashing around the defense and drive under the basket for a backhand lay-up.

The final period became somewhat of a scramble as, with Bemidji reserves in the game, the Jacks resorted to pressing tactics.

Ray Cronk, Bemidji's all-state center, led the scoring with twenty-seven points. Phil Hanson shared runner-up honors with Bemidji's Marc Kolden, each scoring 18 points.

Thieves Six Defeats Crookston 7 to 1 and G. Forks Jets 5 to 2

Coach Paul Bedard's senior hockey Thieves added four valuable points to their Northwest hockey league standings during the weekend by scoring a pair of victories. On Saturday night, playing on the Arena ice here, and with wingman Durgin performing the "hat trick" by nudging the laces for three goals, the Thieves defeated the Crookston Pirates, 7 to 1. Playing at Grand Forks on Sunday afternoon, the league-leading Thieves de-fused the up-and-coming Grand Forks Jets to register a 5 to 2 win over the Dakotans. Goalie Jack McGill, who was credited with thirty-eight stops, had a shutout on the scoreboard until late in the third period when the Jets' veteran, Wendy Feist, connected for a pair of unassisted goals.

The Thieves will be out of action until Saturday night, Feb. 15th, when they travel to Roseau for a game against the Cloverleafs.

Incidental Information

We are in receipt of a letter that, we believe, is entitled to be given public view.

Here are the pertinent points: "It seems that your one-way sports column is getting entirely out of hand regarding records.

"It is possible that you have forgotten the ten or fifteen dollars that you owe to the members of the city basketball team of 1920-21 for admissions to games that were played in the old Auditorium.

"You certainly remember crawling through the coal chute in the rear of the building, then climbing up through the stage wings, through cobwebs and debris, and sitting in the rafters watching the games. Do you want to put this in your column so that the next generation may have it for their records? It is possible some of these cobwebs are still clinging?

"I also make note of the fact that $135,000 is being paid to Ted Williams this coming season. This should correct you and a dozen other brain-washed sports writers as to comparative values of Williams versus Mickey Mantle.

"Where was Holzknecht in that Bagley game of years past? That Bagley team was supposed to win by a 50 to 29 score, therefore Holzknecht should be credited with thirty points in the defensive column to the twenty-nine points that the rest of the team scored in the offensive column. Holzknecht was standing guard in that game.

"Remember that there are about six or seven members of your cobweb gang who still remember you as 'cobweb Huck'."

Well, this will hold us in check for awhile.

That Bun!

Clarence (Bun) Fortier, the popular and efficient basketball coach of the Bemidji Lumberjacks, is rapidly gaining the reputation of becoming a "character". We didn't know that there were so many strong cage teams in the 229th district and eighth region until we chatted with Bun on Saturday night. He is full of fear.

In the 29th district, the Jacks fear, and perhaps with a measure of good reason, Lowell Anderson's Park Rapids team. And in the eighth region, Bemidji, and Bun, fear Thief River Falls, Crookston, Fosston, Fertile, Bagley, Ada and two or three other teams.

We kidded Bun about making reservations for the State basketball tournament, and he shuddered and exclaimed "Don't say that. There are a lot of tough teams around here." We hope that one of these teams will prove "tough" enough

Playing in the goal for the Colorado College hockey team is Bob Laurion of International Falls. Laurion, who is doing a fine job of net-minding for the Colorado club, was the goalie for the Broncos during the season of 1955-56 when the Prowlers defeated the Broncos, 3 to 2, in that never-to-be-forgotten state tournament finals game. This past season, Laurion has been able to renew acquaintances with a couple of those 1956 Prowlers. He met Marv Jorde of the Gophers when Minnesota played C.C. earlier this season, and this past week he met up with Joey Poole as the North Dakota Sioux dropped a pair of games to C.C. at Colorado Springs.—The athletic color scheme at Crookston appears to be in the process of undergoing a change. For years past the Crookston team, in keeping with their nickname of Pirates, have featured the color red in their uniforms, but now the school has changed to a blue-and-gold motif. They're still the Pirates, though.—Not to Les Gustafson: The score at the end of third period at Bemidji on Saturday night was 53 to 42 in favor of Bemidji, an eleven-point spread. At the end of the game, the score was 71 to 58, a thirteen-point spread. You would have won a quarter had you made that wager.—Had the Prowlers been able to "draft" a couple of boys who were sitting in the north bleachers on Friday night, the locals would have been enabled to score an easy win over the Crookston Pirates. We're referring, of course, to Roy Lee, captain and all-state selection of the 1938 state champion Prowlers, and Art Johnson, captain of the Concordia college Cobbers. Roy and Art were spectators at Friday night's game.

Tree Farm Campaign Arranged for State

Keep Minnesota Green, Inc., announces the start of a statewide campaign to double the number of KMG Certified Tree Farmers in Minnesota during 1958. Dr. Frank H. Kaufert, president of KMG and director of University of Minnesota's school of forestry, said this represents KMG's contribution to the state's Centennial Celebration.

Minnesota has some 20 million acres of forest land which supports the state's third largest industry, providing employment for some 50,000 persons. Wise use and proper management of this valuable and renewable resource is a major long-range goal of KMG.

The economic history of the state began with the harvest of its vast timber resources, and wood is expected to play an even more important part in the state's next 100 years.

Reports have shown, Dr. Kaufert said, that the need for better forest management is greatest on the thousands of small woodlot holdings, privately held throughout the state. The Centennial Year Tree Farm program is designed especially to encourage better management of these private woodlots. There are now more than 550 Tree Farms in Minnesota accounting for about a half a million acres.

Joining with KMG in recruiting or inspecting Tree Farms are many business, civic, government, and youth groups. Such groups as Forest Products Industries, Minnesota Bankers Association, Department of Conservation, 4-H Clubs, Future Farmers of America, Minnesota Conservation Federation, University of Minnesota, the Farm Bureau Federation, Minnesota Grange, and the Farmers Union have allied themselves with KMG in the project. Other conservation organizations are also invited to participate.

The overall project is being administered by two KMG committees and Floyd Ryan, executive secretary of KMG. The two committees involved are: the Education and Promotion Committee, headed by J. Eldon Johnson, assistant director of industrial relations, Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company; KMG Tree Farm Committee, headed by Harold Olson, in charge of Wood Procurement, Wood Conservation Company.

Here's how the project is organized: Government, business, civic, farm, and youth groups will canvass the state seeking persons who are interested in becoming KMG certified tree farmers. The names and addresses of these persons will then be forwarded to KMG headquarters in St. Paul. After screening, the names of potential tree farmers will be forwarded to various business and government organizations which are supplying inspecting foresters.

The applicant's woodland is inspected and a report prepared for KMG review and consideration. Mr. Olson's committee may then approve it as a certified Tree Farm.

If the applicant's woodlot does not immediately qualify, the inspecting forester advises the applicant what he must do to be eligible for certification, and he is urged to re-apply at some later date.

A KMG Tree Farmer receives specific benefits including technical advice and a management plan for his woodlot, a steady flow of marketing and informational material, a large Tree Farm sign and name plate for posting on his property, and other benefits.

Generally speaking, a Tree Farm must be privately owned forest land of not less than five acres dedicated to the continuing growth of forest crops for man's use. New tree plantations are eligible, but must be firmly established and capable of survival as far as a forester can determine. A KMG Tree Farmer must also protect his woods from fire, insects, disease, and destructive grazing; harvest his trees when they are ready; take necessary steps to insure continuing crops; and plant trees on idle land.

President Hears Augsburg Choir

President Eisenhower heard the 63-voice Augsburg college choir last week at the White House. The Minneapolis group, under the direction of Leland B. Sateren, sang three numbers for the President and presented an album of their songs to him and to Sherman Adams, Presidential Assistant. On had at the recital were Governor Adams, Senator Edward J. Thye, Dr. Gabriel Hauge, special assistant, and Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, who had a later appointment at the White House.

High School Girls See Skating Demonstration

Mrs. Alfreda Anderson, who gives skating instructions at the arena during winter months, glides by a group of Lincoln high school girls in a figure skating demonstration she gave several classes of the students last week.

Mrs. Anderson has several children enrolled in her skating classes at the arena and has been engaged in the program for the past two years. The girls from Lincoln are not a part of her classes but were merely at the arena Thursday afternoon to see Mrs. Anderson demonstrate some of the finer points of graceful skating. The girls, not named in order, are Yvonne Jenson, Jane Kollitz and Arlene Ellingson, 10th graders; and Connie Ekeren, Sharon Solheim, Carole Forsberg, Ruth Beiswenger, Vicki Brooten and Marji Rare, 9th grade students.

Mrs. Anderson conducts her classes Tuesdays and Thursdays and parents who wish to enroll their children may still do so. Those interested may also watch the classes at the arena while they are in progress, she said.

State Convention of GOP Set Feb. 22

To Vote on Matter of Endorsing Candidates

A special state convention of the Republican party in Minnesota will be held in the theatre section of the Auditorium in St. Paul Saturday, February 22, it was announced this week by John A. Hartle, chairman, and Mrs. R. D. Harmon, chairwoman of the state central committee.

The purpose of the convention, they explained, is to vote on a proposal to amend the party constitution to permit the endorsement of candidates for state offices.

The amendment would permit pre-primary endorsement by 40 per cent of the vote of any state, district or county convention.

Boy Scouts Featured During Current Week

The 4,700,000 boys and leaders of the Boy Scouts of America will launch a year long National Safety Good Turn during Boy Scout Week, February 7 to 13.

The Scouts' national service project was suggested by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Honorary President of the Boy Scouts.

In a White House message, President Eisenhower told the Scouts:

"In our land each individual is of inestimate worth, yet in no other land do accidents cause a more terrible loss of human life and limb. This fact cannot be passively accepted. We must seek new ways to save the basic resources of our Nation: its people.

"Encouraged by the splendid results of your Conservation Good Turn four years ago, I now urge you to adopt Safety as your service project for 1958. Through the concerned action of your members, and in cooperation with other organizations, you can alert the public to the urgent need for reducing the tragic toll of accidents.

"This is an opportunity for service to our country in the highest tradition of the Boy Scouts of America."

The Scouts' National Safety Good Turn is being coordinated nationally and locally with other safety programs and campaigns. National safety organizations have advised and assisted Scout leaders in developing plans and projects.

During March, April, and May, the projects will involve traffic safety. Out door safety projects will keep Scouts busy in June, July, and August. Home safety will be featured in September, October, and November.

Next October, the Boy Scouts will distribute to approximately 35,000,000 homes a civil defense booklet on family preparedness for emergencies.

That is the most perfect government under which a wrong to the humblest is an affront to all.—Solon.

"For 3,000 years during which printing remained undiscovered after writing was in use, it was only a small portion of the people who could write, or even read writing, and consequently the field of invention, though much extended, still continued very limited. At length printing came. It gave ten thousand copies of any written matter quite as cheaply as ten were given before; and consequently a thousand minds were brought into the field where was but one before. This was a great gain—and history shows a great change corresponding to it—in point of time. I will venture to consider it the true termination of that period called the "dark ages". Discoveries, inventions, and improvements, followed rapidly and have been increasing their rapidity ever since."

"Grow or Die"

In an interesting series of articles on rural and small town problems, Carl Rowan of the Minneapolis Tribune concludes that small towns "Must Grow or Die". Not all will agree with this conclusion and of course it is only partially true. The articles serve the good purpose, however, of calling attention to a trend that already has made much progress and which will continue to change the social and economic relations in the farming areas of the state.

In defining his "small town" Rowan used the population figure of 3,000, and it probably is true in general that communities of less that 3,000 population are confronted with more difficult problems than communities that are larger. But whether it is a city of three or five of fifteen thousand, his conclusion is equally applicable. In this sense ours are all "small towns".

In considering the probability that we either must grow or die we must keep in mind that our growth or decline will always be in some measure influenced by the progress of the area we serve. Small towns may be highly competitive to each other, and all grow in an area that is productive and prosperous.

Here in the large agricultural area in which Thief River Falls has a trade interest, the city has an interest in common with many other small towns in the overall development. And at the present time there is a very urgent need for a better understanding among all of us of this fact.

Applying the Rowan conclusion to our agricultural community, we now are in a serious decline, and unless we reverse the trend we soon will be in a critical condition.

Two Exceptions

A man for whom we have a high personal regard appeared recently before a congressional committee in behalf of an important employers' association of this state. We have received a copy of his statement, a strong appeal for tax reduction. We are taking this means of telling him that, while we too favor tax reduction, we think his approach was weak in two respects.

First, we think he misrepresented the declining relative importance of agriculture in Minnesota, stating the farm income is only 10.5 percent of the total income of the state. Agriculture still is a basic industry in Minnesota and the source from which much of the state's payroll is derived.

It is true that St. Paul and Minneapolis have become great industrial centers, but take away the agriculture of the several states that contribute to the greatness of St. Paul and Minneapolis and our Twin Cities would be little more than wide spots in the road.

And in the appeal for tax reduction there was no mention of the need for curtailed spending or a balanced budget. In pointing up the delightful benefits of lower taxes there was no reference to the evils of continued deficit spending, and we do not believe the employers of Minnesota want tax reduction at the cost of increased public debt and more spiraling inflation.

Having noted these two minor exceptions we will now go along wholeheartedly with what our friend told the committee.

The Next Step—$10,000,000

In what was described by one member of the legislature as a sneak attack, the University of Minnesota wangled out an appropriation of a few dimes from the last legislature for the purpose of expanding across the river. This is a part of the slum clearance program of the city of Minneapolis.

Last week University officials announced the next step in this wasteful and unjustifiable expansion. A ten million dollar appropriation will be requested, two and one-half millions of which will be used for a new classroom building at the "east bridgehead" of a new bridge presumably to be built later, and seven and one-half millions for a new classroom building at the "west bridgehead".

Before there is any further expansion at the University the legislature, in fairness to the taxpayers of the state, should provide for an independent survey of actual University needs, and when we say "independent" we mean the survey should not be made by and for the city of Minneapolis.

And before there is any further expansion, there should be assurance that expanded facilities will result in increased production and not merely in larger enrollment. In spite of greatly expanded facilities in the past, some of the professional schools have somehow managed to limit their production to about the same number of graduates who received degrees 30 years ago.

And before there is actual expansion across the river to the West, the legislature should reconsider the possibilities of expanding to the East where the University already owns a vast acreage, including a golf course.

We think the wisest, and in the long run the most economical solution for this problem, would be for the state to make a gift of its present University facilities to the city of Minneapolis; and then build a new University of Minnesota at some central point in the state at least a hundred miles from the metropolitan area.

Not an Ordinary Customer

(Canadian Financial Post)

An American newspaper has suggested that something closer than the "most favored nation" clause is needed and justified in U.S. trade relations with Canada. It is ridiculous, it thinks, that restrictions considered necessary against certain products, like oil or base metals, from the world at large, should also apply to Uncle Sam's best customer, neighbor and defense partner.

It might take some working out but the idea is worth thinking about. In the last 25 years there have been some significant changes in world relations and in the old idea that one customer was just the same as another, regardless of mutual defense or geography.

Canada, so far as the United States is concerned, is in a very different category from that of any other country. But one would never know it when they are handing out new tariffs or quotas around Washington.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

Spring is on the way. For the Minnesota Department of Conservation this means more than just planning. It is constantly on the alert for ways by which it can contribute to the great enjoyment that nature provides during the spring and summer months.

Camping in State Parks

Nine of our state parks have facilities for group camping. We are particularly eager that groups of children and young people shall have opportunities to get close to nature for a few weeks while on a camping vacation.

Thus far thirty two applications have already been received for youth group camps. Permits have already been issued to eight organizations, representing a total of 25,700 camper days. Ten others, that will represent another 10,630 days are being processed. The other fourteen applications are for short periods, and they will be issued as schedules permit.

Some of the organizations which promote these camping trips for young people are financed by community chests and neighborhood houses, Girl scouts, 4-H clubs, Farmers Union groups, churches, and school participate.

During the school vacation period our group camping facilities in the state parks were booked to capacity last year, resulting in a total of 60,000 camper days. A new camp at Sibley and four new barracks at Whitewater will provide an additional 10,000 camping days during the coming summer.

Senior Citizens Camping

It has been suggested that programs for camping trips for older people might be encouraged to take place after school starts in the fall. Minnesota usually provides beautiful weather in September, and once school opens our state park camping facilities become available. Perhaps there are many groups of older people who could gain real enjoyment from a week or two in our state parks at this season.

Tree Planting

The Conservation Department reports that it has now received 2,115 orders for tree planting stock. Orders have been received for all available conifers, with the exception of jack pine and white cedar. It also has available a supply of deciduous planting stock, including soft maple, green ash, and American elm.

Water Safety

The state-wide committee on water safety has decided that information on the safe operation of boats is vitally needed for the coming summer. To supply this need it has recommended the 10,000 posters and 75,000 brochures should be prepared for distribution. We hope that this effort can prevent some of the needless tragedies that occur each summer as the result of carelessness on the water.

THIS WEEK

—In Washington

With Clinton Davidson

Congress appears this week to be confusing two issues—the farm problem and Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson. The first baffles it and the second infuriates it.

Unable to agree on a practical approach to reversing the downward trend in farm income, the Senate and House Agriculture Committees are concentrating on knocking down what Benson proposes.

Anyone listening to the farm debate in Congress this session may end up knowing considerably more about Benson than about the problems that beset farmers. The Secretary, apparently, has an unlimited capacity to shed criticism.

This is a regrettable state of affairs in Washington. Farmers are in trouble and that is for certain, but tarring and feathering Benson won't change that. So, what is all the shouting about? Neither Benson nor Congress wants to heap more coals on the heads of already troubled farmers, but they have widely different ideas about how to help them.

Benson has said over and over that what he wants is the opportunity for farmers to produce fully and freely in order that supply and demand may establish both the amount of production and the price it will bring in the markets.

Government controls, he argues, can neither establish fair prices nor determine the amount of production. Farmers, he says, must be given greater freedom to manage their farms and make their own decisions.

Decisions by Washington bureaucrats cannot be made to apply wisely or equitably to all farmers, or even to all the producers of one commodity, Benson contends. There are many who know from experience that that is so.

Granting that abrupt removal of all controls and price supports would disrupt markets, demoralize prices and bankrupt hundreds of thousands of farmers, Benson insists that farm programs must lead farmers toward greater freedom of choice—to stay on the farm or move to other jobs.

Congress' rebuttal is that it is both a folly and heartless to so tighten the screws on farmers that they'll be starved off their farms without first providing them a reasonable opportunity to find jobs elsewhere.

President Eisenhower has reported to Congress that there are too many farmers, in fact 2,700,000 too many. It would help if they would just go away and let the remaining 2,100,000 produce all the food and fiber we need!

The production per man-hour of work on farms has been increasing much more rapidly than the number of people wanting to eat and wear clothes. Mr. Eisenhower said farming efficiency has increased more since 1900 than in all of the previous 2000 years and that production per hour worked has doubled since 1940.

Benson says that the way to decrease production and the number of farmers, is to reduce government price supports and other programs which enable the inefficient to eek out a living off of government handouts.

Angry congressmen retort that what Benson is proposing is that he be given authority to "plow under" three out of every five farmers. They know something Benson doesn't; that those farmers come in handy on election day.

OUR LAND

Paul Bunyan's way of cutting vast timber areas has fallen into disrepute in northern Minnesota. Farmers with small woodlots, too, are finding it pays to manage their woods carefully. In Itasca county, for example, Forestry Agent Floyd Colburn reports that about 150 farmers have complete, long-range woodlot management plans. Also, Itasca county farmers have planted more than a million trees as part of an extension program started there a few years ago.

Contour Strip Cropping is part of a basic farm conservation plan on the Elmer Hochstein farm near Windom. Rudy Kehren, U. S. Soil Conservation Service, helped develop the plan. Hochstein recently told him "In 1956 a 3-inch rain washed the corn right out of my field. This year, I planted corn in the same field, but in a strip-cropping system, and it didn't wash out. Now I want contour strips on my whole farm."

Terraces Are Helping Charlie O'Brien, Kasson, to raise more cultivated crops and still control erosion. A cooperator with the Dodge county soil conservation district, O'Brien recently reduced his cattle numbers and no longer needs as much hay. So last spring he constructed almost 3 miles of terraces, and says they paid for themselves after one 2-inch rain. "Planting was a little difficult at first," he says, "but I'm sure we'll get adjusted to farming on the curves soon."

Rotating Pastures with cropland looks like a way to increase income, according to Frank Kainze, farmer in the Marshall-Beltrami soil conservation district. This practice is allowing him to crop old pastures and to pasture recently-seeded fields. He has two or three alternate fields to put his cows in when the others are too closely grazed. Also, this cuts down on total acres needed for pasture.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Windy's "Sleep Machine"

"Call me lazy," says Windy Taylor, "but it's folks like me who are responsible for progress. Come see my latest invention."

Windy's latest consists of an old alarm clock, some door springs, a car battery—all wired up to the hopper of his cattle-feeder.

When the alarm goes off it closes a circuit—opening the chute and sending feed into the manger automatically. The clock's set at 12, so the cattle get fed midnight and noon while Windy sleeps (he takes a midday nap). They look fat and contented...and so does he.

From where I sit, I wouldn't call Windy "lazy." Far from it. It's just that he looks at things from every possible angle—and it seems to do him good. Windy keeps an open mind on all subjects. If you prefer buttermilk to, say, a glass of beer, he's not the type to "invent" ways of forcing his choice on you.

Some people seem to feel that prescriptions are outrageously priced. The truth of the matter is this: Last year the average American bought about 3 prescriptions for a total cost of around $7.50. An average of less than $3.00 per prescription. Sure, some drugs cost a lot. So do television tubes—for the same reason. They're expensive to manufacture. New and improved production methods, however, bring prices down. Penicillin, for example, costs only a small fraction of what it did when it first came out. Your pharmacist has a professional knowledge of drugs and can tell you this. They are fairly priced. You get what you pay for. We are always pleased to serve you.

Plans Being Made for Canoe Derby for Aquatennial

Entrants to Paddle Down Mississippi River from Bemidji to Minneapolis

A series of preliminary eliminations to the 1958 WDGY-Aquatennial-Paul Bunyan Canoe Derby appears to be a distinct possibility as officials of the Derby announced today a total of over seventy-five contestant teams from all parts of North America have already made inquiry to participate in this next summer's international outdoor sporting attraction. "This is beyond our wildest expectations", said John Diracles, Aquatennial President, and Jack Thayer, general manager of WDGY, co-sponsors of the event.

Derby officials said that contestant information, rules and regulations, and official entry blanks will be ready for distribution by the Aquatennial in about ten days.

The 1958 Canoe Derby will be a ten-day race down the Mississippi River, starting on July 9 at Bemidji, near the headwaters of the river. Canoe teams (two men to a team) will paddle in Derby-owned canoes which will be identical in structure and specifications and will be made available to prospective contestants for practice over the tricky course about June 1. A total of 100 canoes, in keeping with the theme of this year's Minnesota Centennial observance, will be purchased by the Derby for the attraction.

Minnesota's Debt Rises $37 Million

Totaled $115 Million Dec. 31, Auditor States

Minnesota's state debt increased 37 million dollars in the last six months, State Auditor Stafford King said Wednesday in his quarterly report.

On Dec. 31, 1957, the debt totaled $115,180,048.10, an increase in six months of $37,414.76. During that time obligations amounting to $3,754,484.21 were paid off while new borrowing totaled $41,168,524.

Large items in the borrowing included more than 9 million dollars for state building, 12 million dollars for the state highway department and 19 million to meet an income tax school fund deficiency.

King said the income tax school fund was overdrawn by $27,827,-$13.52 on Dec. 31, but that the fund should recover with the collection in April of first half income tax collections and then should maintain a cash balance until school aid payments are made in the fall.

The auditor said state operating disbursements for the last six months of 1957 totaled $91,710,-220.78 for the last six months of 1956 and that operating receipts amounted to $204,347,672.24, compared with $107,141,560.45.

The balance in the general fund at the end of 1957 was $9,040,783.31.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA contact representative at the Grand Forks VA Office.

Q—I understand the Korean GI Bill prohibits courses in dancing. I am majoring in physical education in college, and one of my required courses is in group dancing. Does the prohibition apply to this course?

A—No. The prohibition will not apply, so long as the dancing course is an integral part of your physical education studies, and so long as it will give you college credits.

Q—I have just added the total disability income provision to my World War II GI insurance policy. If I become disabled and receive the monthly income benefits, will they decrease the face amount of my policy?

A—No. The disability payments will in no way decrease the face value of your type of policy.

Q—I am a disabled Korea veteran eligible for vocational rehabilitation training. I also am eligible for educational benefits under the War Orphans program. Would it be possible to receive training under both programs?

A—No. You must choose one program or the other. You cannot train under both. Further, once you have made an election, you may not switch to the other training program.

Q—I have a service-connected dental condition for which I am drawing disability compensation. Is there any time limit for outpatient dental treatment for my condition?

A—There is no time limit for compensable dental disabilities. You may apply for outpatient dental treatment at any time and as often as you need it for the compensable dental disabilities involved.

Q—Are State veterans' bonuses considered income for VA pension purposes?

A—N. Bonuses or similar cash gratuities paid by state for service in the armed forces are not to be considered as income in determining eligibility for VA pension.

Q—Since I am totally disabled, my World War II GI term insurance is under premium waiver. May I convert to a permanent plan while the waiver is in effect?

A—Yes. You may convert to any permanent plan other than an endowment and you need not take a medical examination.

Q—I am in training under the Korean GI Bill, but I feel I have taken the wrong course. Would I be eligible for VA vocational counseling to help me choose a new course suited to my aptitudes? I have never changed courses.

A—Yes. In filling out your application form for a change of course, indicate you want vocational counseling. VA will schedule an appointment for you.

Q—I am a Korea veteran still on active military duty. If I should become disabled for reasons due to military service and later die of this disability, would my children be eligible for War Orphans education?

A—No. Your service-connected disability must have been incurred during the Korean Conflict period—between June 27, 1950, and January 31, 1955. A fatal disability incurred after that period would not qualify your children for War Orphans schooling.

Anti-wetlands Unit Meets at Gatzke Friday

Group Proposes to Convert Mud Lake into Dry-land Area

Farmers from a three county area will meet at the Gatzke school auditorium on Friday, February 14th, to organize a permanent Anti-Wetlands association to seek a solution to a water problem in the area.

The meeting which will begin at 2 p.m. will deal with two proposals:

(1) Draining the water out of the Mud Lake Refuge and making it into a dryland refuge.

(2) Seeking a solution to the beaver problem through action by state officials and through legislation.

Ole Prestebak of Goodridge who has been serving as temporary president of the group announces that state representatives and senators from four counties adversely affected by poor drainage and water troubles have been invited to the meeting.

Prestebak states three area farmers will keynote the meeting with data on what has been happening in the area: Delmar Hagen of Gatzke; Oliver Howland of Grygla and Gunsten Skomedal of Thief River Falls.

Several resolutions will be placed before the meeting to give the organization direction, and other resolutions will be accepted from the floor. A permanent organization will be formed.

The auditorium at Gatzke will hold about five hundred people. The meeting is being held there since it is a central point in the affected wetlands area. Lunch will be served by the Gatzke Ladies Aid.

Skomedal, who is a member of the temporary board, announces that anti-wetlands buttons are now on sale, with the proceeds to be used to finance a solution of water problems in northern Minnesota. These buttons will be available at the Gatzke meeting and will have only one word on it "Anti-Wetlands."

Easter Seal Head Names Committee

Mrs. H. G. Halverson Appoints 12 TRF Women

Twelve persons have been named to serve on the 1958 Pennington County Easter Seal committee by Mrs. Herbert G. Halverson of Thief River Falls committee chairman.

They include Mmes. Paul Lundgren, Marshall Kays, Irwin Mickelson, Oscar Nelson, H. O. Berve, V. R. Thompson, Charles Vorachek, A. L. Williamson, Gaston Ward and W. W. Powell.

Mrs. Halverson said much has been accomplished through Easter Seals to help Minnesota's crippled children, but added "much more remains to be done."

She cited Camp Courage for crippled children, support of five rehabilitation centers, the distribution of special equipment such as wheelchairs, walkers and hospital beds, employment of the handicapped, research and special education for teachers and handicapped children.

"Still other rehabilitation centers are needed," she said. "And the special speech camp opened last year is only the beginning of another urgently needed program for children with speech disorders."

Carnegie Library Addition Is Topic Wednesday Night

The acute need for expanding the facilities of the Carnegie public library, especially making provision for a children's room, was discussed Wednesday evening at a meeting of the library board with Mayor O. D. Belch, Council President Bob Carlson and Aldermen Stan Sandvig and S. A. Honebrink. The city officials indicated interest in the proposal, but pointed out that the improvement of the building would in all probability involve a bond issue.

William Smith left Wednesday for Excelsior Springs, Mo., where he will spend the remainder of the winter.

LILLIAN MERNIK

Lillian Mernik, Lithuanian contralto with a gloriously rich voice and an extraordinary range, will present the third concert of the Northwest Concert Assn. series Sunday, Feb. 16, at 8:00 P.M. at the Lincoln high school auditorium.

Miss Mernik humbly gives a great deal of the credit for her career to the people of her home town, Worcester, Mass. "It is not enough," she says, "for one to have some small talent. One's career depends also on luck, breaks and opportunity, and I received all three of these boosts from the people of my home town."

A winner of the Worcester County Young Artists Award, Miss Mernik was brought to the attention of Anna Kaskas, Metropolitan Opera contralto and teacher, by Worcester people. A grant from the Aid to Youth Committee of the Worcester Kiwanis Club made possible a trial period of study with Miss Kaskas which led to a scholarship and the beginning of her professional recognition.

Lillian Mernik has more than verified the faith these people had in her great talent. After a year of study with Miss Kaskas, she won the Minna Kaufman Ruud Foundation Award, valued at $25,000, for further study in New York. Four years later she was first place winner over a field of 600 of the most talented young singers in the nation of the Marian Anderson Award, and just recently she was named a second time winner of this award.

Very fittingly, Miss Mernik made her major symphony orchestra debut at the Worcester Music Festival. At the request of Eugene Ormandy, Miss Mernik was engaged to sing with the Philadelphia Orchestra at the 1954 Festival. There, amid an impressive list of guest artists including some of the greatest names in the musical world, "she drew the largest crowd of the week and gave listeners a thrill second to none in the Festival."

Wherever Lillian Mernik has sung the critics have been unanimous in their praise of her magnificent voice and rare ability, predicting that her is a singer who will be ranked among the truly great.

Admission to the concert is by season membership in the Northwest Concert association.

Loans to Eligible Local Farmers Hit by Flood Available

County Supervisor Says Loans Are Permitted for Operating Expenses

Emergency loans are available in Pennington, Red Lake, and Beltrami counties to eligible farmers whose crops were damaged by flood, County Supervisor Joel P. Rosengren said today.

Funds can be advanced for the purchase of feed, seed, fertilizer, fuel, insecticides, and other essential operating expenses.

To be eligible a farmer must be primarily engaged in farming and have reasonable prospects for success in the farming operations he plans to carry on. In addition he must have suffered a substantial loss from the flood and related damages and must be unable to obtain the credit he needs from other sources.

The interest rate is 3 per cent. Repayment schedules depend upon purposes for which funds are advanced and upon the estimated income of the applicant. For example, loans for crop production are usually scheduled for repayment when income from the crop is normally received.

Loans for the repair or replacement of equipment and buildings damaged by the flood are usually made repayable over periods of from one to ten years.

Adequate security is obtained to protect the government's interest.

With respect to applications for emergency loans in Pennington and Red Lake counties, contact may be made with County Supervisor Rosengren at the Farmers Home Administration office in the court house in Thief River Falls; at the Court House in Red Lake Falls on Mondays beginning February 24; and at the Security State bank in Oklee on Fridays beginning February 28. The office in Thief River Falls is open Mondays through Fridays each week.

For Beltrami county, contact may be made with County Supervisor E. Herbert Carlson at the Farmers Home Administration Office in Bemidji, Minnesota, or at the Soil Conservation Office in Grygla, on Fridays.

TRF Dispensary Earns Profit of $77,557 in 1957

Thief River Falls municipal store sales were up in 1957 but net profit was down, according to Tom Fuller, manager. A decrease in on-sale volume was more than offset by a substantial gain in off-sales, Fuller reports.

The lower profit margin in the off-sale department and higher operating expenses account for the lower net return, he states.

Total sales for 1957 were $501,576.10, compared to $492,933.55 for 1956. The net return dropped from $80,849.01 in 1956 to $77,557.61 in 1957.

Miss Jeanette Walsberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor A. Walsberg of rural Thief River Falls and Robert Walseth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thorstein Walseth of St. Hilaire, were united in marriage Saturday evening, February 1 at the Lutheran church. Rev. Of interest to every college-bound high school student in America is the qualification test of the National Merit Scholarship Program. Dr. John Stalnaker, director, announced today in Evanston, Illinois, several new values of the 1958-1959 Merit Scholarship program.

The National Merit Scholarship corporation administers the nation's largest independently supported college scholarship program for high school students, provided more than $5,000,000 in the 1957-1958 academic year in worth of four-year scholarships. The amount of the scholarship is determined by financial need, and they are renewable annually without further competitive examination. Dr. Stalnaker stated that this national program sends thousands of deserving students to college — students whose unusual talents might otherwise be wasted due to their inability to finance the increasing cost of higher education.

The 1958-1959 testing program is designed to provide more service to participating students and schools. While it will still serve primarily as a preliminary screening instrument to select thousands of scholarship winners, the program has several new and important guidance and educational-planning features. These additional benefits will be best realized by testing at the end of the junior year rather than at the start of the senior year. These new values are such that many students will want to take the test for purposes of educational or vocational planning, even though they do not except to win a scholarship, Dr. Stalnaker stated.

All students will receive a report of their scores. These test results will enable students to understand their present academic strengths and weaknesses, will give them facts with which to plan their senior year, will help them decide about going to college, and will enable them to select college courses of study in which they are most likely to succeed.

All high school students in their second semester junior year or first semester senior year are eligible to take the test. Students can be enrolled in any public, private, or parochial school. The charge for taking the test is $1.00 per student, payable on the examination day—Tuesday, April 29. (In event of financial hardship, a limited number of students will be tested free. Students should consult Dennis Rolle on this matter.) Tests will take place from 9:00 to 12:00 in all participating high schools including Lincoln high school.

Science Research Associates of Chicago, an educational testing, consulting, and textbook publisher, has been retained to construct, administer, and score the scholarship qualifying examination. This company also conducts many other large-scale testing programs, including the Illinois State Scholarship Program, the Selective Service testing program, and the Naval Reserve Officers testing program.

Students are urged to register promptly at the guidance office in Lincoln high school before the March 20 deadline.

Requisitions Are Needed for School Activities Buying

F. Miles Nelson, Lincoln high school principal, today made public a plan instituted some time ago with respect to accounting in the student activity fund.

The activity account, said Nelson, has a requisition form that must be used for any student or advisor of an activity if a purchase is to be made. The requisition must be signed by Paul Anderson and an advisor of the activity group that is making the purchase. This is being done to obtain a strict accounting of all disbursements.

Often in the past both students and advisors have made purchases which have always been legitimate but have been very confusing to the office secretary who must account for the bill when it reaches the office, because no requisition form was used and a great deal of research was necessary before the bill could be assigned to the correct account.

"We are asking", said Nelson, "that business men be advised to refuse to charge items to the school or activity account when such requisitions forms are not presented."

G. Christofferson to Be Given Scout Award by Trinity

Requirements for the award include one hundred and fifty hours of service to the local church, a special project, knowledge of the church year and the church service, memorization of Luther's Catechism and various scripture passages, plus requirements centering around leadership and the cultivation of one's personal devotional life.

Gary's special project was the framing of the pictures and descriptions of the symbols which are painted on the shields in the nave of the church. These pictures will be hung in the narthex of the church.

Gary is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Christofferson.

Prowler Six Faces Baudette Tonight in Semifinal Tilt

Dale Wennberg and Archie Schneider personally escorted the Prowlers into the eighth region high school hockey tournament semi-finals by accounting for all of the goals as coach John Matchefts team defeated the Hallock Bears, 5 to 2, in a regional first round game at Roseau on Tuesday night.

As a result of their triumph, the Prowlers will meet the Baudette Burbots in a semi-final tilt at 9:15 p.m. tonight, at Roseau. The other semi-finals game slated for Thursday, with face-off time at 7:30 p.m., will pit the defending regional champion Roseau Rams against an improving Warroad Warriors club.

The regional championship finals will be played on Friday night, with face-off time slated for 7:30 p.m. A consolation tilt, between the losers of Thursday night's games, is scheduled for 9:15 p.m.

In regional first round games played on Monday night, the Roseau Rams trounced the Red Lake Falls Eagles, winning by a 13 to 0 score; and the Warroad Warriors produced a minor upset by scoring a decisive 7 to 2 win over the Williams Wolves. On Tuesday night, in the first game of the night, the Baudette Burbots racked up the Indus team to win by a 13 to 3 score.

Hallock's Bill Ryden gave the Bears a 1 to 0 lead at the 1:39 mark of the first period on Tuesday night; and when Wennberg, who succeeded in tieing goalie Harold Soberoski into knots as he scored four goals during the game, hit the mesh at 3:40, the game was even at 1-all. Ryden's solo at 4:58, gave the Bears a 2 to 1 first period lead.

Schneider, who was a powerhouse in the Prowler lineup, playing at center as well as doing a stint on defense, muscled in for a goal at 8:44 of the second period, knotting the score at 2-all.

Wennberg took charge of the game in the third period, slicing the Hallock defense into shreds as he twinkled through for three goals.

R. L. Falls Defeats Prowler Quint 59-57 1st Time in History

For the first time since the basketball rivalry between the Prowlers and the Red Lake Falls Eagles was started, 'way back in 1915, the Eagles were able to mark up a win over the locals when they defeated the Prowlers, 59 to 57, in a hectic game played here Tuesday night.

Since 1915, and with the cage rivalry being an annual event since 1942, the Prowlers have rolled up a string of thirty-six victories, and on Tuesday night the locals absorbed their first loss.

The Prowlers will meet another "toughie" here on Friday night when they meet the Fertile Falcons of district 30.

On Tuesday night, the Prowlers, with a lineup that was missing the services of Dave Rasmussen, who was out of town, and Mickey Hanson, who was ailing, pulled away to an early 11 to 0 lead. Jim Bennes, playing at center, tallied ten points in the first period, gathering in the offensive rebounds and scoring on tip-ins. The Prowlers held a 10 to 8 lead at the end of the first period.

With Jim Bennes and Ken DeLap carrying three personal fouls apiece, coach Adams used a couple of reserves in the Prowler lineup in the second period, and the Eagles were able to pare the locals' lead to 31 to 25 at the intermission.

The Eagles moved into a tie midway in the third period when Jason Hussby looped in a field goal, and when Jim Zimpel pumped in a rebound shot, the Eagles led, 40 to 38. The Prowlers, with Bennes and Phil Hanson scoring, regained the lead to hold a 43 to 41 advantage entering the final period.

Dave Norton's long shot, with three minutes of play remaining, gave coach Rusty Miller's club a 51 to 50 lead; and when Gary Kuiper scored on a jump-ball play, the Eagles held a three-point lead with 2:44 to play.

Bennes added a Prowler free throw on Chuck Kankel's fifth foul; Kuiper racked up a Red Lake Falls point on Bennes' fifth personal; Lynn Nicholson, with 1:27 to play, pitched in a pair of free throws, and the Eagles led, 54 to 52. Kuiper flipped in two free throws, only to have Phil Hanson garner two points on free throws. With 20 seconds of play, Jim Zimpel scored on a lay-up for the Eagles. Dick Hanson tossed a field goal into the west basket with ten seconds to play. Just at the buzzer, a Prowler fouled and Rogge dropped in a free throw to boost the Red Lake Falls score to 59 to 57.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

An Historic Occasion

In 1915 coach Albert Johnson's team—Roy Brown, Willis Fasel, Harold Schmitt, Coleman Linde, Chuck Conner, Carl Hovie, and that man Al Holzknect—defeated Red Lake Falls, 88 to 11. Including that game, and up to the game here on Tuesday night, the Prowlers and the Eagles had met on the basketball court thirty-six times, with the Prowlers being ever-victorious.

So it was an historic occasion for Red Lake Falls basketball when, on Tuesday night on the local court, coach Rusty Miller's Eagles edged out the Prowlers, 59 to 57. Believe us, that was a joyous group of Eagle cagers that milled around on the court following the game-ending buzzer.

From the standpoint of the Prowler rooters, there were mitigating circumstances surrounding that loss. For instance, Dave Rasmussen and Mickey Hanson were out of the lineup. Ras was out of town, and Mickey was out because of illness. Their presence would undoubtedly have bolstered the Prowler attack.

And, of course, in a game as closely-contested as this, there were complaints, and perhaps justified complaints, on the officiating of Roy Lindell and Duane Sundby. But it must be remembered that these two officials "worked" the second and third and fourth periods, as well as the first period; and it was in the first period that the Prowlers rolled away to an 11 to 0 and a 10 to 8 lead. That early and easy first period lead perhaps contributed to a feeling of complacency on the part of the Prowlers.

But all credit must be due the Eagles for rebounding from that first period deficit, and the rallying powers that they exhibited in the second half. Eagle fans will remember Tuesday night's game a long time.

Bowling Notes

We were given a reminder last week that the Viking Tavern bowling team, with such promising youngsters as Don Haugen, Dean Anderson, Pat Poole, and Fred Jensen, was within one game of the Tuesday night Business league lead.

That was last week. This week we weren't reminded of the fact either, the Viking Tavern team is four games out the league lead. The league leading Elks Club has a 37 wins and 20 losses record, while the Vikings have a 33 wins and 24 losses mark. We doubt very much if the boys will be able to move up into contention for the league title.

Oh yes, it must be listed as "flash news" to report that the KTRF team of the Monday night Service league dropped three games to the Jaycees on Monday. In fairness to the KTRF team, who are the league leaders, we must report that they were without the southpawing services of Doug Tegtmeier. The way the Jaycees were bowling on Monday night it's doubtful if Doug's presence would have had any effect on the outcome.

An Indication

We aren't usually given to "viewing with alarm", but we must mention that it appears to us that another hockey dynasty is in the process of being formed in the eighth region. That indication was given by the Warroad Warriors as they trounced a highly-regarded Williams sextet, 7 to 2, in a regional tournament first round game at Roseau on Monday night.

That's an unusually young Warroad squad. During the season, the Warriors played a pair of nip-and-tuck games with the Prowlers, and while Warroad lost the two-game series, these losses were only by one-goal margins.

On this Warroad squad are two eighth-graders—Carl Larson and Percy Hodgson; four freshmen—Jerry Lindsay, Bob Hodgson, Dick Bloom, and Ron Huerd; and four sophomores—Larry Huerd, Mickey Fleck, Dick Green, and Hal Cornelilusen. For the Warriors, prospects for the next three or four years are nothing but bright.

With the local Prowlers being primarily a sophomore club, the rivalry between the locals and Warroad should be terrific the next two seasons.

Welcome, Everbody

The tournament committee, in charge of arrangements for the second annual States-Dominion bonspiel, to be held in the Arena here on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, has issued an "Everbody Welcome" invitation to all curling fans. And not only to curling fans, but to others who are interested in the "rock 'n roll" of curling.

There will be a new champion named this year, too, for the Hal Haluptzok rink of Bemidji—Ken Daniel, Don Hirt, Tom Lapp, and Haluptzok—will not participate. It's unfortunate that this Bemidji rink, as well as the Harry Hunt rink of Bemidji, will not be in attendance, but Bemidji will be holding a 'spiel on the same dates.

Curling will begin at 6:00 p.m. on Friday evening.

Big Increase Shown in Drivers Licenses Revoked, Suspended

Large increases in the numbers of drivers licenses revoked or suspended by the Minnesota highway department were noted in a year end report released by the drivers license division.

Revocations of drivers licenses was raised by almost 1,000 actions over 1956 to a total of 11,401 revocations during 1957. The suspension of driver licenses was over 7,000 more than in 1956, with a 1957 total of 36,912. The 1956 totals were 10,562 licenses revoked and 29,729 suspended.

The drivers license division had a busy year examining applicants for licenses as well. In 1957, examiners gave a total of 145,456 written tests, covering laws and signs, in all stations throughout the state, compared with 132,959 inside tests in 1956. About one-third of those taking the written portions of the driver examination failed and were required to take the examination over again before becoming eligible to take the road or driving test.

Outside or demonstration driving tests were given to 132,341 applicants during 1957, compared to 128,162 in 1956. During 1957, only 78,621 persons were able to score the minimum 70 per cent needed to pass the examination.

Hennepin county led the state for driver licenses suspensions with over 13,000 registered during the year. Ramsey county was second with 5,953 and St. Louis county third with 2,647. Lake of the Woods county had the fewest number of licenses suspended during 1957 — 24.

The highest number of suspensions was issued for failure to satisfy the financial responsibility requirements of state law following accidents or convictions of the driver. Following this were suspensions for hazardous moving violations, with speeding tops with 8,287 and careless driving with 3,925 licenses suspended for these convictions.

Revocations were considerably less than the suspension actions, but here an increase was noted. Again Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties led the list with 3,406, 1,462 and 808 respectively. No county had a perfect record, but again Lake of the Woods county had the fewest with only seven drivers with residence there having had their driving privilege revoked during the year.

Almost nine out of 10 of the 11,401 drivers who had licenses revoked lost their privilege of driving because of convictions for driving under the influence of alcohol. There were 9,790 licences lost for this reason, compared to 1,143 charged with speeding. In order of other hazardous driving violations leading to license revocations were careless driving and hit and run actions.

Fishing Houses Must Be Removed from Ice Feb. 28

Ice fishermen are reminded of the law governing the dumping of trash into public waters.

According to Minnesota Statutes laws 1957-58: "No person shall throw, dump or deposit or cause of permit to be thrown, dumped or desposited in any lake, stream, river, or any body of public water, or on the lands adjacent thereto without the consent of the owners of such land, any trash, rubbish, garbage or other litter."

Ice fishing houses must be removed by February 28.

Good sportsmen who realize their responsibility will also clean up and haul away all debris accumulated near their structures during the season.

681 Forest Fires in State in 1957

State Division Reports Losses Totaling $48,582

A total of 681 forest fires, which burned 17,815 acres and caused damages amounting to $48,582 is the final report for 1957 by the state division of forestry.

According to the reports, railroads, landclearing, and miscellaneous causes accounted for the large majority of fires while the farm operators and the group of hunters, fishermen, and travelers were the individuals which set the majority of the fires.

The large percent, 94 percent, were under 100 acres, which indicates the fast action by the Division of Forestry to get on the job of fire suppression while the fires were small. There were only 9 fires larger than 300 acres each.

The statistical records show that 84 percent of the fires occurred in April and May, with October being the high fall month. Most fires were started between 1 and 3 p.m.

Seventy-eight percent of the fires were in open type grass and brushlands with only a small number of fires which destroyed young and mature timber stands.

Evidence of the change of public understanding of forest fire damage and support for conservation shows in the gradual reduction of acres burned and damage to the resources year after year, foresters say. As a prevention program the field forestry officers had 634 meetings, attended 18 county fairs with exhibits, and were on radio and TV programs with conservation information during 1957.

Highway Dept. to Aid Scout Safety Program in 1958

The 1958 Boy Scouts of America Good Turn Program, "Safety", was given a boost today when Harry A. Sieben, state highway safety director, promised the full cooperation of the highway department safety division to the group.

"The Boy Scouts have made traffic safety their first safety effort," Sieben said. "Beginning in March, scout troops all over the nation will add millions of extra workers to our efforts to reduce the appalling number of injuries and deaths due to traffic accidents.

"We are glad that we will have available in Minnesota this extra manpower in our traffic safety education programs. Our facilities and our personnel will be made available to the Boy Scouts at the state and local level in an effort to make the Safety Good Turn an outstanding safety promotion activity of the year."

Use '56 Tax Return as Guide in Filing

Internal Revenue Man Says Rates Remain Same

If you filed a 1956 federal income tax return and if there has been little or no change in your financial situation since, preparing your return for 1957 should be a breeze—if you kept a good, clear copy of last year's statement. That was the word today from District Director A. R. Knox of the Internal Revenue Service.

Even those whose income status changed measurably should still find last years Form 1040 or 1040A a pretty good guide toward moving right ahead with the 1957 version, little changed as to format and not at all as to tax rates and regulations.

There have been a few new rulings and interpretations since 1956 filings but it isn't likely that the average taxpayer will be much affected.

"If a taxpayer does find that he has a problem, because of this or any other situation, we're happy to provide telephone assistance to help him," Mr. Knox said. "Before you call, have your problem properly in mind, with pen or pencil handy, and we'll do our best to give you a quick, accurate answer."

'U' Gets $55,000 for Barley Research

Brewers' Annual Payment to Continue Indefinitely

The University of Minnesota will receive $55,000 per year for an indefinite period from the Malting Barley Improvement association, Milwaukee, Wis. for barley research.

The grant was approved by the University Board of Regents at their recent meeting and will be used by the department of agronomy and plant genetics, plant pathology and botany and agricultural biochemistry.

The Malting Barley Improvement association is supported by maltsters, malting brewers and the United States Brewers Foundation.

Research under the grant will be conducted in cooperation with the association and will be carried on at the St. Paul campus and the University's Northwest School and Experiment station, Crookston.

There will be three main subprojects in this research:

First, there will be studies on development, selection and evaluation of new strains and varieties of barley and on fundamental problems in barley inheritance, including disease reaction, malting quality and other characteristics.

Second, studies will be made on life cycles, survival, methods of spreading, response to surrounding conditions and control of organisms that cause diseases of barley. Scientists will also study microorganisms that grow in an on barley seed before, during and after harvesting and how they affect malting and brewing quality of barley.

Third, the research will include analyses for predicting malting quality of strains and varieties of barley. Studies will be made to improve methods of predicting quality of malting barley.

It is expected that this expanded barley research program will result in superior varieties of barley acceptable for malting and brewing and make barley a more dependable higher income cash crop for Minnesota farmers.

School Patrols to Vie for Awards

Contest Sponsored by State Safety Council

A performance award program for school safety patrols in Minnesota was announced today by the Minnesota Safety Council. Recognition of the patrols will be made for faithful service and outstanding performance by local patrols with all schools, public or private, in the state eligible for consideration.

A grand award and four area awards will be presented at the Governor's Award dinner in May to the patrols judged as best according to a report form now being sent to all school superintendents. Included in the report will be method of selection, equipment, organization and training, performance, and recognition activities.

The award program was developed and will be administered by a special committee of the council appointed by A. V. Rohweder, Duluth, council president. The committee, headed by Dr. Karl F. Nolte of a Hibbing architectural firm, includes representatives of state departments, schools, local police agencies, and sponsoring groups.

Award judges will be selected according to geographical regions by representatives of the Minnesota State High School league.

"Industry, economy, honesty and kindness form a quartette of virtues that will never be improved upon."

Seek Self-Help

At their recent annual meeting in Minneapolis turkey growers of the state favored a self-help marketing plan. At a meeting of the National Federation in Kansas City this week details of a program will be worked out, to be presented to Congress with a request for necessary legislation. Turkey growers are not seeking financial assistance. They ask only for permission to control their own marketing.

On the dairy front, Senator Hubert Humphrey is one of the authors of a bill that has been introduced that would allow the dairy industry to operate its own price stabilization program. This plan provides for government assistance in getting the plan under way, but, as with the turkey growers, the dairy industry would absorb the cost of controlling its own marketing.

Now, at long last, it appears that these two agricultural industries, so important to our area, are moving in the direction of a sound solution for their problems.

More than four years ago, when John Brandt was still an industry sparkplug, national dairy leaders promised Ezra Benson that within one year they would have a self-help plan in operation. Now that they have actually started to act we think they are justified in asking the secretary to postpone the lowering of price supports on dairy products.

These developments are most encouraging.

Looking Forward to 1975

The Committee for Economic Development has predicted that the average family income in 1975 will be $7,100. Today's average is said to be $5,800.

The prediction is interesting mainly as an example of the kind of drivel that too often is handled respectfully by those who decide what is newsworthy. With all due respect to the intelligence and integrity of the good men who do the guessing for the CED we are satisifed that they are no better informed about what family earnings will be 17 years from now than is Queenie the Golden Retriever.

We think this distinguished group of citizens could perform a useful service if they would remind us, and the members of the various agencies that spend our tax dollars, that if we do not start living within our means we will have a lot of trouble long before 1975. Unless we manage our affairs prudently, private and public, it is conceivable that we may not be as well off in real earnings at the end of another 17 years as we are at the present time.

Big-City Control

Representative Eugene McCarthy of St. Paul has announced his candidacy for the DFL nomination for United States senator, the office for which Republican Senator Ed Thye is seeking reelection. McCarthy has already started out to prove that farmer Ed Thye is against the farmers. While 1958 does not look like a Republican year, our guess is that Thye will survive. Certainly his position on the farm problem cannot be challenged by any DFL candidate without leading to the incrimination of his own party.

And maybe it would be in order for rural Minnesota to become a little more conscious of the extent to which the big cities already control politics in the state. With one United States senator and the governorship, Minneapolis is in the driver's seat, and in the background is a small but powerful group that gives the directives to both major parties. Rural Minnesota is being taken for a ride by the city slickers.

The metropolitan area bosses are seeking to gain control of the legislature, which would come to them automatically by reapportionment as presently provided for. And of course they would like to have both seats in the United States Senate.

Blames Parents

If local school officials haven't completed their arrangements for a commencement speaker we respectfully suggest that they extend an invitation to Rev. F. Douglas Henderson, headmaster of Breck school of Minneapolis. A brief report on what he told Minneapolis Rotarians last week convinces us that he has a message the parents of our community should hear.

This Episcopalian padre thinks our high schools are "far too concerned with life adjustment courses, with not hurting young people's feelings and with teaching six easy ways to make a living", but he is doubtful whether parents of today's high school students "have the gumption" to support a "tough educational system."

"Have we in America today the guts, as a people grown soft with the good things of life, to revitalize any educational improvement we might think needed"? he asked. "Our underbelly is so soft that if our child squeals that he has to work, we will try to find some way to make it easier for him."

"Make him reach up [illegible] him work," he urged.

Rev. Henderson probably will not be on the state's list of recommended commencement speakers.

Message From the Past

(Victoria Times)

The Dallas News reports that the United States defence department shortly will declassify "top secret" documents dating back to the Revolutionary War.

This could open the door to a treasure chamber for American historians. Now we may hear the brand name of the tea that went into Boston harbor and the factual account of a cherry-tree chopping incident.

Should the papers disclose the technique used by Washington for a famous pitch over the Delaware, we may be told how to make a dollar go further than it has gone for almost two centuries.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

"A woman's promise to be on time always carries a lot of wait."—Stephen Leacock.

"What shall I say about the two peroxide blondes who made such a fuss at the game last night?" inquired the news reporter.

Editor: "Why just say that the bleachers went wild."

"If history repeats itself in the atomic age, it may make a long story short."—Bill Ireland.

A woman driver was driving down a one-way street the wrong way when she was stopped by a policeman who asked gently but sarcastically:

"I beg your pardon, madam, but where do you think you are going?"

"I don't think it makes much difference now," she said. "It looks like everybody's coming back."

Sen. Humphrey's Newsletter

Disarmament

From all over the country, an overwhelmingly favorable reaction has been received to my major address in the Senate last week on United States Foreign Policy and Disarmament, during which I made a number of suggestions which I hope will be given serious consideration by the Executive branch. My aim in all of these proposals is to make some headway toward diminishing the threat of a total and terrible third world war, toward achieving some settlements of the major political problems which account for the persistence of international tension, and finally toward reducing the gigantic burden on all peoples of large armament expenditures. As the President said in his State of the Union Message, "But of all the works of peace, none is more needed now than a real first step toward disarmament."

Keep Door Open

We must never underestimate the difficulties. The bitter record of Soviet intransigence remains, and it would be naive to except the Kremlin to turn overnight from an expansionist, totalitarian dictatorship into a cooperative, peace-loving member of the world community. But the stakes involve the whole future of mankind. I firmly believe that we must keep trying to negotiate as long as there is a faint hope of success. The people of this and all countries desperately want and need peace.

Our Peace Aims

The peace we seek must be more than the absence of armed conflict. It must be a peace that embraces the expansion of the areas of political freedom, the development of closer bonds of international cooperation among all nations and peoples. Peace is not a negative or sterile thing—it is positive, living, and vital. The peace which we seek is the promise and fulfillment of freedom for mankind everywhere. It is the privilege of healthful living, education, recreation, and enjoying the blessings of modern science and technology. It is freedom from want, freedom from fear.

Immediate Task

Our immediate task is to prevent the two great power systems of the Communist block and the free nations from colliding, either by design or accident, and thereby touching off World War III. The world needs time — time to think, to negotiate, to find answers — time to realize the utter futility of armed conflict, and the wonderful opportunities to be found in peaceful living. The world needs leadership, yes, inspired and humanitarian leadership — to patiently and firmly point the way to peace. But this peace we so zealously desire shall not come easily. Peace, like war, requires sacrifice. It requires the mobilization and planned use of our material and human resources.

Works of Peace

America's foreign policy needs the inspiration of the 'works of peace' — not merely the words of peace.' The works of peace are the very heart and core of our tradition and philosophy. Health care for the sick, food for the hungry, jobs for the unemployed, homes and shelter for the needy, opportunity for the youth —these are the concrete works of peace we must do. This great promise of the good life, with 'liberty and the pursuit of happiness,' is one we can fulfill, and we should move ahead vigorously to do it. We have an opportunity to recover that generosity, humanitarianism and compassion that in the past won for us the world's admiration and respect, and even turned our enemies into friends.

Mink Ranching Marshall County Style

Living in Marshall County are many people with different ideas, different interests and of course different vocations or work.

An unusual type of farm in this county is a "Mink Ranch" owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Verne Green. They live about 8 miles west of Newfolden and operate the only mink ranch in the county. The Green's interest in mink is understandable when we realize that Mrs. Green's father was a successful rancher, too. The Greens began their mink ranch with the purchase of 60 mink and the equipment which Mrs. Green's father was no longer using.

Today the Green's are raising 1,300 mink a year and these are their only livestock. Caring for one man, except during pelting 1,300 mink is a full time job for season which comes the first part of December when additional help is required. During the farming season the Green's employ a hired man to help farm their 500 acres of land.

Over the past 30 years that mink have been raised commercially there has been only 3 years that the prices have been poor. Pelts are shipped to New York and sold on auctions there. They compete with other American raised pelts and with pelts from Europe. Pelts bring a better price when there is a number of the same shade because more can be done with them. It takes about 70 mink pelts for a coat.

The Greens raise five different varieties of mink; black, Pastel, Blue Iris, Winter Blue and Sapphire.

About 300 mink are held over each fall for breeding season. Females are bred to whelp in May. Some mink have up to 10 young in a litter but the average runs closer to 4 or 5.

Complete records are kept on every animal. If one of a litter is off color, is too small, or the fur is too thin, the information goes into the record book. It is all a part of a strict selection program to improve fur quality.

The mink yards are "off limits" during the breeding and whelping season to everyone but the regular attendans. The mother mink will kill her young if she is disturbed.

Feed supply is kept in a 30-ton cold storage building located next to the mink yards. Most of the ration ingredients are bought locally. The ration includes cereal, fish, turkey and animal by-products, and also rabbits.

The Greens have one 200-foot shed which protects the mink from direct sunlight, wind and rain. This shed houses 700 mink and each animal has his own private cage. Cages are set off the ground about 3 feet and are made of welded wire.

According to Mr. Green, the mink occasionally will spring a latch on his cage and escape. A domesticated mink if of a different color than a wilk mink and when one is seen it should be considered the same as a sheep or a cow and is not for trapping! Each mink rancher is licensed under the Agricultural Department to raise mink and they have the same rights as any other owner of domestic animals.

Mrs. Green assists her husband with the feeding and work of the mink. During the summer when the men are seeding and harvesting a large share of the responsibility falls on her shoulders. Mink require watering several times during each hot summer day.

The Verne Greens have three children, Cindy who is in first grade in Newfolden school, Carl who is 5 and Patricia about 2 months. Carl sometimes is "Mothers Helper" and stays in with Patricia while mother works with the mink.

Only 44 Cases of Polio in State During 1957

Only 44 cases of polio were reported to the Minnesota Department of Health during 1957 as compared to 147 cases in 1956, and 510 cases in 1955, Dr. Robert N. Barr, secretary and executive officer, announced.

Four deaths were recorded last year bringing to a total of 19 the number of persons who have died from the disease in the last three years. None of the victims had been protected by the Salk vaccine.

Paralysis occurred in 28 cases, or 64 per cent of the 44 reported, and of this number 15, or 46 per cent had never been vaccinated. Of the 16 nonparalytic cases 6, or 37 per cent had not been vaccinated. Twelve of the 28 paralytic cases occurred in persons 20 years of age or over.

Twenty out of the 87 Minnesota counties reported cases last year. The highest number reported occurred in Stearns county which had nine. Hennepin and St. Louis both reported eight cases. Polk and Wright each had two cases, and Aitkin, Anoka, Beltrami, Carlton, Clay, Lac qui Parle, McLeod, Marshall, Meeker, Mower, Olmsted, Ramsey, Swift, Todd, and Waseca each reported one case.

Nearly 95 per cent of the children age five through nine have received two or more shots of the Salk vaccine, but only two-thirds of the 0-19 age group have received the same degree of protection as of December 31, 1957. There has been a lag in immunizing others who are susceptible, particularly in the age group 20-35, where only 25 per cent have received two or more doses. Also, only one-third of the 15-19 age group have had two or more inoculations.

Latest figures place at 723,283 the number of Minnesotans, age 0-35 who have not received their first vaccination. In the same age group, 427,360 have completed the series of three inoculations, and 518,508 have had two doses. Only 163,320 have been vaccinated once.

"Polio epidemics are still possible in the state unless a greater proportion of the population is protected by the Salk vaccine." Dr. Dean S. Fleming, director of the division of disease prevention and control stated.

"Unvaccinated persons should be encouraged to begin the full course of polio shots now for it is possible that as high as 90 per cent of the susceptible population will need to be immunized before the state is safe from polio outbreaks."

After a series of polio outbreaks in 1948 and 1949, Minnesota reached a peak of 3,926 including 208 deaths in 1952. Of this total, 2,041 were reported as being paralytic. Since then comparative figures indicate a tremendous decline in the number of both paralytic and nonparalytic polio cases.

The first comparatively light year for polio was 1955 when 510 cases were reported. This was the year the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis began its immunization program with first and second grade pupils in Minnesota. During August of 1956, the Salk vaccine was made available commercially without restriction, and by December of the same year, 814,443 persons had received one or more shots. By the end of 1956, only 147 cases of polio had been reported.

WILDLIFE in Minnesota

DIRECTOR OF GAME & FISH

The column this week is written by my wife. It was inevitable that this would happen sooner or later, and the beaver story I had prepared will have to wait. Some women take this emancipation stuff seriously.

"What good's a bear? Now tell me, what good's a bear?"

This question was fired at me by a lady who didn't like bears, and she had me frantically trying to defend the bruins of America.

Why is it that being a biologist's wife means one is supposed to be an authority on wildlife? Why should I be expected to know the answer to, "What good's a bear?" Do doctors' wives get queries on the best stitches to use in appendectomies, or do carpenters' wives know if sixpenny nails are best to nail down a loose board?

Through the years, a few tricks have been mastered which helps me to sneak by as an authority on nature, dishonest though they may be. When a friend asks me what kind of ducks are flying overhead, I reply, "It looks like a nice flock of mallards." I'm not lying. They do look like mallards to me. Most ducks do.

Of course, the best technique is to confound people with a display of the little nature knowledge I do have. For example, while pointing out a bird's foot violet to my companion, I surreptitiously grind into the dust the nearby posy I can't identify.

One summer's day two neighbor ladies asked me to go for a walk with them in the park. As we walked along, we came upon an umbrella-like plant. They promptly asked me what it was. Now, they wouldn't have asked the wife of a plumber for the plant's name, but here was an unsuspecting wildlife biologist's wife out for a walk, and she should know these things. With a concealed sigh of thankfulness because it was familiar to me, the plant was identified as mandrake. However, they were sneakily trying to catch me, because they declared immediately that it was a May apple. Being a coward at heart, I didn't stick to my convictions. We went on our way, the two companions no doubt gloating, while I went home feeling disgraced. How was I to know that mandrake and May apple are two names for the same plant?

It is easy to fool some people but after twenty years, my husband is on to my ways. To show him that his wife is really interested in his work, I made a wood duck box. It was mounted on a tree visible from our bedroom window where we could watch for our duck family to arrive. How delighted we were when a pair of wood ducks came early one morning. We watched as they nosed around, casing the joint. Imagine my chagrin when the mother duck went into a hole in the tree next to the box which I didn't know was there. She seemed very tempted to set up housekeeping in the hole, but she must have decided that wooden box so near was a hazard, so they departed and never returned. My morale hit bottom when a pair of starlings took up quarters in the lowly house.

Not to be outdone by this failure, I made a bird feeding station. This bird contraption was not easily made. You can't fasten wood with a sewing machine, and you can't take a tuck in a board, so it was with a great deal of pride that this wobbly work of art was displayed. When the bird feeder was mounted, the family sat back to watch the results. Not very good. A chickadee appeared, a nuthatch came, but no great variety of winter birds flocked in to eat up the large supply of seeds. Then a friend presented us with a feeder that was bigger, fancier, an very professional looking. Within an hour after it was in place, there was a host of birds happily chomping on the seeds. By late afternoon, cardinals and purple finches had arrived. My feeder, built at the cost of frayed nerves and many bent nails, including the one on my left thumb, still stands—with a lone junco visiting it occasionally.

Why didn't I marry a bricklayer? Surely my friends would not ask me to build them an outdoor fireplace—or would they?

The LIMITED...

There's a tingle of excitement in that word limited as long as we're describing a train.

But if we were speaking of the boy—describing the effect which spiritual neglect has on the development of the character of a child—that's a different matter! There's nothing thrilling about a soul that has been limited in its opportunity for religious expression and growth!

The churches of our community are here to give ALL our children religious training . . . to help ALL our families foster a spiritual atmosphere in their homes.

As we make use weekly of the opportunities our churches provide, the potential Christian growth of the child, the family and the Nation becomes UNLIMITED.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Buttons for Centennial to Be Sold Here

Offer of Jaycees to Conduct Sale Is Accepted Thursday

The sale of official Minnesota centennial buttons to aid in financing the Pennington county phase of the 1958 observance got off to a promising start at a meeting of the county committee Thursday evening when each of the 20 or more members present purchased one of the buttons.

Bearing the Minnesota statehood emblem and the name of Pennington county, the buttons sell for $1, and the hope was expressed that 3,000 or more may be bought by county residents.

Chairman Herman A. Kjos stated that he had been approached by N. H. Kortuem, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, who had offered the services of the Jaycees in selling the buttons in Thief River Falls on a commission basis.

Following a discussion, the committee voted to turn the local sale over to the Jaycees and to give the chapter a commission of 25 percent of the net proceeds, subject to approval by the chapter. Sales in the Goodridge and St. Hilaire areas will be conducted on the same basis by residents of those communities, with the commission money to be used in financing their local celebrations.

The committee also gave approval to a centennial tree-planting project planned by the local chapter of the Future Farmers of America and outlined by its advisor, Jon Metusalem. The plan calls for setting out 500 small trees to honor the memory of 100 pioneer citizens, whose names will be selected by the county historical society. An advisory committee will be named to select the planting sites.

When it was pointed out that it probably would cost $1,500 or more to prepare a float for participation in the centennial parade in St. Paul in May, the committee voted not to have Pennington county represented. In the meantime, Kjos was authorized to appoint a committee representing various local groups to plan details of a parade to feature the county-wide celebration in this city August 1, 2 and 3.

In response to a request from General J. E. Nelson of the Minnesota National Guard, who announced plans to set up a military museum at Fort Snelling, Kjos named Ivan Bundy, chief warrant officer of Company F of the National Guard, and Roy Jorgenson, Ninth district commander of the VFW, to head a local committee to study the project. The two men will name other members.

Polio Fund Money Now Totals $3,200

Coin Receptacles to Be Emptied Early This Week

Belated receipts from the polio fund campaign under way in Pennington county since January 1 brought the total Friday to approximately $3,200, Richard G. Mabey, drive chairman, announced.

He added that additional funds will be received early this week when coin receptacles will be picked up in various local business places, and that some townships still remain to be heard from.

The latest tabulation shows collections of $1,437.01 in the Thief River Falls business district; $1,280.21 from the Mothers March on Polio in the city residential areas; and $268.41 from the remainder of the county.

Newcomers' Club to Solicit Sunday for Heart Appeal

To Canvass Residential Districts of City, Says Chairman Wm. Watzke

Highlight of the 1958 Heart Fund drive in Thief River Falls this month will be a Heart Sunday door-to-door collection, it was announced today.

Wm. Watzke, city Heart Fund chairman, said this city will put major campaign emphasis on the Sunday afternoon, February 23, march, when volunteer workers canvass homes for contributions. Solicitors, he added, will be supplied by the local Newcomers' club.

"Dollars collected in Thief River Falls," said Watzke, "will be part of an expected $7 million one-afternoon collection of funds for the fight against heart disease." He said the Minnesota Heart Association expects to receive one-half of its $505,000 goal for 1958 in a few short hours Sunday afternoon.

To help Minnesota reach its goal in a statewide drive February 1-28, some 500 communities will conduct local Heart Fund appeals.

Funds raised are allocated to state heart disease research projects sponsored by the Minnesota Heart association. Some 63 laboratory research studies in Minnesota are now underway with Heart Fund support made possible by last year's drive.

More than 15,000 Minnesotans were heart disease victims in 1956, constituting the leading cause of death.

Orthopedic Clinic to Be Conducted in City Apr. 29-30

Several Agencies Are Cooperating in Clinic for Crippled Children

Over 1,000 youngsters who have or may be developing crippling disabilities will be served at the orthopedic field clinics to be conducted in 15 different state areas starting March 11, it is announced by the crippled children services of the Minnesota department of public welfare. Included will be a clinic to be held in Thief River Falls April 29 and 30 for five counties in this area.

Now in their 23rd year, the clinics established by the state welfare department, are open to anyone under 21 years of age who needs orthopedic attention.

Last year, 2,013 children were examined by an orthopedist and a pediatrician, and a report given to the family doctor. Special diagnostic consultation is provided the children by the clinic staff.

Appointments, made by calling the area public health nurse, are required for all clinics. If it is the child's first visit to the clinic, the parents are advised to bring a referral from their family physician.

Groups cooperating with the state welfare department crippled children services include Gillette State hospital, state division for vocational rehabilitation, state Christmas Seal organization, Northwestern Pediatric society, Minnesota State Medical association and local medical societies.

Prestebak Named Head of Anti-Wetlands Assn.

Hagen Accepts Moose-Hide Moccasins

200 People Share in Organization Meeting Friday

At a meeting held in the Gatzke school gymnasium Friday afternoon, attended by an estimated 200 people, most of them farmers living in the Mud Lake area and the Mud river watershed, an anti-wetlands organization was formed. Resolutions were adopted asking for the drainage of Mud Lake and converting it to an upland game reserve; and for the eradication of beaver in agricultural areas.

Seven directors, nominated by the organization committee, are Ole Prestebak, Goodridge; Oliver Howland, Grygla; Delmar Hagen, Gatzke; Gunsten Skomedal, Thief River Falls; Clarence Lian, Middle River, Arthur Norby, Gatzke, and Robert Prickett, Middle River. At a meeting of these directors Ole Prestebak was elected president; Oliver Howland, vice president; Robert Prickett, secretary and Gunsten Skomedal, treasurer.

Mr. Prestebak opened the meeting and explained the purpose for which it had been called. He reported on the preliminary meetings that had been held, declaring that he and a few other farmers in the area had decided steps should be taken to control beaver, "the No. 1 enemy of the farmer". The position taken on Mud Lake, he said, was based on the thought that people living in the area should have a right to determine for themselves to what uses the lands should be put.

He introduced Mr. Skomedal who reviewed the history of the territory, the big investment in drainage and the subsequent loss of many farms through the default of taxes and ditch bond assessments. When the state came to the assistance of seven counties in the early 'thirties, it acquired these farm lands and the townships in which they were located became a part of the state's conservation area.

Neglect of the drainage system and the introduction of beaver had created a condition that was detrimental to agriculture and the remaining farmers. He said the flooding of these lands resulted in more rainfall, an opinion shared by most of those present as indicated later in the meeting on a show of hands on the question.

Oliver Howland was next introduced and he directed his remarks mainly at the damage that was being caused by beaver in the agricultural area and also in the Beltrami Island forest. He spoke also of the damage inflicted by other forms of wildlife and urged that the payment of bounties be continued, and that bounties be paid for beaver in agricultural areas.

Delmar Hagen responded by reviewing his personal experiences in the community extending

Delmar Hagen Gets Moccasins to Use on Ox-cart Trek

Is Presented with Pair Made of Moose Skin by Indians in No. Alberta

Delmar Hagen, Gatzke, who will celebrate the Minnesota centennial by driving his matched span of oxen over the Pembina Trail from Pembina to St. Paul this summer, has been furnished with authentic moose-skin moccasins direct from Fort Chipewyan, Alberta. Fort Chipewyan is near Lake Athabasca in northern Alberta.

Because of the scarity of moose in the United States, such leather is practically unknown here.

Loren J. Bonde, U. S. bureau of sport fisheries and wildlife, obtained the footwear for Hagen's trek from an Indian squaw. At the time Bonde was on special assignment in the sub-artic making a survey of waterfowl.

Bonde delivered the moccasins to Herb Dill, manager, Mud Lake national wildlife refuge, Holt, and Dill presented them to Hagen. It is reported that the fine texture and softness of the leather are achieved by chewing. Indians and Eskimoes often chew leather in the process of tanning it.

A Review—

Concert by Miss Mernik, Contralto, One of Best

By Bryant Ulseth

Concert goers were given a rare treat with the flawless performance of Lillian Mernik, contralto. It was apparent from the very first note, that the audience could expect an unusually fine and enjoyable afternoon.

In addition to an outstanding voice, Miss Mernik displayed a pleasant personality and stage appearance. The audience was truly captivated by her artistry. Miss Mernik revealed why music is known as the universal language—no matter what tongue, the message of the song was apparent.

Outstanding selections in the program included the contralto aria from Saint-Saens' Samson and Delilah, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" and the spiritual "Were You There". Miss Mernik was skillfully accompanied by Mr. Vern Maetzold. A sincere thanks to the association for this outstanding series selection and to Lillian Mernik—come back again soon.

County Homemakers at Crookston Parley

Homemakers from Pennington county attended a leader training conference at the Northwest Experiment Station at Crookston Friday, February 14. Nine northwest counties were represented by delegates at the conference with eight homemakers attending from Pennington. They were: Mrs. Wendel Corbet, Mrs. Ray Maxson, Mrs. Harry Solberg, Mrs. Frank Heinz, Mrs. A. C. Matheson, Mrs. Louise Anderson, Mrs. Nina Larson and Mrs. Elizabeth Marquette.

George Donahue, extension rural sociology specialist, University of Minnesota spoke to the group on the various changes in society brought on by the changing science and technology.

The delegates also received information on effective organization and programs for homemaking groups.

Margaret Jacobsen, district supervisor of home extension work, pointed out that the homemaking groups are organized in co-operation with the extension service, and function as individual units within the county. Each group selects a chairman and a councilor. The councilors meet on a county-wide basis to arrange for information for their own group meeting although other homemakers are delegated with this task as well.

Miss Dorothy Simons, University of Minnesota emphasized the importance of adequate program planning to provide information required by homemakers.

The homemakers also discussed ways of assisting with centennial events. Each homemaking group is encouraged to participate in centennial commemoration.

Unit vs. Wetlands Names Prestebak President Friday

over a period of 20 years. He pointed up the many improvements that had been made and the big public investment in roads, schools, ditches and electricity, along with the great private investment in farms and community facilities. The area should not be permitted to revert to a state of nature, he said.

He paid a personal tribute to the management of the Mud Lake project, thanking them for their cooperation, and urged that this problem of the use of the reserve be approached in a spirit of moderation. He attributed much of the bad experience to inadequate facilities and defective laws.

Following these introductory remarks Mr Prestebak called on Robert Prickett to take the chair and preside over the business session. He opened the meeting for general discussion, urging the need for constructive action and a reasonable program that all could support.

On a motion to form a permanent organization there was a lengthy discussion on the selection of a name. The proposed "Anti-Wetlands Association" was objected to by some who argued that it might lead to misunderstandings in other areas where the wetlands program is popular. The question of a name for the association was left to the directors for decision.

Oliver Howland moved the adoption of a resolution calling for the eradication of beaver in agricultural areas. There was no opposition to this resolution but much discussion followed as to the approach that should be followed. Several members of the legislature present discussed the law. There seemed to be general agreement that the department of conservation had not been as cooperative as it could have been under present authority and that present laws should be strengthened in order to gain effective control.

Clarence Lian moved the adoption calling for the draining of limitations on the authority of the department to acquire lands for conservation purposes. Senator Donald Sinclair reported that the legislature had adopted an amendment introduced by him in the last session requiring the department to secure the approval of county boards for wetland purchases. The matter was quickly disposed of with weak affirmative vote.

The motion to adopt a resolution calling for the draing of Mud Lake was made by Gunsten Skomedal. There was much pro and con discussion. A motion to amend was voted down and the Skomedal motion finally prevailed.

3-county Farm Forum Set for Oklee Mar. 19

FARM-CITY FORUMS
•TAXATION

Luther Pickrel, extension agricultural economist at the University of Minnesota, points out some of the topics that will be covered in some 20 Farm-City Forums around the state this year. One of these forums will be held Wednesday, March 19, at Oklee with Red Lake, Pennington and East Polk counties participating, according to county agent Paul Stelmaschuk.

At the forum, agricultural policy experts will discuss common problems of farm and city people and ways these problems can be met. All local people are invited. Pickrel will moderate the forum.

Pickrel has been at the University since June, 1955. He is a native of Virginia, did his graduate work at Michigan State university, and traveled extensively in Europe as an agricultural policy worker before coming to Minnesota. He now specializes in agricultural public affairs in Minnesota.

Pennington Farmers Union and Pennington Farm Bureau organizations are co-operating with farm and civic organizations in the other two counties in putting on the Farm Forum.

School Board Men Back from St. Paul

3 Attended Convention of State Association

Wm. Thompson and Arnold Pearson, members of the local board of education, and Supt. Irwin Mickelson returned Wednesday evening from St. Paul after attending the three-day convention of the Minnesota School Board association.

A. G. Seifert of Redwood Falls was named president and Herbert Latvala of Nashwauk vice president in the election held during the final session. Reelected directors were Seifert, Mrs. Fred Paul of St. Paul and Emery Lindesmith of Owatonna.

Delegates voted to ask the next legislature for state support of grants for capital outlay and debt service, saying high interest rates on school bond issues have added "undue burdens to the cost of public education."

The association also approved a resolution calling on the legislature to abolish all closed school districts.

In Memorium

In loving memory of our dear son, brother and uncle, Clifford N Kolstrand who passed away one sad year ago February 18th

The blow was hard, the shock severe,
We never thought that death was near.
Only those who have lost can tell,
The pain of parting without farewell.
Loving memories will never die,
As years roll on and days pass by,
In our hearts the memory is kept,
Of one we loved and will never forget.
A silent thought, a secret tear,
Keeps his memory ever near.

—Sadly missed by Mr. Peter Kolstrand and family. 1t14p

Fertile 5 Defeats Prowlers 67 to 63

A red-hot first period, during which they outpointed the Prowlers, 25 to 13, provided the Fertile Falcons with the "insurance" points by which they defeated the locals, 67 to 63, in an inter-district basketball game played here Friday night. Of those twenty-five first period points, Fertile's splendid all-round athlete, Arla Brunsberg, looped in six field goals and a free throw. Brunsberg utilized all of his offensive weapons, driving in for lay-ups, jumping from the lane, and jumping in a pair of set shots from the outside.

This week, on Friday night, the Prowlers will make the trek to east Grand Forks for a district conference game against coach Snooks Sullivan's Little Green Wave.

The Prowlers, on Friday night, on a pair of long shots by Phil Hanson and another outside shot by Mikey Hanson, jumped into an early 6 to 2 lead over Fertile. But Falcons, using an all-court press, with Brunsberg and Lyle Sannes being up-court harassers, soon overtook the Prowlers to roll up a 25 to 13 first period lead.

The Falcons increased their lead to 41 to 26 at the half-time intermission, and held a 55 to 39 lead at the end of the third period.

In the final period, the Prowlers, with Phil Hanson scoring four field goals, began to pare the Fertile lead, and the Falcons to semi-stall tactics during the final three minutes of the game.

Brunsberg earned the game's high point honors with twenty-two points; while the Prowlers' Phil Hanson followed with eighteen points.

Thieves Edge Roseau Saturday Night, 6-5

The senior hockey Thieves picked up two valuable points to add to their Northwest Hockey league point-standings on Saturday night when they defeated the Roseau Cloverleafs 6 to 5 in a well-played game at Roseau.

The Thieves, after an absence of ten days from the Arena rink, will return to action here on Tuesday night when they meet the greatly-improved Grand Forks Jets. Face off time is slated for 8:00 P.M.

In Saturday night's important tilt at Roseau, coach Bedard's club proved to have better all-round team balance. The Roseau scoring was concentrated in the Bob Harris, Dick Johnson, and Frank Nystrom line; while the Thieves, being able to ice three lines, received scoring from the Markstrom and Stenerson lines, with defensemen Mike McMahon and Bedard adding single tallies.

McMahon and Bedard gave the Thieves a 2 to 0 lead in the first period; and Monty Markstrom, at the 1:55 mark of the second period, increased that lead to 3 to 0. Harris and Johnson chopped down that lead to one goal by hitting the twine at 12:44 and 16:03. Mike Hajostek gave the Thieves a 4 to 2 lead just before the period ended.

After Johnson had twice, within five seconds, at 5:28 and 5:33, for a "hat trick", the Leafs had knotted the game at 4-all. A pair of Al Stenerson goals, at 7:55 and 13:05, provided the Thieves with their winning margin. Frank Nystrom, in the final minute, closed out the game's scoring.

Roseau 6 Repeats as Region Champ

The Roseau Rams made a successful defense of their eighth regional hockey title as they defeated the Baudette club, 3 to 1, on Friday night in the finals of the regional tournament played at Roseau this past week. In a consolation game played followed the championship tilt, the Warroad Warriors, with junior wing Jack Foster accounting for four goals, defeated a game-weary Prowler team, 5 to 1.

The Roseau Rams will make their opening bid for the state title when, in a first round game of the state high school tournament at the St. Paul Auditorium, they meet the Region Seven champions at 3:30 P.M. on Thursday.

In regional tournament semi-finals game at Roseau on Thursday, the Rams eliminated Warroad, 7 to 0; and Baudette, in a hard-fought tilt, edged out the Prowlers, 2 to 1.

"It's tough that there has to be a loser in a game such as this", So said veteran referee Vic Lindquist, who with Joe Vinet ably whistled the tournament games. And that statement was true enough. The Prowlers had their opportunities to rack up goals, but their shots were just off the line, or they failed to get the fat piece of their sticks on the puck.

Defensively the Prowlers were lax in clearing the puck out of their zone, and both of Baudette's goals came as a result of this laxness. The game-winning tally, scored at the 9:25 mark of the third period followed a looping shot from just inside the blue line by Don Smith. The shot was partially blocked by a Prowler defenseman, and before the puck could be cleared, Baudette's Bill Fritzinger banged the disc into the cast goal. It was a heart-breaker for the Prowlers to lose, and a cherished win for Baudette.

We Lost a "Horse"

One of the "horses" that we had been supporting in the state high school hockey sweepstakes, the St. Paul Johnson Governors, won't even be in the race. The Governors, in a Region Four semi-finals game last week, were sidelined by the St. Paul Harding sextet, 4 to 3.

It's pretty well agreed that this St. Paul Johnson team was one of the state's top-ranked clubs. It was a squad with experience, talented personnel, and capable coaching. And on their record this season, against the state's best, coach Rube Gustafson's well-balanced team was entitled to a berth in the state tournament. But that's high school hockey, you have to win the games on the ice, and the puck can take some pretty funny bounces.

We still have the Roseau Rams in the state tournament, and if coach Oscar Almquist's club can get by their first round opponent, against the Region Seven titlist, well, look out for the green-jerseyed Rams.

Its' nice to see that Bernie Broderick was able to bring his St. Paul Murray club into the state tournament as the Region Four representative. Murray finished as runner-up to the Johnson club in the St. Paul high school race this past season, and during the season they lost one game to the Governors and tied another. Bernie, of course, is well-known around the eighth region, for he was coach of the Warroad Warriors for several years, and spent a year or so with the Prowlers in the 1940's.

Incidentally, the Eveleth Golden Bears, for the second year in succession, failed to qualify for the state high school tournament. In a first round Region Seven tournament game, Duluth Denfeld up-ended the Bears, winning by a 6 to 3 score. We can imagine that Eveleth's veteran coach, Cliff Thompson, wouldn't be the most pleasant person in the world to live with these days.

The two representatives from the Region Seven tourney that will participate in the state tournament are International Falls and Duluth East. It will be recalled that the Duluth East team is coached by Glen Rolle, a brother of Denny Rolle the former Prowler hockey coach.

What This? Dept.

Is there any truth to the rumor that is being given circulation about a "seizure" tag being placed on Pete Klungness' fish house on the river here?

Our understanding is that one of the game wardens placed a "seizure" tag on Pete's house last week. And for what reason? For the reason that the chimney pipe was too short!

It was all in fun, though.

One of the Greats

Since 1945, when the local school adopted hockey as a high school major sport, we have seen all of the Prowler ice teams in action. We have watched these teams as they registered glorious victories, and we have also watched the Prowlers as they experienced the disappointment of losing.

During this span of years, we have seen some exceptional center-ice players perform in the blue-and-gold hockey uniforms. To name but a few, and they bring back memories, Bob Baker, Bud Brossoit, Swede Lund, Al Sreenerson, Marv Jorde, Joey and Jackie Poole, Jim Hall, and others.

But we wish to go on record to the effect that this season's Prowler center-ice player, sophomore Dale Wennberg, rates right alongside of these all-time centers. Dale will be, or rather, is, a great one.

He has all the tools that combine to make an expert hockey player, excellent skating ability, nifty stick-handling skill, and an abundance of hockey know-how and savvy. And he possesses those two vital ingredients without which no hockey player, or any other player for that matter, can achieve greatness. Namely, guts and hustle.

If you were fortunate enough to witness that Prowler vs. Baudette regional semi-finals game at Roseau on Thursday night, which the locals lost by a 2 to 1 score, you saw Wennberg at his hustlingest best. He skated a thousand miles that night.

It's a great comfort to know that Dale will be around for a couple of years.

There's really only one fault we can find with Carl's personable son, and that is that Dale is a Cleveland Indians baseball fan. He'll perhaps outgrow this fault, though.

Pairings Made in Hockey Tourney Opening Thursday

Roseau Rams to Oppose International Falls in First Round of Tourney

With International Falls defeating Duluth East for the Region Seven title, and St. Paul Harding defeating Minneapolis Patrick Henry for the Region One berth, the slate for the 14th annual Minnesota state high school hockey tournament was completed on Saturday night.

The tournament, which will get under way on Thursday afternoon on the ice sheet in the St. Paul Auditorium, will find South St. Paul meeting Minneapolis Roosevelt at 2:30 p. m. At 3:30 p. m., Roseau Rams, the Eighth Region champion, will meet the defending state champion International Falls Broncos.

In the Thursday evening games, Duluth East, the Region Seven runner-up will meet the St. Louis Park sextet of Region Six at 7:30 p. m. The first day's program will be concluded by game between St. Paul Murray, the Region Four champion, and St. Paul Harding.

Secy. Benson to Speak at Minneapolis Farm Forum March 3 and 4

When Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson attends the 1958 Farm Forum in Minneapolis March 3-4 he will face a barrage of questions about his farm program, one of the most controversial in American agriculture history.

Donald C. Dayton, chairman of the Forum, sponsored annually by the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, said with Benson headlining the program, a record audience of farmers, labor representatives and businessmen is expected.

This year's Forum will be directed to the question, "Who Will Solve the Farm Dilemma?"

The first day's theme is "To Whom Does the Farmer Look?" with a talk by Paul Johnson, former newspaper editor at Worthington, and now editor of The Prairie Farmers, Chicago, on "What Is Really Going On In Agriculture?"

Dr. O. B. Jesness, of the department of agricultural economics at the University of Minnesota, will discuss the much talked about question, "Is the Family Farm Disappearing?"

Ralph Helstein, president of the United Packinghouse Workers of America, a native of Duluth and a graduate of the University of Minnesota, will speak on "The Farm Marketing Revolution."

Besides giving farmers the opportunity to get together with nationally-known leaders in agriculture, labor and business and discuss with them their own farm problems the Forum committee has arranged for eight Minnesota farmers to participate on the two panel discussions. Six have already accepted.

These farmers, the committee believes, will generate some pertinent questions to be asked of Secretary Benson who will speak at the noon luncheon March 3.

Flying Farmers to Have Program at the Winter Shows

Crookston Flying Club Sponsors Event Set for Thursday, February 27

Flying Farmers will zero in on Crookston on Thursday, February 27, for the "Flying Farmers Day" to be held during the week of the annual Red River Valley Winter Shows. With the Crookston Airport in excellent condition for wheels at this time and with the promise of the city officials to keep it that way, a record fly-in day is forecast.

In its second year, this annual Flying Farmers Day is sponsored as part of the Winter Shows features by the Crookston Flying Club, Inc., and the Crookston Chamber of Commerce.

Highlights of the day will be the official State of Minnesota Flying Farmers association luncheon at noon which will be held at the Crookston Elks Club, the flyers forum which follows from 2:00 p.m. until 4:00 p.m., a banquet at 6:30 p.m., followed by a dance at 9:00 p.m.

The afternoon program for all flyers includes talks by Phil Janes, CAA Safety Inspector, Minneapolis, who will talk on airspace regulations and the private pilot's radio facilities, and D. E. Ervin, CAA Safety Inspector, Fargo, N. Dak., who will talk on some of the new phases of pilot medical examinations beng proposed.

The general flyers' forum will have questions asked and answered in an open session by representatives of the CAA; National Flying Farmers regional director; E. R. Mertesdorf; past president of the Minnesota Airport Operators Association, Joe Devorak of Fergus Falls; Flying Farmers President Ed. Mundt of Litchfield; Flying Farmer Delmar Hagen of Gatzke, and W. O. Johnson, agricultural chemist of Barzen, Incorporated, Minneapolis.

Buying of Savings Bonds on Upswing

January Sales in State Highest Since July, 1956

Purchases of Series E and H Savings Bonds in January 1958 totaled $7,516,000 for the highest month since July 1956, Fred E. King, state savings bond director, announced today. The January purchases were 12.3 per cent above a year ago, with E bonds up 6.9 per cent and H bonds up 38.5 per cent, King pointed out.

January 1958 purchases of Series E and H Savings Bonds totaled $30,661 in Pennington county, or 11.7 per cent of quota.

In District 1 of which this county is a part, purchases totaled $210,727 or 11.8 per cent of quota.

"The increase in E bonds," King added, "reflects the fact that over 11,000 more Minnesotans are now buying E bonds through the payroll savings plan where they work. The H bond increase shows that investors are again recognizing the value of a 3¼% government security that is guaranteed against the risks of market fluctuation."

State Bar Assn. Gives Advice on Income Tax

This is the first of a series of 14 articles prepared by the Minnesota State Bar Association to assist you in the preparation of your 1957 federal and Minnesota income tax returns. Your returns should be mailed only after you are thoroughly convinced that they are both accurate and complete.

Not only may a careless effort on your part result in future tax deficiencies and possibly penalties, but also in not preparing your returns with great care, you may be unwittingly overpaying your income taxes. If your overpayment results from a mathematical error, the error will likely be discovered and your overpayment refunded. However, if your overpayment results from a failure on your part to deduct an allowable expense, your error will probably never be detected.

You may secure assistance in preparing your returns from a variety of sources. Most of your questions will be answered in the official instruction booklets which are prepared for use with both federal and Minnesota returns and are mailed out to taxpayers with the returns.

Most banks and post offices are supplied with the booklets as well as the returns. These booklets should be carefully studied. Free advice can be obtained from Revenue Service employees in the larger communities in the state. However, these employees will only assist you in preparing your federal return, usually by referring you to printed instructions. They will not prepare your return for you: you must do that yourself or have someone else do it for you.

In addition, there are a variety of books, magazines, articles and the like which you may find helpful. Lastly, you may want to save time and trouble by paying someone else to prepare your returns. However, you will still need to have some knowledge of tax law, especially in knowing what are allowable deductions, since whoever prepares your returns can do so only on the basis of the records and information you supply him with.

Social Security Numbers Needed on Tax Returns

Taxpayers in Minnesota were reminded today by District Director A. R. Knox of the Internal Revenue Service that all necessary social security numbers should be entered on their individual federal income tax returns when filing.

"Many returns are filed in which both husband and wife earned income during 1957 and often one of the social security numbers is omitted," Mr. Knox said. "Along with checking other entries on the return, taxpayers should be very careful to make sure that social security numbers are complete and accurate.

"Social security numbers are required whether or not this type of tax has actually been paid or whether the filer is subject to such taxes."

Mr. Knox also reminded taxpayers that April 15 is still the deadline for receipt of individual returns by his office. March 15 is the deadline for corporation returns.

State Job Office Fills 66,000 Farm Jobs During 1957

The Minnesota state employment service, in 1957, found people to fill 66,478 jobs of an agricultural nature, Commissioner Frank T. Starkey said this week in an annual review of the farm placement activities of the department of employment security.

"The fact that we filled more than 66,000 jobs last year," Starkey said, "is evidence of an expansion of our facilities to serve farmers and increased use of the state employment service by farmers."

The year saw an increase in placements made by the agency's 370 employment security representatives, most of whom are volunteers among the businessmen of the smaller communities of the state.

In addition to the 66,000 farm placements, the agency filled 9,041 jobs in related activities, such as canneries, meat processing plants, poultry processors and dairy products establishments.

More than 32,000 jobs in the state's truck gardening operations were filled by youth. The number of seed corn detasselers declined, due to the expanded use of the new sterile strains of hybrid seed corn.

The agency found experienced farm hands to fill 5,371 jobs and steady employment for 403 farm couples. During most of the year there was a shortage of experienced farm hands.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Old Civilization's Outpost

★ On the right bank tepees huddled in an open space and scattered among the trees. The village activity of the Sioux Indians distubed as much as the lazy firesmoke drifting slowly upwards.

To the left a knobbed hill, heaped up and rounded like a child's sand tower, but green all over, rose 200 or 300 feet above the river.

Ahead, behind low sandy shores covered spasmodically with bunches of scrubby brush, a great wall of limestone rose straight up for many feet. Two great rivers, the Mississippi from the northwest and the Minnesota from the southwest, tumbled together before the cliffs and split around a flat, long, muddy island to the northeast.

Such was the wilderness beauty Lieutenant Zebulon M. Pike viewed when he rounded the head of that island, later Pike island, in September of 1805. His first report recommended that a fort be erected above the bluffs overlooking the two rivers.

Today Fort Snelling still stands on the bluffs. But bridges and buildings fairly well obscure the wilderness beauty.

The Fort Established

After several ornate orations by himself and Indian chiefs, Pike bought for the government 100,000 acres of land at the mouth of the St. Croix and the mouth of the Minnesota. He gave $200 worth of gifts and sixty gallons of inflammable "milk". Later the government promised the Indians $2000 more in gifts.

Colonel Henry Leavenworth, with 98 men of the 5th Infantry, spent the winter of 1819-1820 at Camp New Hope near Mendota to establish Army headquarters there. Quarters and food were poor; many of the men were attacked by scurvy; many died.

In August of 1820 Colonel Josiah Snelling — red-headed but slightly bald, later to become known as the "Prairie Hen" — relieved Colonel Leavenworth. Snelling immediately laid plans for building a fort above the limestone walls overlooking the rivers.

September 10, 1820, the cornerstone for Fort St. Anthony, renamed Fort Snelling by official act in 1825, was laid. During the following two winters soldiers cut 2000 logs along the Rum river, floated them down in the spring. During the spring of 1822 a sawmill was completed at St. Anthony Falls. Troops moved into nearly completed barracks the fall of the same year.

Civilization and Settlers

From then on civilization came on at quite a pace. According to the reminiscences of Mrs. Clark, the wife of the first commissary, the frontier life had its difficulties, but the officers "were nearly all young married persons, cheerful, and fond of gaiety, and had their dancing assemblages once a fortnight."

Settlers arrived, too. In 1821 five families from the Selkirk settlement in the Red river valley settled on the plains near the post. Two years later 13 more families joined them.

Others also moved in. Taliaferro had set up his Indian agency across from the bluffs in 1820. The Pond brothers came up by steamboat in 1834 to begin their missionary work. By the following year 489 white persons had arrived at the fort. Of these, of course, many moved on, for the records show 150 white people, not connected with the fort, were living on the reservation in 1835.

Outpost Excitement

For 30 years after its establishment Fort Snelling was the northwest's last outpost. Though situated in a quiet wilderness, the fort knew its moments of excitement.

In a quarrel on one occasion a man was stabbed to death with a butcher knife. A soldier and his wife circulated bogus money; both were set adrift in a canoe on the river without supplies. A man by the name of Angell came from the Red river district, buried the gold he brought with him and died before he could reveal its hiding place; years later workmen digging foundations uncovered it. In 1820 one officer wounded another in a duel; at the court-martial trial the accused called an officer who testified an infidel; this resulted in another, more bloody duel.

The Sioux and the Chippewa, too, were particularly fond of chasing each other through the woods and hills and across the plains. In 1828 several Sioux wounded and killed several Chippewa in their tents near the fort after pretending to have come on a mission of peace and friendship. The culprits were turned over to the Chippewa and shot down while running the gauntlet. Colonel Snelling ordered no one to watch. But a Mrs. Adams relates that she and Mrs. Snelling climbed to the roof of the round tower for a good view of everything.

Sold and Unsold

Fort Snelling did not continue forever as the hub of activity of the northwest. After Fort Ripley was established at the mouth of the Crow Wing river in 1849, Fort Ridgely in 1854 in the western corner of Nicollet county, and Fort Abercombie in 1857 in the Red river valley, the Army felt Fort Snelling was necessary only as a supply depot. Franklin Steele, an astute business man of the times, bought all but 40 of the reservation's 8000 acres. The soldiers moved out in June of 1858.

Three years later the government took over again to train Civil War soldiers.

After various legal proceedings, Congress in 1871 approved that about 1500 acres be set aside for a permanent military reservation and that Franklin Steele be given title to the remaining 6400 acres.

When Alexander Ramsey was secretary of war in 1879 new buildings, completed in 1881, were begun at Fort Snelling. Though dis-established as a military post in 1946, the area continues its useful service.

This Chapter of the Minnesota Story Is Sponsored By THE KIEWEL PRODUCTS COMPANY

Minnesota is 100 years old this year. During 80 of these 100 years the name Kiewel has been identified with the beverage business in the state. The Kiewel Products Company of Thief River Falls is not the original company, but just as Ben Kiewel, owner of the local organization, is the son of Jacob Kiewel, who started the brewery business in Fergus Falls 80 years ago, the Kiewel Products Company is a direct descendant of that original organization, which later was established in Little Falls.

When prohibition brought an end to the brewery industry in 1920 the sons of Jacob Kiewel ventured into other businesses. A dairy plant in Crookston specialized in ice cream and a branch was established in Thief River Falls. A pop factory was also organized in Crookston and carbonated beverages, along with ice cream, were distributed throuout northwestern Minnesota. In a few years the pop factory was moved to Thief River Falls, and in 1925 Ben Kiewel established his residence here as manager of the Thief River Falls operation.

Since then the Kiewel brothers disposed of their dairy interests, this part of their business being sold to Bridgeman Creameries, Inc., in 1933. Ben Kiewel became the owner of the Thief River Falls bottling plant, and under his ownership and direction this operation has been greatly expanded. In 1912 the old plant, located on the Great Northern tracks at Main Avenue, was discontinued and the operation transferred to the fine, completely modern factory on First Street. This building, 50 x 125 feet, was expanded last year when a 25 foot addition was built along the west side. With this additional space, and the rearrangement and expansion of equipment now contemplated, the plant capacity will be approximately doubled.

But the really significant change that has come with the years to Kiewel's has been in the product rather than in the plant. Sela pop is still bottled, but the main products now are nationally famous beverages bottled under franchise agreements. Pepsi Cola, Canada Dry, Squirt, Nesbitt's, and Hires are brand names of top quality products, and Ben Kiewel has reason to be proud of the plant that meets all of the requirements for this type of quality production.

Over a period of years the plant has received numerous citations for the high quality standards it has maintained. Operations of this kind of course are subject to the sanitary regulations of the state and federal governments. Far more fussy than the government inspectors, however, are the inspectors who check on the operation and the quality for the organizations whose products are processed under franchise. And the many citations for quality that the company has received from these various organizations over a period of years serve as testimonials to the excellence of the operation.

Russell Patten, the bottler, has been with the company since 1932, with the exception of 4½ years in the service. He worked as assistant bottler until 1950, at which time Mr. Patten took full charge of production and maintenance of plant, and plays a big part in earning the citations received from the franchise companies. Also, Mr. Patten has personally received reward gifts from the various companies.

The Kiewel Products Company still distributes Kiewel's White Seal Beer, brewed at Little Falls, and also the nationally famous Schlitz Beer. It is the carbonated beverages, however, processed here under franchise, that are responsible for the success of the organization in which Ben Kiewel takes a justifiable personal pride.

And the Kiewel Products Company represents a substantial payroll. A fleet of eight trucks is required to distribute its products thruout northwestern Minnesota. The Kiewel plant has been an important industry in Thief River Falls over a period of many years.

Frosty Florida

In a letter to E. O. Peterson of the Union State Bank, Harry Brummund, former bank director and for many years a prominent Thief River Falls citizen, reports on the problems of his present home state of Florida, which has suffered an unusually cold winter. He writes:

> "The farmers around Okeechobee lake, the state's best vegetable land, have lost two crops, frozen out, and they lost a lot of cattle. The Brahma cattle can't stand cold weather and the pastures are frost-killed.—The frost has damaged the orange and grapefruit trees in the Indian River district.. They are in bloom now so there will be a short crop this year. Florida has been getting hit hard."

While there is no satisfaction in reading about the misfortunes of others, it is well to be reminded occassionally that we are not alone in adversity. The realization that others, too, have difficulties, makes it a little easier to face our own problems with courage and hope.

Rumblings of Revoution

There are rumblings of revolt in the state, a revolt against high taxes. Over in Grand Rapids recently there was a meeting of taxpayers at which, according to the Herald-Review, "Those present showed a determination to find ways of assuring that the public will receive full value for its tax dollars." The following Herald-Review editorial comment indicates that this is not just another flash-in-the-pan explosion of a few crackpots:

> "If there has ever been as big a gathering to consider taxes and government in this area, it has escaped our memory.
> "No time was spent in condemning present public officials. While many of those present obviously were displeased with the tax situation, there seemed to be general agreement that citizens have not taken enough interest in the problems of local government and taxation.
> "A steering committee was elected to prepare recommendations on by-laws, a slate of officers and a dues structure. These will be submitted for adoption or change at another public meeting to be held in two weeks.
> "An auspicious start has been made in forming of the Taxpayers League. If the present high level of public interest can be sustained and directed along constructive channels, a great deal of good can be accomplished."

Two stories in last week's Northfield News, dealing with school problems, indicate that in that community of "cows, colleges and contentment" the traditional contentment may be giving way to concern, concern about the steadily increasing costs of government.

One story had to do with an argument among school board members on a proposal to hire an additional principal. There was some opposition to the idea. Some board members wondered if the school system did not already have about as many executives as the community could afford. This of course is a very unusual but nevertheless interesting approach to the problem. It is encouraging to know that in one community there are school board members who think that some consideration should be given to the taxpayers' ability to pay..

The other Northfield News story dealt with the question of school system salaries. Two committees appeared before the board, one of them representing the employees and the other speaking for the taxpayers. The proposed pay increases recommended by the teachers and the superintendent were justified by tables showing that Northfield was not paying up with cities A, B and C. and that what other people in Northfield were earning had no bearing on the question. The citizens' committee, arguing for smaller increases, thought that what other people in Northfield were earning was an important consideration in deciding how much they could afford to spend.

The board deferred action.

These developments in Grand Rapids and in Northfield, widely separated communities in the state, indicate that taxes are hurting and that taxpayers generally are beginning to show some concern about spending. In defense of our public officials it probably is fair to state that for many years they have been under heavy pressure from the well-organized groups that are on the receiving end of the tax-and-spend process. Those who do the paying have grumbled but there has been no organized complaint.

That is what makes the news from Grand Rapids and Northfield especially interesting. Do these reports indicate that we are on the verge of widespread, well organized taxpayers' revolt?

Another Hot Potato

France is fighting a losing battle in attempting to retain control in a few outposts of what once was a far-flung empire. Now the French are involved in Tunisia as a result of what appears to be an unjustified air raid in which Tunisian civilians were killed. Among western nations Tunisia is listed as a friendly Arab state, and so we have another "explosive" situation.

Our government has been invited to act as mediator and it is gratifying to know that our government is acceptable to both the French and the Tunisians as an umpire. But umpiring is not always an easy assignment either, and it is seldom that an umpire emerges from an argument of this kind with friends on either side of the argument.

But Mr. Dulles has been in the middle of some nasty arguments before and we are beginning to have considerable confidence in the old rascal. In recent years he has been handed quite a few hot potatoes, and he seems to have a knack for disposing of them without being seriously burned.

Walter Lippmann agrees that what is now needed most in North Africa is a cooling off period, a chance for a calm approach to questions that now are clouded by bitterness and hate. Dulles probably will not push for a speedy solution.

In mediating this Tunisian threat, Mr. Lippmann points out, Mr. Dulles may be able to reconcile a few other differences that threaten the peace in the Middle East and in North Africa.

Saves pigs from deadly diseases of the sow!

Sows kill thousands of young pigs with deadly diseases every season. And many young pigs left on the sow after 10 pounds never do as well as they could.

That's why Land O'Lakes developed its now famous Pre-Creep "TEN-20". Pre-Creep "TEN-20" takes pigs off the sow at 10 pounds, saves them from the diseases of the sow.

Contains 8% fats, added milk products, added antibiotics—disease fighters the sow cannot provide.

Isn't it time you played it safe? Take those pigs off the sow, put them on Land O'Lakes Pre-Creep "TEN-20".

SENATOR THYE Reports TO YOU

Abraham Lincoln

This week we observe the 149th Anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, "the Great Emancipator", who lived and died in an era of great trouble and momentous decision. It is important that we remember his example and take strength from the deep wisdom and dedication of the storekeeper and lawyer from Illinois.

New Space Effort

During the past week, there has been dramatic action in our development in satellites. Most dramatic was the successful launching of "Explorer" into outer space. Within hours one could sense a feeling of relief and of satisfaction. This event has done much to repair the damage wrought by the earlier Russian satellites. It becomes obvious that during the next six months, the United States intends to launch other satellites in our quest for further knowledge of outer space. This is important. However, the United States must go one step further and recapture the psychological lead which Russia captured last October. Our scientists are hard at work developing new space projects. The Senate showed its determination to keep pace by the passage of a resolution offered by Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson and supported by Minority Leader William Knowland. This Resolution established a 13-member committee to explore problems of outer space and to consider whether control of future programs should be under civilian or military auspices. So far, satellite development and our overall missile program has dominated the present Congress.

Small Business

There was significant action during the past week which will affect small business. The Senate Small Business Committee issued its latest report on the impact of present taxes on small business. The Committee also introduced a tax adjustment bill for small business. I joined as co-sponsor of this bill with the Committee Chairman. I also appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee to testify in favor of the bill. I have copies of the report and the bill available in my office for anyone who desires them and will have a detailed breakdown in my next newsletter. At a meeting of the Senate Small Business Committee last week, we adopted a 31-point agenda for the coming year. I am happy to report that all of my suggestions for committee activity were accepted either in whole or in part. The consensus of the Committee was that every attempt shall be made to assure small business participation in the Nation's missile program.

Farm "Facts of Life"

I had the honor of speaking before the Minnesota-Iowa Swine Breeders Institute in Austin late last week to bring before them my stand on farm questions and to make specific proposals for measures which would assure the farmer income in line with his productive capacity.

School Lunch Funds

It is worthwhile, I think, to report to you on the status of the school hot lunch program. The Federal Government has reduced food contributions to the school lunch program. In order to maintain the proper protein content in school lunches, authorities have been faced with two alternatives: 1. Increase the cost to each student, or 2. use district funds. I have introduced a bill in this session of Congress (S.3146) to increase the appropriation for the lunch program by $25 million. Additional funds will increase the Federal cash contribution to the National School Lunch Program. I believe such action is highly important. The hungry student is not an alert student.

Opposes Pay TV

Thousands of you have written me about Pay TV and I want to assure you on this point: I will continue to oppose pay television in every way that I can. The installation of a toll TV system would require a high investment and that cost of the adaptor needed to be attached to every set in this country—approximately 47 million sets—would be substantial. Legislation has been introduced in the Senate to prohibit the Federal Communications Commission from licensing any program of pay television. I am strongly in favor of this legislation and will do my utmost to see that it becomes law.

THIS WEEK

—In Washington

With Clinton Davidson

Washington military experts are saying very little publicly about what many of them think may be our most potent "secret weapon" in the event of either a brush-fire or all-out war.

That weapon, we can now reveal, is our stand-by ability to move men and war materials speedily, economically, and safely to a trouble spot anywhere in the world through a well-organized system of airlifts.

Details have been carefully worked out by military and civilian air authorities and have been reported to congressional committees investigating our military preparedness. Some of the details, given at closed hearings, still are secret.

Records available to any newsman, as well as to Russian agents here, make reassuring reading to Americans who have been awed by Russian sputniks and ICBMs. We are years ahead of Russia on airlift facilities.

The airlift is another example of how the military and private business can work together closely to strengthen the defense of the democratic free world and, at the same time, save taxpayers billions of dollars.

Nearly $5,000,000,000 worth of civilian passenger and cargo planes have been earmarked for pooling with military aircraft through an arrangement known as the Civil Reserve Air Fleet. The upkeep of such a fleet alone would cost the military hundreds of millions a year.

The importance of this large reserve airlift cannot be overestimated. It is the most inexpensive method of providing military emergency lift and should be encouraged to the fullest extent. The airlines have on order more than $3,000,000,000 worth of additional jet and turboprop planes for delivery in the next three years.

If the Sputniks, through their dramatic impact upon the public, should cause the Congress to concentrate appropriations on missiles to the extent of neglecting airlift, the result would be disastrous.

The responsibility for developing commercial airlift rests upon the Civil Aeronautics Board. It is greatly handicapped in this field, however, because although the activities in commercial aviation are today three times as large as they were ten years ago, the staff of the Board has not been increased. For example, in 1956 commercial air traffic was 360% of that ten years previously. Available seat miles were 335% of the 1947 figure and yet the staff of the C. A. B. in 1957 was no larger than it was ten years previously.

No doubt, the present Congress will cut appropriations of some departments and increase those of a very few. Certainly if any appropriations are to be increased, missiles and airlift should be in the No. 1 and No. 2 positions. Congress cannot afford to take chances with the effectiveness of our airlift at the time the next war starts, by withholding from it and the agency which supervises it, the sums necessary for proper and effective development.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the

BUSINESS CONDITIONS IN 1857

In the early part of 1857, when statehood for Minnesota was just around the corner, the territory was flourishing. It seemed fully ready to take its place in the Union as a full-fledged state. Thousands of immigrants had arrived in 1856, and even more were expected in 1857. Real estate values were climbing, and many towns were platted, each in the hope that it might become a major metropolis of the Northwest.

Though much of Minnesota's prosperity rested on its future hopes and aspirations, there was some solid basis for optimism. Considerable farm land had been put under cultivation, sawmilling was a major industry in St. Anthony and the St. Croix Valley, and small flour mills dotted the southern part of the state.

Then on August 24 the Ohio Life Insurance and Trust Company of New York went bankrupt. The company had borrowed money widely in the West, and its failure caused a complete breakdown as debts were called in throughout the country.

By October Minnesota was in the grip of a deep depression, money had virtually disappeared, and barter was the corner of the day. The bottom dropped out of the artificially inflated real estate market, and Minnesotans who had thought themselves wealthy were soon suffering actual want.

In the end, though good times did not return to Minnesota for some years, the depression had a stimulating effect upon the future development of the state. It caused the drifters, speculators, and seekers of easy money to go elsewhere. Those who remained were for the most part serious settlers, many of whom took up land began farming. Over the years, agriculture has supplied a solid economic base for Minnesota's development.

FIRST CLASS HOTEL

Anson Northrup was one of those restless frontiersmen who was ever busy with schemes for building up his adopted home. He arrived in Minnesota in 1838, and one of his early projects was a hotel which he kept at Stillwater from about 1844 to 1848. Stillwater was then a wild lumber town with a large transient population. It did not need an elegant hotel, and Northrup's establishment fitted the local requirements perfectly.

One of the town's early residents who was a frequent guest at the hotel recalled, "If a man had blankets he could spread them upon the floor and sleep till the bell rang. If he had none he spread himself on the floor and paid for his lodging by tending stove and keeping the dogs from fighting. It was one of the aristocratic rules of the house that a man who slept in blankets was not to be disturbed by dogs."

After his venture as a hotel keeper, Northrup went on to become a sawmill owner, farmer, bridge builder, steamboat operator, politician, and real estate speculator. He died in St. Paul in 1894.

A SOLID CITIZEN

Daniel A. Robertson, who had recently arrived in St. Paul from Ohio, became the editor of the "Minnesota Democrat" early in 1851. When he sent sample copies of his sheet to newspaper friends in Ohio, most of them commented on it in their columns. Said one: "That staunch and consistent Democrat, D. A. Robertson, is now printing the Minnesota Democrat, at St. Paul, in the Territory of Minnesota. Halloa, Rob.! Any ice and snow over there in Siberia?"

"A leetle" answered Robertson in his issue of March 11, 1851. Then he went on to poke fun at Ohio: "How is the mud business down there in 'Old Licking?' Have you any bottoms under your roads yet? How is the dentistry business in your neighborhood? The last time we were there, the ague was shaking the teeth out of about half your neighbors."

Warming to his subject, Robertson continued, "Have you caught that man yet that nailed a board on his house to keep the damp air out? It is reported that he is in Minnesota; getting fat at harvesting a magnificent crop of ice. . . He will ship it below in the Spring and make a grand speculation."

Leaping to the defense of his adopted home, Robertson demolished his teasing friend by concluding: "We will tell you how to make your everlasting fortune. Just advertise that you will, for a reasonable consideration, bestow health and vigor on the poor, languid, sickly, leather-chopped, lath-sided, ague-shaking beings, that are so numerous in mud-land, and send all who apply for assistance, up here, to live among our ice and snow treatment. It will cure at least nineteen cases in twenty."

SOCIAL NEWS

In a book of rambling memoirs by Thomas M. Newson, published in 1884 under the title "Pen Pictures of St. Paul," there are many interesting anecdotes about early figures in Minnesota history. As a St. Paul newspaper editor during the territorial period, Newson was in a position to observe that "Men knew each other more intimately in the early days than they do now, and the social element was more largely developed than at present. Of course there was less public sentiment against drinking than today."

As an example of masculine fun in the 1850s, Newson tells the following story: "I remember at a social gathering given by an old settler now living, that after the wine had been repeatedly passed and the speeches made, he mounted the table and walked triumphantly over the dishes, smashing and kicking them in every direction, while the landlord and owner of the articles looked on complacently and laughed. . . The next day the dish-fiend appeared, asked for his bill, received it and paid the $150 without a murmur."

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

One of the responsibilities of the governor that I have always particularly enjoyed is that of publicizing the many advantages of Minnesota, both within our own state and in the rest of the country. This is an especially welcome task because we do have so many advantages to talk about.

During this year of our Centennial celebration we are making a special effort to bring these advantages to the attention of those from other parts of America who, we hope, will visit our state to see for themselves. I have just spent a very busy week-end dedicated principally to this task.

Encouraging Vacationers

The week-end began with an airplane flight to Kansas City in order to get there for an evening appearance at a National Sportsmen's Show. It was "Minnesota night," and our own sportsmen's organizations had done an excellent job in preparing a most inviting appeal to vacationers to come to Minnesota. It was a real pleasure to help in this effort.

From there I went to Philadelphia, to speak at the Roosevelt Day dinner, and again to urge people from the east to visit us to see what the midwest has to offer. From Philadelphia I went to New York, where the really intensive effort to promote Minnesota took place.

Gets National Attention

Early Monday morning I was interviewed on the Dave Garroway television program, and told of some of the things we are doing in Minnesota, particularly for young people. This was followed by an interview on economic progress in Minnesota and on our plans for observing our Centennial Year. I had a meeting with representatives of the Scandinavian press and radio to emphasize Statehood Day and the visit of distinguished Scandinavian leaders to Minnesota that is planned for that week.

During the rest of the morning we met with people from Look and Newsweek magazines, again emphasizing Minnesota in these interviews.

At all of these meetings I was accompanied by other leading Minnesotans equally interested in promoting our program. We met with business men and industrialists who are considering establishing new economic enterprises in our state, and we were able to give them information of real interest and value. We promoted Minnesota as an unparalleled vacation land over radio and television program that are widely heard in the east.

Minnesota's World Outlook

An extremely busy day was climaxed with a speech to the Overseas Press Club, at which I told how Minnesota is setting aside the "isolationism" that has been attributed to it in the past, and developing a very real world outlook. We also gave a very concrete demonstration of one of Minnesota's great assets by providing for the dinner some of Minnesota's best walleyed pike.

At this dinner we honored five former Minnesotans who have won national recognition in the field of communications by naming five Minnesota lakes for Eric Sevareid, Daniel Mich, Max Shulman, Harrison Salisbury, and Sig Mickelson.

OUR LAND

For example, you might want to try wheel-track planting or other methods that involve tilling the soil as little as possible. Farmers around Minnesota in 1956 and '57 found that wheel-track-planted corn yielded just as well as where conventional seed preparation was used. Besides, wheel-track planting can save $3 to $5 per acre on the tilling work you save.

With this method, you do no disking or harrowing at all. You simply plant the corn in tractor tracks on freshly-plowed soil. There is less soil compaction with this technique. Also, there is a possibility of better stands, because there is more moisture where the corn is placed. This doesn't mean that a good seed bed isn't necessary. There is actually a good seed bed where the tractor wheel has "firmed" the soil.

Can door-to-door salesmen prescribe?

We mean prescribe medications for your health. Of course not. Only physicians are professionally qualified to do this. And only registered pharmacists are professionally qualified to dispense these prescriptions for your use. These are facts of law and medical ethics—designed for the protection of your health. So before you buy any vitamins or other medicinal preparations from a door-to-door salesman, ask him to wait while you call your physician or your pharmacist. He probably won't.

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Institute of Child Welfare

Parental Equilibrium

Eve Rice, mother of 14 year old twins, was at her wits end. Cornering husband Burt for a much-needed stock-taking, she began, "Burt, I'm just beat. Nothing I do seems right with Jean and John. I seem to have lost touch." Burt, a gentle soul, replied, "Well, honey, whatever is wrong with you ails me, too. What is the matter with us anyway? Or is it the kids?"

Yes, Eve and Burt, it is probably the kids. Fourteen is not an easy age even for Jean and John. Half of the time they are feeling dissatisfied with the world and all of its people except the one special doll-of-the-moment. The other half they are either "feeling their oats" so as to be unbearable or hitting the depths of despair. As parents ride along on this roller coaster their feelings cannot shift so rapidly (almost as if their thermostats get stuck), with the result that they live two or three peaks or depths behind most of the time.

Eve had just spent 15 minutes commenting her refusal to permit Jean to ride in a car driven by a boy at the learners permit stage. After the usual "y-o-u-never-let-me do ANYTHING. You treat me like a baby. You don't want me to have any fun," the crocodile tears fairly drowned them both.

Just as Jean ended the outbursts, "I guess I might just as well admit that my life is going to be ruined"—the radio began "Da-a-r-ling, yo-o-u send me"—whereupon Jean squealed with delight, "Oh, dearest mother in the world—dont you flip when he sings that?"—and off she danced toward the radio. Eve, with adult pertinacity is still back there where Jean was being ruined and where Jean's contagious gloom took and lingered.

So much is said about teenagers needing to feel secure. It is equally true that their parents have need of a portable security-jack which they might whisk out to lift and to bolster their bruised pride, bewilderment, and frustration. For it is not easy to mother or father children lovingly to the teens and then to find them speaking a language and parading ritualistic patterns which parents no longer share.

Get Children Ready for Touble

A pessimistic title? On the contrary, a realistic one, for who escapes trouble entirely? All of the sciences stress prevention. The best soil conservation program prevents depletion and erosion. Proper care of good teeth is far better than repair of decayed ones. Inoculations and vaccinations point up avoidance rather than cure of disease.

Soil conservation, dentistry, and preventive medicine share some characteristics with which the behavior sciences are not blessed: their ills and preventives are specific and can be proven without question by crop results, pain or tooth loss, or microscope: this plus this DEFINITELY prevents that. Nevertheless, whether a matter of economy, disbelief, procrastination, confidence in one's luck, or misinformation—still preventable soil losses, toothaches, and diseases occur.

It is not surprising, then, that in the less exact, less predictable and less measurable area of human behavior, where this plus this sometimes prevents that, that children do not get as many preventive experiences as are desirable. Yet there are ways to prevent fears of dogs, doctors, policemen. Ways to condition children to pain, illness, restraint, disappointment. Ways to prepare children for sorrow, fame, international brotherhood. Ways inform children about purchasing, banking, budgeting. Ways to accustom children to seek truth and justice. Ways to encourage children to give their best against all odds.

In general, present knowledge assures that attention to preventive measures in behavior development is worth while, and the "how" is becoming progressively polished and communicable. Roughly, preventative measures for later trouble mean living through specific incidents with children with an eye toward long range values and aiming always toward that "great day" in middle childhood when children begin to generalize and abstract what have been up to now episodic experiences. This "great day" does not spring from a vacuum; it is chock full of earlier bits of living, so get children ready for trouble now.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA contact representative at the Grand Forks VA Office.

Q—I have to take a physical examination to reinstate my GI insurance. Is there a time limit on sending the examination report to VA?

A—The report should be sent in immediately. If you delay more than five days, you must submit a statement that you are in as good health as you were when examined. If you delay more than 31 days, the report will not be acceptable; you will have to take another examination.

Q—Are "peacetime" veterans entitled to VA hospital care?

A—Yes, but only if they were discharged for a line-of-duty disability or if they are receiving compensation for a service-connected disability.

Q—I am eligible for a VA grant for a "wheelchair house," but I already have purchased a home on my own. Could I use this grant to pay off my mortgage?

A—Yes. A "wheelchair housing" grant may be used to pay off the indebtedness of a home which you already have acquired.

Q—I have a service-connected disability rated at 30 percent. Would I be entitled to extra compensation because of my dependents?

A—No. The only veterans entitled to additional compensation for dependents are those with service-connected disabilities rated at 50 percent or more.

Canvass to Be Made Sunday for Heart Fund

$600 Collected in Mel Joppru Auction Gives Good Start

Next Sunday, February 23, is Heart Sunday, Lloyd N. Bennes, Pennington county chairman, announced today.

Throughout Minnesota and the nation doorbells will ring as thousands of Heart Sunday volunteers collect contributions to the fight against heart and circulatory diseases. Serving as solicitors in Thief River Falls will be members of the Newcomers club, Wm. Watzke, city chairman, reported.

Bennes stated that the merchandise auction staged at Joppru's sales barn Monday afternoon, thru the cooperation of Melvin Joppru and local businessmen, contributed more than $600 toward the Pennington county quota of $1,666.50. Numerous proxy bids on the items were entered by Thief River Falls professional men, in addition to which there was bidding by area farmers.

Heart Sunday climaxes the $505,000 1958 Heart Fund drive sponsored by the Minnesota Heart association. Funds collected here and in 600 other state communities by 36,000 solicitors will be invested in the association's 1958-59 programs of heart research, education, and community service.

Heart Sunday is being observed in all 48 states with approximately 1,500,000 volunteer workers on the march. National Heart Sunday chairman Ralph Edwards, NBC-TV personality, predicts a total of $10,000,000 will be contributed to the Heart Fund by Americans on Sunday afternoon alone.

"We are asking the public on Heart Sunday to "Give for Every Heart you Love," said Edwards. "We hope they remember that the Heart Fund is the spearheading force against diseases which are responsible for 54 percent of all deaths, and which affect 10 million living Americans."

Anyone not contacted who wishes to make a Heart Sunday contribution can send his gift to "Heart," care of local postmaster.

Council Meeting Slated for Feb. 25

Due to the absence of two aldermen from the city, the regular February session of the city council was postponed from its scheduled date Tuesday evening of this week to next Tuesday, February 25. Bob Carlson, president, announced.

Fifty persons attended the annual banquet Tuesday evening of the Thief River Falls unit of the University of Minnesota Alumni association in the Elks club rooms, and heard a discussion of the university's plans for expansion by Dean Richard Kozelka of the school of business administration.

Dr. Joseph Norquist, officiating as toastmaster, called on the Rev. E. C. Mead for the invocation, and on Wendell Olson, president of the local group, for welcoming remarks, following which the Lions quartet supplied several selections.

Stating that there now are 20,000 students on the Minneapolis campus, Dr. Kozelka said it has been estimated that by 1970 the number will increase to 39,000 or more. He pointed out that virtually no space remains on the present campus for new buildings, and that the only feasible plan is to extend westward across the Mississippi river. An appropriation, he said, was voted by the 1957 legislature to acquire approximately 45 acres of land.

While stressing the need for expansion in Minneapolis, Dr. Kozelka also endorsed the idea of setting up more junior colleges thruout the state, so that students would have a chance to try themselves out in the field of higher education while remaining close to home.

In response to his request for comments from the audience, W. E. Dahlquist suggested that the university is now amply large, and that it probably could be better utilized for graduate and professional training, leaving preliminary courses to an increased number of junior colleges.

Winter Shows Start Monday at Crookston

Paul Engelstad of This City General Superintendent

A number of new features, bent on broadening the scope of the event, will give a "new look" to the Northwest School Farmers Week and Red River Valley Winter Shows in Crookston Feb. 24-28. Paul Engelstad of Thief River Falls is general superintendent of the shows.

In addition, the regularly scheduled events which have come to characterize the Winter Shows as a top-flight agricultural exposition—programs with noted speakers, livestock and crops shows and contests, meetings of organizations and youth activities—will be included to make this one of the most entertaining and educational programs ever put together.

The major additions this year are the Farm-City Forum, designed to promote a better understanding between farmers and other segments of the Red River Valley community, and the barley show, an initial step in a planned effort to build the crops show up to the popularity which the livestock event now enjoys.

Other new events will include the state winter meeting of the Flying Farmers and a West Polk County Centennial Pageant put on by the Fisher, Crookston Cathedral High and Northwest schools and the Climax, Mallory and Fosston communities.

The Farm-City Forum will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 25-26, and will be moderated by Dr. Luther J. Pickrel, extension agricultural economist at the University of Minnesota.

In its attempt to build up the crops show, the governing body of the Winter Shows has picked barley as the featured crop this year and has provided increased cash premiums for winners in this division.

The barley show has been divided into two divisions, one for 4-H and FFA entrants and one for open class participants.

Like the Farm-City Forum, the evening programs will feature a number of top-notch speakers, including Drs. Mark Graubard, professor of interdisciplinary studies at the University of Minnesota, and Emma Birkmaier, head of the foreign language department at the University High School, both of whom have tra-

Homemaker Leaders Get 1st Aid Training

Representatives of 15 homemakers groups of Pennington County received training in safety last Wednesday, according to county agent Paul Stelmaschuk. The training was given by Glen Prickett, extension safety specialist, University of Minnesota, and 27 homemakers were in attendance.

The theme of the training was "What to Do until the Doctor Comes."

The homemakers received information and training on the various topics. Included were wounds and their treatment; dressing, bandages and splints; injuries to bones, joints and muscles; hemorrhages; shock; asphyxiation and artificial respiration; poisons; injuries from heat and cold and first aid kits.

Prickett emphasized the value and limitations of first aid. He stated that training in first aid may save a life of a friend or a member of the family. However, to be qualified in first aid administration takes an intensive course of training, and a supply of first aid materials needs to be maintained wherever people work or play. A good practice is to take along a first aid kit when traveling or on an outing. Prickett pointed out that many accidents happen away from home. The areas of homes and farmsteads still lead in number of accidents, and first aid kits should always be kept in these areas.

The homemakers delegates will present the information on safety to their homemaking groups on the weeks to follow so the safety topic will reach over two hundred homes in the county.

Community Chest Drive Winds up 30 Pct. Short of Goal

Total Receipts Placed at $8,800 by Harold Storhaug, Treasurer

Harold Storhaug, secretary-treasurer of the Pennington county Community Chest announced this week the 1957 campaign was completed with about 70 per cent of the goal reached.

Contributions turned in to date total $8690.46. However, Storhaug said, contributions from one township not yet reported, along with a few uptown businesses will add approximately $100 to make the final figure about $8800.

A breakdown of contributions to the 1957 Chest drive are as follows: Business district, TRF, $6720.06, of which $1442.50 came from the industrial drive, $532 government offices, and $1751.50 downtown business district solicitations; residential drive, $12[illegible]25, and rural drive, $720.15, for the $8690.46 total to date.

The 1957 Community Chest drive was declared formally ended some weeks ago but contributions have continued to dribble in. No further solicitations will be made to increase the total, Storhaug said.

All phases of the drive were reported down from 1956, with the city residential drive coming closest to equalling the amount attained the previous year. Main reason for the drive's falling short of the goal was the late start made in 1957, which resulted in some conflict with the Christmas rush.

Disbursement of the funds solicited in the drive will be made at a meeting to be called later, Storhaug stated Wednesday.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Harold Dietz. The third grade mothers served lunch.

Muster Day of National Guard Is Next Sunday

Public Is Invited to Attend Open House in T.R. Falls Armory

Members of Co. F, 136th Infantry Regiment of the Minnesota National Guard, will celebrate their third annual "Muster Day" next Sunday with an open house at the local Armory. Plans for the ceremonies were announced today by Lt. Joe A. Forberg, commander of Company F.

Although Washington's birthday falls on Saturday, the celebration Sunday will honor the nations first president, who was a colonel in the Virginia militia.

The open house will begin at 2 p.m. with a display of weapons, equipment, training aids, and the facilities of the Armory. At 3 o'clock there will be an exhibition of the type of drill and training which is a regular function of Company F. At [illegible] there will be a muster followed by a reaffirmation of the oath of allegiance to the state of Minnesota and the U. S. of America.

Following the ceremonies a light lunch will served for the visitors by Company F personnel.

Mayor Orion D. Belch today proclaimed February 23 "National Guard Muster Day" and called on the citizens of Thief River Falls to give their "whole hearted support" to the Thief River Falls National Guard unit.

Mayor Belch called attention to the fact that Co. F of the 136 Infantry Regiment is better prepared than ever before for the defense of the country.

The Mayor also recalled the work of the Thief River Falls National Guardsmen in searching for lost people and their participation in the Korean conflict.

"It is fitting", he said, "that the entire community should join with the members of the National Guard in celebrating Muster Day. In honoring the memory of George Washington, our first president, we also honor the ideals of service of the National Guard, today's outgrowth of the militia."

Although the Guard recognizes Washington's Birthday as Muster Day, it actually traces its foundings back long before Washington. The first regiment in the United States, the 182nd Infantry of Massachusetts, was organized in 1636—nearly 100 years before Washington's birth.

Service to the community

A colleague of ours tells this one. On Saturdays he sells dimes (10c each). Seems the neighborhood movie is next door. The kids stop in before the show for dimes—for the vending machines in the theatre. A lot of our business is like this—service to the community. Glad to do it. Because we're conveniently located and open long hours, we're a handy place to pick up change or a bottle of aspirin. But a pharmacist's true service to his community is to be a quick, reliable source of the drugs and medications your physician prescribes. That's the real reason we're here. And we are always pleased to serve you.

Robert Willis Johnson, city, pleaded guilty to speeding and was fined $10 plus $3.50 costs. He was also fined $5 for having no driving license.

A juvenile girl from Middle River pleaded guilty to careless driving, driving without a permit and drinking. She was sentenced to 5 days in jail on each charges, but the sentences were suspended.

There were two trials of persons who pleaded not guilty to the charges against them. Alvin Anderson, city, and Orlin O. Lerol, rt. 4, city, had both been charged with driving too fast for conditions. Both Anderson and Lerol were found guilty and were fined $10. Anderson's fine was suspended, however.

An historical pageant entitled "Form Ox Cart to Rail" will be presented Wednesday evening, February 26, as the evening program of the annual Red River Valley Winter Shows. It will depict in narration, pantomine, skit, music and program some of the early settlement of Polk county.

The pageant will generally cover approximately 50 years in the development and settlement of Polk County extending from before the period of the Pembina Trail and the Red River Ox Cart to some time beyond the extension of the railroad through the county.

Depicting in narration and pantomime the signing of the Old Crossing Treaty at Huot will be students of the Northwest School of Agriculture. The script written and directed by instructors Miss Marion Parhat, Miss Margaret Larson, William M. Barron and Leroy Field.

The arrival of the first permanent settler to Climax will be enacted by members of the Climax community. Research, writing and direction have been carried out by Mrs. Cameron Gray, Mrs. Ordean Estenson and Mrs. Jens Erickson.

The Scotch community of Mallory will present a typical program in celebration of Bobby Burns Day, the Scotch poet whom all "sons of the tartan" honor during January. This portion of the history of Polk County will be complete with Bagpipes, Highland Fling dancing girls, Scotch readings and ballads.

Fosston high school, in a skit written and directed by James P. Daugharty, head of the speech department in the school, will portray the coming of the railroad to that area. It is entitled, "So You Were There Switching the Ox-carts to Iron Horses.

Scenes of the pageant will close with an album of Crookston's first citizens as given in narration and pantomime by members of Crookston Cathedral high school.

The pageant will take place in the auditorium of Central High School, Wednesday evening, February 26. The Crookston Pit Band will play from 7:45 p.m. and curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Pennington SCS District Reports on 1957 Projects

cording to specifications, Lawrence explained.

"More Minnesota farmers were assisted in applying soil and water conservation practices in soil conservation districts in 1957 than any previous year," Herbert A. Flueck, state conservationist, announced in St. Paul today. "SCS technicians assisted on 16,280 farms in 1957, as compared with 11,100 in 1956."

"In Minnesota's 75 organized soil conservation districts 2,170 district cooperators developed basic farm conservation plans," Flueck continued. "Basic conservation plans include a program of use for each acre of the farm based on the capability of the land, and treatment of each acre as needed for protection and improvement. The conservation practices applied on the farms of district cooperators were a part of farm conservation plans," Flueck said.

"District cooperators established 2281,653 acres of conservation crop rotations; applied 22,110 acres of contour farming, and 53,355 acres of strip cropping; planted 148 miles of field windbreaks, and 2,733 additional acres to trees; constructed 380 miles of terraces and diversion ditches; built 344 ponds; established 1706 acres of grassed waterways; improved 14,046 acres for wildlife habitat; and improved cropland drainage on over 84,785 acres of land which was already being farmed," Flueck stated.

The forecast from KTRF calls for cloudy skies and warmer temperatures today and tonight, with occasional snow or freezing drizzle falling in the area.

Occasional light snow and little temperature change is also forecast for Friday. High today will be 25-28 and tonight's low will be in the 20-25 bracket. Winds will be southerly, 15-25 m.p.h.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

Down in my former neck of the woods February used to be kite-flying month. It may be still, as far as I know.

The last half of that month and the first half of March saw the favorable winds for kites and every kid who owned a ball of twine spent every leisure hour flying his kite.

In those days you didn't run to the store and buy a kite. Some kids did, of course, but these were social outcasts who hadn't the least skill in building their own which would outperform the store-bought toys sixty ways from nothing.

The champ kite-flyer for miles around lived in our neighborhood. Not necessarily in the same house always, you understand—but somebody in that neighborhood always built the biggest, most unusual, highest-and-longest flying kite.

The best performing kites were six-sided affairs with a three-stick framework. You tied two sticks to form and X, then tied a shorter cross stick midway between the top and middle for the X to get your basic shape. Then you ran a string around the notched stick ends to make the outline of the kite. Now your kite was ready for covering.

For this you usually used an old newspaper. You cut the paper about an inch-and-a-half larger than the outline, notched the corners, smeared on ample quantities of home-made flour paste, folded the cover around the frame then let it dry a few hours.

When dry you added guide strings and a tail made of all the old rags you could find you were then ready to go kite flying.

Kite-flying season was a mixed blessing for mothers in the neighborhood. While the mothers had to put up with messes of cut paper, flour paste on the floor, old bits of rags here and there, etc., they didn't seem to mind too much so long as the messing didn't get out of hand.

The nice part of it was that each mother knew where her boys were at any given time after school hours each day—all she had to do was look out for their kites. They were bound to be at the other end of the piece of string holding the kites.

You see, kite-flying was a serious business with us boys. None of this building a kite one day and forgetting it after flying it once.
